HOOVER SPEAKS IN CLEVELAND, O. SATURDAY NIGHT

President Planning New York Talk.

Coolidge Tonight

Former President Calvin Coolidge will speak in Madison Square Garden, New York, tonight urging the election of President Hoover and other Republican candidates. Page 7.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—President Hoover will carry his battle for reëlection to the central states again this week with a speech at Cleveland, O., Saturday night. A week later the President is expected to invade New York, Gov. Roosevelt's home state, to attack the Democratic legislative record and urge retention of the Republican administration in power. The week following is expected to find President Hoover again in the center of the nation's farming areas fighting for control of normally Republican states which threaten to desert to the Roosevelt-Garner ranks.

There was every indication today that the main point to be driven home by the President during the final weeks of the campaign will be that the nation must reëlect the Republicans or face the probability of seeing a Democratic legislative program enacted which would defeat every chance for immediate recovery from the depression.

Expect Some Fireworks.

The political signs also indicate that the final weeks of the campaign will find the President and his rival, Gov. Roosevelt, engaged in a slam-bang exchange of charges and counter charges centering around the Democratic house legislative record and the Hoover program for meeting the depression.

Indicative of the slant expected to be taken by the Republican party was the charge made today by Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] following a conference with President Hoover. He declared that election of a Democratic President and the passage of bills like the bonus and the Goldsborough price fixing measure would force the United States off the gold standard and prolong the depression indefinitely.

Reed Back from Europe.

The Reed charges were made on his arrival in Washington after spending several weeks in Europe engaged in sounding out European statesmen on their attitude on disarmament and the Japanese-Manchurian situation. The Pennsylvania senator holds down the chairmanship of the senate military affairs committee and is a member of the senate finance committee. He went to Europe at the direction of President Hoover principally to find out of the attitude of France and Great Britain on Manchuria.

Senator Reed expressed confidence that Europe will resume its debt payments on Dec. 15 when the next installments are due. He was extremely pessimistic on the disarmament outlook, seeing little chance for the acceptance of the President's proposal that armaments be cut approximately one-third.

Denies Bargain Made.

He denied categorically that any bargain or secret agreements had been made by the United State. with either Great Britain or France on the course to be taken in handling the Lytton report and other developments in Japan and Manchuria.

The Pennsylvania senator was one of a score of persons who called on political missions at the White House during the day. The others included Carmi A. Thompson, former secretary of the Republican national committee, of Cleveland; Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, also of Ohio; Frederic M. Sackett, ambassador to Germany, and four flying football stars, including Albie Booth of Yale and "Red" Cagle, the former army star.

"I think we were within less than two weeks of going off the gold standard," said Senator Reed, when asked his opinion concerning President Hoover's description of last summer's financial crisis in his recent Des Moines speech.

Views on Gold Standard.

"If the administration had not insisted on the passage of the Glass-Steagall bill," the Pennsylvania senator went on, "or if congress had followed the Democratic leadership in the house and had passed the Goldsborough currency inflation bill or the bonus bill, this country certainly would have gone off the gold standard.

"I think we are past that danger.

KIDNAPERS FREE BANKER, ELUDE TRAP OF POLICE

Norman B. Collins, president of two Chicago banks, who was kidnaped near his home in Wilmette yesterday morning, and held for $5,000 ransom, was released by his captors on the northwest side shortly before 3 o'clock last night. He is 39 years old and head of the Security Bank of Chicago and the Second Security Bank of Chicago, both on Milwaukee avenue.

No ransom was paid for his release, although the kidnapers gave explicit directions as to the manner in which the money was to be turned over to them. Any effort on their part to collect it would probably have been met with machine gun fire, for police had laid a careful trap for their arrest on the basis of the abductors' note.

Freed on Northwest Side.

Collins, somewhat nervous and hungry, but otherwise none the worse for his eleven hours of captivity, was released at Milwaukee and Kilpatrick avenues and directed by his captors to go down to the drug store at Irving Park boulevard and Kedzie avenue, where he would be met by his wife, who was kidnaped with him but set free a short while later. At the drug store Collins told the story of the kidnaping.

He said that he left his home at 630 Elmwood avenue, Wilmette, in the family car with his wife, Alice, bound for the North Western railroad station. At 7th street and Lake avenue, he said, three men in a "wreck of a car" forced them to the curb, and ordered him and his wife into their car. There they taped their eyes with adhesive. Then one got out and drove Collins' car behind.

Kidnapers Release Wife.

"Up to this time I thought the men were robbers," said Mr. Collins. "On the way they said they were kidnapers and wanted $100,000. Not having any money on me, or any immediately available, much less the amount they asked, I told them their demand was impossible. They scaled down their demands finally to $5,000. I told them to allow my wife to see James B. Forgan Jr., vice president of the First National bank, and they agreed. They let her go."

Mrs. Collins was driven, still blindfolded, to her car about six miles from Wilmette and released.

Guarded by Captors.

"The kidnapers took me to a garage," continued Mr. Collins. "They treated me considerately at all times. They made no direct threats, but occasionally referred to the 'higher ups. They said at one time: 'We don't know what we'll do if we don't get the dough.' I was driven around a good deal, always under guard of at least one man. I suffered somewhat from lack of food, although they offered to buy me sandwiches. One man gave me whisky to keep me warm.

"Two of the men appeared to be very young. The other seemed to be about 40 years old. After dark, one of them told me that they did not get any ransom, and were going to let me go. They drove me to Milwaukee and Kilpatrick and told me to go to this drug store. I did so, and called up my home."

Letter Demands Ransom.

While all this was going on a county-wide search for the missing banker was being conducted by the Secret Six, the police, and friends headed by Mr. Forgan, who is chairman of the two banks of which Mr. Collins is president. No trace of the kidnapers was uncovered until shortly before 5 o'clock last night, when a letter of instructions was found slipped under the door of the Collins home in Wilmette.

The letter carried a map of an area bounded by Irving Park boulevard and Western, Belmont and Kedzie avenues, and directed Mrs. Collins to take the money there. She was to be at Irving Park boulevard and Western avenue at 6 o'clock and to drive around the square mile every hour.

"Continue driving around this square mile until you are relieved of package," stated the letter.

Lays Trap for Kidnapers.

Alexander Jamie, chief investigator for the Secret Six, was notified. He laid the trap. Detective Louis Nichols dressed in Mrs. Collins' clothes and started out in her car. Crouched in the rear were Lieut. Leo Carr and Sergt. William Knowles. They reached the designated intersection at 6 p. m. and for two hours circled the square mile. Three blocks behind, in another car, rode Jamie, Mrs. Collins, and Mr. Forgan. The trap proved unnecessary.

"VICTIM" TURNS UP ALIVE AFTER INQUEST STARTS

A man about 60 years old was killed in an automobile accident in Aurora on Saturday. Following the usual procedure the body was taken to an undertaking establishment and a coroner's jury was called yesterday to investigate and make a finding.

Identification was made. The body was that of John Hamsmith, a retired contractor, according to his former wife, two of his sons and several friends.

The coroner's jury was preparing to return its verdict when a spectator in the courtroom told Hamsmith's son, Matt, that there was a mistake.

"I saw your father at home Sunday and this man was killed Saturday," he said.

The son made a journey to his parent's house. There was Mr. Hamsmith—in person, not a ghost. The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the deceased was unidentified.

102 Millions Loaned by U.S. to California

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—One hundred and two million dollars, five times the amount granted to all other states combined, has been advanced to California by the Reconstruction Finance corporation for construction of "self-liquidating projects" in that state a checkup at the corporation offices disclosed today.

Thus far the federal loan agency has approved loans totaling $121,584,620 for construction of projects in five states. California, with the two largest individual advances, has received all but $19,584,620 of this amount.

It was to California that the corporation made its first "self-liquidating project" loan—an advance of 40 millions for an aqueduct which will furnish Los Angeles and a dozen other southern California cities with water from the federal government's 165 million dollar Boulder dam. This advance was made through the corporation's purchase of bonds of the southern California metropolitan water district which could not be sold.

Second Advance Made.

A second advance was made the state on Saturday when the corporation approved a loan of $62,000,000 for construction of the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge. This loan was negotiated through the corporation's purchase of 5 per cent revenue bonds of the state of California.

Meanwhile representatives and attorneys for the Los Angeles department of water and power are in Washington seeking a third advance of 32 millions for construction of an electric power transmission line from Boulder dam. Action on this application is expected within a week or ten days. It was said today by one of the Californians conducting negotiations here for the power line.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation was authorized by congress to make loans for "self-liquidating" construction projects on the theory that such undertakings would provide employment to many thousands of men throughout the country. Thus far no state east of the Mississippi has received an advance. Applications from eastern centers of population, including Chicago, piled high the corporation officies. California, which has received 19 millions of the amount granted so far, has 4½ per cent of the country's population.

Louisiana Gets 13 Millions.

The loans for such construction projects made by the corporation to date in addition to the two advances to California are as follows: 13 millions for a bridge across the Mississippi twelve miles above New Orleans; $5,784,000 for flood control and irrigation project near Albuquerque, N. M.; $645,620 for a waterworks project at Ogden, Utah; $105,000 for a waterworks addition at Madison, S. D., and $50,000 for a similar project at Prescott, Ariz.

Both advances to California and the 32 millions loan sought have been protested by residents of the state. The corporation has temporarily been prevented from advancing the 40 million dollar aqueduct fund by an injunction suit filed by a group of southern California taxpayers in the District of Columbia Supreme court. No action has been taken by the court, although it was learned today that attorneys for the finance corporation have secured a week's extension in which to file answer to the injunction action.

The board of directors of the corporation today approved a loan of $700,000 to the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad for repairs to locomotives and freight cars.

DISCOVERS SKULL OF BRONZE AGE MAN IN THAMES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—The discovery of a well preserved human skull and lex bone in the bed of the Thames river near Hampton Court during recent dredgings was reported by Prof. G. Elliot Smith today.

The scientist held that the fossils were those of a man about 25 years old who had lived in the bronze age some 2,500 years ago. The fossils were found fifteen feet below the bed of the river. Other bones found included those of an exceptionally large deer and of a horse.

At a meeting of the Thames conservatory board, with Lord Desborough presiding, it was decided to reward the finder with a sum of 7 shillings 6 pence (about $1.10).

Grand Jurors Hear Contents of Code Cables

The four cablegrams in code sent from Chicago to Samuel Insull and his son, Samuel Jr., during the elder Insull's flight from Paris to Athens were deciphered and read yesterday before the grand jury that indicted the former utility chief. In one of the cablegrams, it was revealed, Insull had been advised by the law firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale and Attorney George A. Cooke, a former justice of the Illinois Supreme court, to seek asylum in Greece, where, he was told, extradition would be impossible.

As a result of the disclosure of the cablegrams' contents, Attorneys Gilbert E. Porter and Waldo Tobey of the Isham, Lincoln & Beale firm were taken before the grand jury after signing immunity waivers. Attorney Cooke and another lawyer, James G. Condon, are to be called later, State's Attorney Swanson said.

O'Keefe Appears Without Code.

The lawyers were subpœnaed when John F. O'Keefe, who was for many years confidential secretary to Insull and who sent the cablegrams, appeared before the grand jury without bringing the code, although he admitted having been instructed to do so by Assistant State's Attorney Charles A. Bellows when served with a subpœna on Sunday.

O'Keefe testified, it was said, that he took the code to Condon, his personal attorney, yesterday morning and that Condon took him to the firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale, where the code was left.

After Attorneys Porter and Tobey appeared and testified concerning the code, O'Keefe was again taken before the grand jury and compelled to decipher it. O'Keefe admitted sending all four of the cablegrams and testified that they were dictated by the aforementioned lawyers.

The First Cablegram.

The first of the four cablegrams, addressed to Samuel Insull Sr. at the Hotel Lincoln in Paris and dated Oct. 2, said:

"Sam Insull should not comply with any requests or demands to return. Have told John P. Wilson [an attorney] that I cannot concur in reduction of service annuity without your consent, following conference with Samuel Insull Jr. Gilbert E. Porter, Samuel Insull Jr. has code."

The "service annuity" mentioned apparently referred to Insull's pension of $21,000 a year, which he receives from the Commonwealth Edison company, the Peoples Gas, Light and Coke company, the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and the Gas Subsidiary corporation.

Second Message Deciphered.

The second cablegram, dated Oct. 5, the day after Insull was indicted, was addressed to Samuel Insull Jr. at the Palace hotel, Turin, Italy, where father and son had gone from Paris. The message said:

"Gilbert E. Porter says advices from Washington state no extradition treaty with Greece. George A. Cooke says no existing treaty between Greece and United States but one being negotiated. This makes extradition impossible. Advise domicile there. Greek steamship is Greek territory."

Third Cablegram Revealed.

The third message, sent to Samuel Insull Jr. at the Touring hotel, Milan, Italy, on Oct. 7, said:

"Porter says although no treaty with Greece, government might on request surrender as matter of policy. Suggest seeing Zaharoff immediately if you think wise."

The Zaharoff mentioned, it was explained by Andrew J. Vlachos, an assistant state's attorney of Greek descent, is Sir Basil Zaharoff, a Greek financier, knighted by the king of England. He is a friend of Samuel Insull Jr.

The fourth and last cablegram, also

ATHENS PLACES FUGITIVE IN A SPECIAL ROOM

Move to Extradite Him Is Pushed.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

ATHENS, Greece, Oct. 10.—Under the shadow of the Parthenon, whose Doric columns have looked down upon the rise and fall of many men and one supreme civilization, Samuel Insull was confined in an Athens prison tonight.

At 10 p. m., a cablegram from the state department at Washington to the American legation was laid before the Greek authorities. It formally asked the arrest and extradition of the former head of the Insull utilities empire, who is now wanted in Chicago to face charges of embezzlement and larceny.

The Greek police, who earlier today had arrested Insull on their own initiative to investigate his passport, and who had decided to release him tomorrow, changed their minds and an official charge was lodged against him. The police said Insull will be held in jail until the final documents for extradition have been received.

Insull is Staggered.

Insull was staggered when he was informed that the American legation had formally asked the Greek authorities to detain him until extradition formalities are arranged. Up until 10 o'clock, when the message from Washington arrived, his lawyer here had assured him that he would be released tomorrow and he seemed to believe this.

Late tonight he was despondent and pleaded to be allowed to move from the prison to a hotel or hospital because of his age and ill health. Insull is 73. This request was not granted, but the chief of police took him from his cell and made available for him a large and comfortable room with bath in the prison building overlooking the bay.

Previous to this, Insull had been permitted to have a special bed brought into his cell. Arrangements were also made to have special food brought in to him. Insull's pocketbook, it was divulged by police, contained 6,000 Italian lire [$307.80], 10 English pounds [$34.55], and $300 in American currency. Tonight the prisoner only a sandwich and a glass of soda water.

Says He's Persecuted.

When he was arrested, Mr. Insull protested bitterly that he was innocent of any crime and that he was being "persecuted." He said he had come to Athens merely as a tourist and that he "finds the climate delightful."

"I should not be wanted by the police," Insull declared. "I have not committed any crimes. The failure of my companies was not fraudulent. I have just been unfortunate and lost lots of money—over a hundred million dollars of my own.

"After the crash I went to Paris and afterwards I intended to visit the orient on pleasure. I learn now that I am accused of breaking the law. I have not embezzled or concealed any sum. The question which arises is one of civil law.

"This whole affair is a result of a thirst for vengeance on the part of my enemies. The truth will out finally."

Tries to Deny Identity.

Mr. Insull's arrest took place this morning in the highly decorated hall of the Hotel Grand Bretagne, Athens' showiest hostelry. Two police agents with flowing mustaches and Balkan swords entered the hotel quietly and informed him that they had come to escort him to the police station.

Insull objected. He denied his identity. He asked to see a proper warrant for his arrest. There was, of course, no warrant, but the Balkan gendarmes would not be denied and in the end made an exit from the hotel with their distinguished captive.

According to the announcement of the police, it was not a formal "arrest." They merely took Insull into "security," ostensibly because his visa was not in order, but the former Chicago magnate apparently failed to appreciate this fine distinction. He protested vehemently against being incarcerated in a cell.

Hires a Lawyer.

But arrest on the charge of a faulty passport, police pointed out, calls only for a 48 hour detention, at the end of which the culprit usually is released. They said that it was not unlikely that Insull could have secured freedom after the statutory 48 hours ran out. In fact, a Greek lawyer whom Insull immediately retained following his arrest quickly got to work to secure his release. He was reported as having boasted that he would have his client out of jail by tomorrow.

"I have demanded of the authorities that Mr. Insull be released tomorrow," he said. "There has been no formal charge against him and the passport will easily be fixed up within 24 hours."

These calculations, however, were upset by the arrival of the American request for extradition. The question now to be settled is whether the extradition treaty between the United States and Greece, which has been signed but on which there has been no exchange of ratifications, is yet in force.

Foreign office experts tonight are also studying Greek law to see if the prisoner could be extradited to Italy, with which Greece has an extradition treaty, and then extradited from Italy to America. No opinion on this had been given out at a late hour.

May be Called "Undesirable."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TRIESTE, Italy, Oct. 10.—A high Greek official in Athens, who was reached by telephone tonight, said Samuel Insull will be deported as an undesirable citizen.

Should he return to Jugoslavia or Bulgaria, he will be arrested immediately and deported also. It is said that he thus would become a man without a country and one whom no one wants. What action Turkey would take is not known. It was also suggested that he might go to the island of Corfu [Greek].

In any case, deportation is likely to require several days.

Insull arrived in Athens at 12:45 p. m. Sunday on the Orient express, which left Milan, Italy, at 10:20 a. m. Friday. This was ascertained definitely today.

Italian police watched every move that Insull made while he was on Italian soil. They knew that he crossed the frontier at 8 p. m. Friday into Jugo-Slavia. Italian police checked him out on his American passport, which was visaed in Milan and was in perfect order. Jugoslav police, also on the alert, checked him in. Neither had any instructions to arrest Insull. Such instructions could have been easily executed.

FAILS TO STIR BROTHER

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ORILLIA, Ont., Oct. 10.—Martin J. Insull today learned of the arrest of his brother, Samuel, in Greece. With well schooled reserve, he refrained from any comment.

Insull evidently left his Thanksgiving day dinner to hear the news. This is the dominion holiday, similar to the festival held in the United States next month.

The news was telephoned to this village of 7,000 on the outskirts of the Georgian bay backwoods country from THE TRIBUNE office in Chicago. The reporter telephoned for Insull at Miss Anne McLean's boarding house, where he has been staying with his wife since last June.

At the boarding house, a former private residence on a side street, the matronly proprietress gave the usual reply received by inquiring American newspapermen—"Mr. Insull is not in." She was asked to tell Insull that the reporter had news from Greece.

Ten minutes later, Insull, who for years kept his doors closed to newspapermen, was in the lobby of the reporter's hotel. He climbed two flights of stairs and sat on a bed.

"What's the news?" he asked, crossing his knickered legs.

He was told of the arrest and of his brother being held for deportation. His heavy eyebrows raised, but there was not a move of the mouth wrinkles under his heavy nose.

"If Samuel has so much travel money, maybe you can make a touch," it was suggested to Insull, referring to his comments yesterday about rent worries.

The former utilities executive smiled wearily, and held his tongue warily. He thanked his interviewer, or maybe he was the interviewer, and left the hotel to enter the automobile of William H. Barker of Highland Park at the curb for a ride back to the boarding house.

Extradition Advice from Lawyers Revealed.

addressed to Samuel Insull Jr. at Milan on Oct. 7, said:

"Is Ketting with father?"

The reference was to Ogden Ketting, once secretary to the elder Insull but of late years fiscal agent for the Insull enterprises in Europe.

Attorney Porter's face was flushed when he emerged from the grand jury room, where he spent an uncomfortable ten minutes, according to the prosecutors. To reporters who approached him Porter said: "I don't care to be interviewed."

He was told that there had been some discussion as to whether a lawyer can ethically advise a client to flee from justice, and was asked whether he wished to express an opinion on this.

"I have said that I don't care to be interviewed," he shot back.

McEnroe Tells of Fund.

P. J. McEnroe, former vice president of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., testified that he sent "nine or ten thousand dollars" to Mrs. Samuel Insull, in Paris, after she and her husband had gone there, leaving the utilities empire debacle behind them. He said he obtained this money from the firm of Isham, Lincoln & Beale and that it came from a special account which he did not explain.

Prosecutor Swanson was unable to find out anything about further transmittals of money, but he said he was investigating a report that $75,000 had just been sent to Insull through a bank. O'Keefe and the lawyers questioned denied that they knew anything about the sending of $25,000 which was reported to have been received by Insull in Athens.

After the grand jurors had gone home Mr. Swanson said:

"In my examination of these lawyers I was unable to gain any information regarding any conversations they had pertaining to these cablegrams. They claimed that any such conversations were privileged communications between lawyer and client. They also refused to bring certain memoranda and papers relating to the cablegrams on the ground that they were privileged."

Asked About Next Step

Asked about the possibility of proceeding against the lawyers on charges of obstructing justice through aiding and a abetting a fugitive Mr. Swanson said:

"That whole matter is still under consideration. My investigation has not been completed, and until it is I will have nothing to announce in that connection."

"Will Attorney Cooke be taken before the grand jury?" the prosecutor was asked.

"We intend to make inquiry of everybody who knows anything about this matter before we get through," said Mr. Swanson. "This will include the bookkeeper, whose name we know, who can tell us about that special account from which Isham, Lincoln & Beale obtained the nine or ten thousand dollars for Mrs. Insull."

CABLE MESSAGES SENT INSULLS AND THE CODE

The code in which cablegrams were sent to Samuel Insull and Samuel Insull Jr. by his Chicago secretary is a simple one devised by a rearrangement of the alphabet. To work the code take the letter of the jumbled message and substitute the letter shown in black face. For instance the jumbled letters MGXDHX resolve into PORTER. Under the code the alphabet runs thus:

I N D T Z J O E U Y H V P A W L F X B S M K G R C Q
A B C D E F G H I J K L M N O P Q R S T U V W X Y Z

The code letters were grouped and spaced according to the words they represented. See if you can decode the messages. The official translation is printed beneath each message.

OPERA SINGER CALLS ON INSULL WHILE IN ITALY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MILAN, Italy, Oct. 10.—Cesare Formichi, baritone and former member of the Chicago opera companies in the days before the Insull crash, called upon Samuel Insull and spent an hour with him while the former utilities chief was stopping in Milan on his way to Greece, it was learned today.

Formichi spoke in a friendly way of the fallen financier, the collapse of whose plans resulted in heavy financial losses to many of the opera singers with whom he was friendly. A similar attitude was taken by Giorgio Polacco, former conductor of the Chicago opera, and his wife, Edith Mason, the soprano.

"We don't blame him a bit," said Polacco. "It is our own fault if we are completely ruined now. I had all of my money invested in Insull stocks, as did my wife."

Friends say that the Polaccos lost $500,000 in the Insull collapse.

ADDITIONS TO CODE

In addition to the letter code, certain words with secret meanings were to have been employed in the communications between the fugitive Insull and his Chicago representatives. The word for State's Attorney Swanson was "padlock." "Paint" was to mean the federal grand jury and "painter" to mean the state grand jury. None of these words was used in the four cablegrams.

"Aslant," as an arbitrary word in the code, means Saml. Insull; Aluding is Insull Jr.; Ashpole is Gilbert E. Porter; Accoustom is George A. Cooke; T. D. G. M. is "Stop."

GUARD WIFE AND SON OF INSULL JR. ON GOLD COAST

Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. and her son, Samuel Insull III., 16 months old, are being closely guarded against possible intruders in their apartment at 1242 Lake Shore drive, it was learned yesterday.

At the door of the building a uniformed doorman stands. Just inside the entrance, in the foyer, stands a private detective employed by the Insulls. Another man stands guard over the house phone and the elevator. He will take no passengers to the Insull apartment without Mrs. Insull's order. No one is allowed to call the Insull apartment over the house phone.

The private detective said he was employed "to see that no one gets into the Insull apartment."

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

MONTE CARLO, Oct. 10.—Monte Carlo's new $2,000,000 sporting club will not open this season, due to the lack of operating funds. This gambling palace was scheduled to open for the first time in December. Baron de Richter, a casino official, said today, however, that it has been decided to await the return of "better times." In the meantime the old sporting club must do for those who like to gamble in more exclusive surroundings.

Find Money Was Relayed Through Paris Bank.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

PARIS, Oct. 10.—The $25,000 cabled to Samuel Insull at Athens last Saturday came from America, after all, and was merely relayed through Paris, investigation by THE TRIBUNE here today indicated.

The money was sent to the American Express company at Athens by the Morgan branch bank here, but THE TRIBUNE understands that the sum had previously been cabled from America. According to the informant, the money was sent in the name of Mrs. Insull.

Whether this was just a blind to cover some American agent or whether the money was taken from a bank account in Mrs. Insull's name in Chicago it was impossible to ascertain here.

Silent on $75,000 Fund.

Regarding the $75,000 reported to have been brought to his father by Samuel Insull Jr., nothing has been learned here so far. If young Insull did bring the money, it probably was carried in such form that there was no record available in Paris—that is, in cash, negotiable securities, or travelers' checks. Young Insull refused to comment on the report tonight.

All the strategy and behavior of the Insull family recently would seem to indicate that they anticipated having their regular income from America cut off sooner or later and, to make up for it, laid by a substantial sum of cash which would enable them to live for an indefinite period if carefully handled.

Economy certainly is the order of the day in the Insull family. Young Insull in chatting with this correspondent tonight declared that he is a habitue of small restaurants in Paris "where you get a good meal for practically nothing."

Economizes on Smoking.

He plaintively inquired if there is any good French smoking tobacco. Told that there was not, but that American tobaccos could be obtained, he replied: "Yes, but they are quite expensive, aren't they?" He said that he had innured himself to French cigarets and even was getting to like them.

Young Insull refused to offer any comment on his father's arrest in Athens. He broke the "no statement" rule, however, to the extent of affirming that he is going back to Chicago in November and that he has not been questioned or bothered in any way by the French police.

Questioned regarding a letter relating to Insull's plans, which the elder man sent to his wife from Italy and which was intercepted, he said that he knew nothing of it. Young Insull also described as a "mild relapse" the bronchial trouble which nearly caused his mother's death a few weeks ago.

Letter Bares Advice to Flee.

The letter from Insull to his wife, the former Gladys Wallis of the stage, disclosed that the fallen magnate acted on the advice of counsel in fleeing to Greece.

"My darling Gladys," he wrote. "Tonight I am feeling as if I am going on a real adventure. I am going by plane to Saloniki, Greece, and shall arrive there tomorrow, Friday, evening. Then I am going to take a train to Athens.

"All these changes have been made on the best advice and Junior will tell you all the details. My advice to you is to stay at your present hotel for the present. It is the only thing you can do on account of the situation with Juliette. Probably later on you will feel like moving to Rome in anticipation of spending Christmas with me in Athens. However, Junior will discuss these matters with you.

Gives Financial Advice.

"He may telegraph you to pay the American Express company in Paris for account of their Milan office about $2,800 out of the $4,000 in your dollar account at Morgan & Co. Of course, the Morgans would attend to this for you and the balance of the $4,000 you should tell Morgan & Co. to credit to your regular franc account, or it may be that Junior, instead of telegraphing, may arrange the matter another way after he reaches Paris. It should leave about $1,200 to be transferred to your regular franc account.

"What I am doing is advised as the wisest thing for me to do. I feel very badly about leaving you, but there is nothing else for me to do, in view of the advice I received this morning before we left Turin. My address in Athens will be care of American Express. My telegraphic address will be Insull, Amexco, Athens. I shall wire you as soon as I get there, which will be before you receive this letter, unless by chance this letter is delivered Saturday morning, as there is no chance of your hearing from me from Athens before Saturday evening.

Calls Son "Tower of Strength."

"I am afraid that you have had an awful time with reporters, but it will all be over by Saturday night, and I am hoping Junior will be with you Saturday night or Sunday morning. I am so glad he is over here. He has been a tower of strength through these terrible days. I feel very sad at heart tonight, mainly on your account, but my courage has not left me, and when these dark days are over we will have some happy times together.

"With best love. From your devoted husband. SAM."

Status of Treaty with Greece Is Told.

State's Attorney Swanson said last night that one or more of his assistants would be sent to Athens, Greece, where Samuel Insull Sr. is in custody, to assist with the proceedings to extradite the former utility magnate for trial in Chicago.

Immediately upon receipt of a telegram from Acting Gov. Fred E. Sterling at Springfield giving official notification of Insull's arrest, Prosecutor Swanson replied with a request that the state department be asked to urge Greece to hold the prisoner until "messengers and the necessary papers for his extradition arrive."

Mr. Swanson said he would not send anybody until he ascertains "the exact situation." He had not definitely decided on the men for the journey, but one of these, he said, would be Andrew J. Vlachos. Mr. Vlachos, an assistant state's attorney of Greek descent, was educated in Athens and is acquainted with high Greek officials.

The Extradition Situation.

State department officials at Washington, according to dispatches, were confident that Insull can be extradited even though the extradition treaty between Greece and this country is not technically effective as yet, the certificates of ratification not having been formally exchanged.

This belief had prompted the department to request Insull's "provisional arrest and detention, with a view to extradition." The American legation in Athens replied that the Greek police had already arrested him for passport irregularities. Insull can be held only 48 hours on this charge, but the Athens police can hold him for the United States government until the arrival of a presidential warrant.

The extradition treaty has been ratified by the senate of both Greece and the United States and it has been published in the official gazette at Athens. Although the treaty itself specifically provides that the certificates of ratification must be exchanged before it become effective, state department officials declared that sovereign powers have a wide latitude in construing extradition matters and that they do not expect serious difficulty in obtaining Insull's removal from Greece to the United States.

Contention of Officials.

It is their contention that since the treaty was concluded and ratified by both the high contracting powers prior to Insull's indictment, it should apply to him, and any efforts on the part of his attorneys to block extradition on the ground that the treaty cannot be retroactive will be resisted.

The certificate of ratification is expected to arrive from Greece within a few days and it will be exchanged for the American certificate in Washington, in accordance with the terms of the treaty.

The treaty sets forth the crimes for which persons standing accused or convicted may be extradited. Among these are embezzlement, larceny and "fraud or breach of trust by a bailee," the charges on which Insull was indicted on Oct. 4.

Delegations Visit Swanson.

State's Attorney Swanson was visited by several Greek delegations yesterday and informed that published stories to the effect that Balkan officials were notoriously susceptible to bribes were untrue as far as Greece is concerned. The prosecutor's visitors were indignant about this reflection upon their national character and assured Mr. Swanson that the Greek government would cooperate with alacrity.

They proposed massmeetings—encouraged by the state's attorney—at which resolutions would be adopted and sent to Greece, urging the Athens government to do everything in its power to hasten the extradition of Insull. Many of the visitors were losers in Insull enterprises.

Insull Pension Is $21,000; Simpson Tells Arrangement

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Details of the pension arrangement assuring a life income for Samuel Insull were made public here tonight at the River club, by James Simpson, chairman of the board for the three large utility operating companies formerly headed by Insull.

Mr. Simpson denied that the elder Insull is on the pay roll, except for the pension money, but he admitted that Samuel Insull Jr. continues on the pay roll. He said that the younger Insull, who is now in Europe, would return to Chicago not later than Nov. 10.

Simpson Makes Statement.

Mr. Simpson's statement, made in in the presence of Attorney John P. Wilson, was as follows:

"Concerning the pension arrangements with Mr. Samuel Insull, I wish to make the following statement:

"For the purpose of securing the interest, loyalty and continuity of service on the part of their employés and officers, the three operating companies —Commonwealth Edison company, Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Gas Subsidiary corporation each established, many years ago, a service annuity system to provide for the maintenance and support of their employés after they ceased to be on the pay roll, the amount to be paid in each case being dependent on the employé's age and length of service under the rules of the service annuity system.

Insull Pension Qualifications.

"Mr. Insull, by reason of his age and length of service, was qualified to receive the following pensions: Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, $6,000; Gas Subsidiary corporation, $3,000; Commonwealth Edison company, $6,000, and Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, $6,000, and from each of the two companies last named such additional pensions as the respective boards of said companies deemed appropriate and proper.

"On or about June 5, 1932, it was understood that Mr. Insull, because of his past services in the development and operation of said companies, should receive pensions from the several operating companies amounting in the aggregate to $50,000, effective as of Sept. 1, 1932; and action was taken by the several boards in keeping with that understanding.

Directors Revise Plan.

"However, the boards of the operating companies at meetings held since recent developments, took action, with Mr. Insull's concurrence, to reduce his pensions, making them conform with the amounts for which he is qualified by his age and length of service under the provisions of the service annuity systems without special action by the boards of directors, namely: Commonwealth Edison company, $6,000; Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, $6,000; Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, $6,000; and Gas Subsidiary corporation, $3,000; all effective as of Sept. 1, 1932.

"Mr. Samuel Insull, Jr., is vice chairman of the several operating companies above named and as such is on their pay roll. He is at present taking a much needed vacation after a long period of very close application to the business of these companies and will return to Chicago not later than Nov. 10 next as stated publicly by Judge Lindley of the Federal court several days ago at my request."

"MYSTERY MAN" ENTERS INSULL CASE IN EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Samuel Insull received a visit yesterday from a mysterious Londoner, who gave the name of Sigfried at her hotel. He flew from England for the conference. Its purpose, or further details of his identity, could not be learned.

Mystery in London.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A new Insull mystery cropped up here today concerning a man described as "Mr. S.," who flew to Paris yesterday to confer with Mrs. Insull and Samuel Insull Jr. The man returned to London tonight.

Extraordinary efforts were made to keep the identity of "Mr. S." and his mission secret. Samuel Insull's representatives in London, when called by THE TRIBUNE today, said they had never heard of Mr. S., but that several calls inquiring about him had come in.

Incidentally, it is reported here that a former British employé of Insull, who was discharged some time ago and since then is believed to have been used by Insull for confidential missions, happened to be in Paris the day Insull disappeared from there.

THE ZAHAROFF IN INSULL CABLE POWER IN EUROPE

Sir Basil Zaharoff, the "mystery man of Europe" and reputed to be among the wealthiest half dozen men in the world, is the man referred to in one of the four coded cablegrams sent to Samuel Insull from Chicago as revealed by the Cook county grand jury yesterday. The cable advised Insull to "see Zaharoff" in connection with the possibility of inducing Greece not to extradite him on the request of the United States "as a matter of policy."

A Greek citizen, Zaharoff is one of the most powerful individuals in Europe, although now largely in retirement. Past 80 years of age, he has severed nearly all connections with hundreds of industrial concerns, many of them munitions factories and battleship building yards, in which he made his great fortune. Zaharoff formerly was one of the great financial backers of the Monte Carlo casino. He formerly had thousands of business associates. He now associates with only half a dozen close friends.

Zaharoff became heart broken in 1926 when his bride of 18 months, the Duchess de Villafranca de los Caballeros, died. He had waited for years for the duchess' husband to die so he might marry her. On the duke's death in 1925 she married Zaharoff.

SUE TO RECOVER $31,000,000 OF INSULL SECURITY

Debenture Holders Open Fight for Collateral.

Charges that Insull Utility Investments, Inc., violated contracts with debenture holders in pledging its assets to obtain bank loans were contained in suits filed in the federal courts of Chicago and New York yesterday. The suits seek the recovery of approximately $15,000,000 in collateral from five Chicago banks and $16,000,000 similarly pledged with five New York banks.

The loans from the Chicago banks totaled approximately $26,000,000, according to the law firms of White & Hawxhurst and Jacobson, Merrick, Nierman, & Silbert, while the New York bank loans totaled in excess of $40,000,000.

The filing of the suits, approved by Federal Judge Walter S. Lindley, followed disclosures at hearings to discover assets of the bankrupt Insull Utility Investments, Inc., that more than half of the company's assets were pledged to obtain bank loans in an effort to stave off the crash that came anyway.

Charge Agreement Violated.

This, the suits allege, was in violation of a clause in the series B gold debentures that prohibited the pledging of any assets for any purpose without equally securing the outstanding debentures. Series B debentures totaled $60,000,000.

The complaints quote from a pamphlet concerning the organization of the investment company as follows:

"I [Samuel Insull] have taken what is, for me, a rather radical step with reference to the ownership by myself and members of my family of the securities of the various properties in which we are interested. I have consulted with my brother, Martin J. Insull; my son, Samuel Insull Jr., and other members of my family. I thought that the organization of the two companies [Insull Utility Investments, Inc., and Corporation Securities company] would serve as a rallying point of ownership and friendship. I thought I could trust boards of directors with the name of Insull, which is of more consequence to me than anything else in the world."

Loans from Five Chicago Banks.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company, the Harris Trust and Savings bank, the First National bank, the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, and the Northern Trust company are the Chicago banks which granted loans to the Insull concern.

The hearings to discover assets are to be resumed today before Judge Lindley. Samuel Insull Jr. has promised to return from Paris and testify concerning the companies some time in November, Judge Lindley has been informed.

FOUR ARRESTED IN SLAYING OF UNION TEAMSTER

Police Press Inquiry on Two Shootings.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Ben Cook, burglary, sentenced to 1 year to life in Pontiac reformatory; George Kane, crime against nature, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Feinberg.

Four men were under arrest last night at the Warren avenue police station in connection with the killing of Richard J. Roberts, member of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, local 705, Roberts' body, bullet riddled, was found in an alley in the rear of 2727 Lexington street yesterday morning.

Although union officials said that Roberts was only an unemployed member drawing benefits of $18 a week, the police asserted that he was a business agent of the local. They attributed his slaying to some trouble in the union ranks.

Second Shooting Discovered.

To support this theory they pointed out that John Hartnett, another member of the same organization, was in the Bridewell hospital with a bullet in one leg. Lieut. Frank Malone declared that the two shootings were linked. Hartnett denied that he had been shot in the affray which caused Roberts' death, maintaining that he was fired on as he was walking at Jackson boulevard and California avenue.

Roberts, it was learned late yesterday, was shot in the speakeasy of Thomas (Duke) Panton at 2942 West Van Buren street. John Glass, colored porter, one of the four in custody at the station, told the police of the shooting.

"There were four in a party at one table," he said. "One was Roberts. They were all drinking. A quarrel started and then there was shooting. Roberts fell. Then the others said they were going to take him to a hospital and went out with him."

Body Thrown in Alley.

Presumably Roberts died on the way and his body was thrown into the alley. It is believed by the police that Hartnett was one of the party. At any rate, the police said, he had sought medical aid from Dr. Michael Turek, 2757 West Van Buren street, much nearer the Panton saloon than the spot where he said he was shot.

Those held, in addition to Glass, are James Connolly, 1717 North Richmond street, an organizer for the teamsters and two men whose names were not disclosed. Mrs. Evelyn Mason, 1326 West Adams street, who was in Panton's place when the porter was taken into custody, was questioned but released when she convinced the police she knew nothing of the shooting.

Sought by the police are Panton, Thomas McDonnell, said to be an organizer for the union, and Casimir Duda, 2309 South Marshfield avenue.

Also sought are H. E. Woods, business agent for the oil wagon drivers' union, and James [Snipe] Walsh, of the truck drivers' union. Chief of Detectives Schoemaker sent out a message this morning asking for their arrest for questioning.

The teamsters' union headquarters is on the second floor of a two story residence at 220 South Ashland avenue, the first floor of which has been turned into a fort by Steve Sumner, 83 years old, boss of the milk wagon drivers' union, which has its headquarters there. Steel doors have been erected and machine guns placed to keep out gangsters who have tried to seize control of the milk wagon drivers' organization.

Police visited the headquarters of the teamsters' union on the floor above and were told that the shooting of the two members had no connection with any union trouble.

EINSTEIN WILL MOVE TO U. S.

EINSTEIN TAKES LIFE TASK WITH U. S. UNIVERSITY

Joins New Flexner School for Advanced Study.

New York, Aug. 10.—[Special.]—Dr. Abraham Flexner, director of the new Institute for Advanced Study, announced today that Prof. Albert Einstein, discoverer of the theory of relativity and widely regarded as the greatest scientific figure since Sir Isaac Newton, had accepted a life appointment as head of the institute's school of mathematics. Dr. Flexner said the institute will open next autumn and that it will be located at or near Princeton, N. J.

Prof. Einstein has been appointed professor of mathematical and theoretical physics. He will occupy a home in Princeton with Mrs. Einstein; will be in residence at the institute annually from Oct. 1 to April 15, and will make a yearly visit to Germany.

Whether he will become an American citizen is not known, although it is considered doubtful, since he has never given up his Swiss citizenship despite his years of scientific accomplishment in Germany.

Undecided This Winter.

He has not decided where he will spend this winter, but will use the time before assuming his duties at the institute to complete his work on the unified field theory, seeking to close the gap left by his early theory of relativity and solve the mystery of the nature of space, a task with which he has been occupied for several years. He may do some of this work during the coming winter at Mount Wilson, Pasadena, Cal., which he visited last winter.

Einstein will be accompanied here by his assistant, Dr. Walter Mayer of Berlin, who has been appointed associate in mathematics at the new institute.

Announcement was made also of the appointment of Prof. Oswald Veblen, generally recognized as one of the leading American mathematicians and until now professor of mathematics at Princeton university, as a professor in the institute's school of mathematics. Prof. Veblen already has assumed his new duties, and during the coming year will assist Dr. Flexner in preparing for the opening of the institute next autumn.

Exclusively Postgraduate.

The institute, it is announced, will be exclusively a postgraduate university, entirely separated from the "collegiate" activities of existing American higher education, and completely divorced from the "vocational" courses of American universities which Dr. Flexner criticized so severely in his recent book; it will be devoted to scholarship and research in the spirit of pure science without outside distractions.

Dr. Flexner intends to establish various schools in the institute—one by one, beginning with the school of mathematics, as men of real eminence in their fields become available to head these schools. In each case the school will be headed by men as prominent in their field as Einstein and Veblen in mathematics, or the school will not be established, it has been made clear.

Each school will consist of a few permanent appointees of such eminence, together with a number of assistants or students of promise. It is intended that there shall be a constant flow of young scholars and scientists to and from the institute, each remaining a year or a few years, and then making way for others while they themselves find permanent positions in other American institutions of higher learning.

Complaint Against Sanitary District Premature: Bowler

The joint complaint of Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin against the sanitary district, for which permission to file was granted yesterday by the United States Supreme court, was termed premature last night by President Thomas J. Bowler of the sanitary board. The complaint charges Illinois and the sanitary district with violation of the decree in the Lake Michigan diversion case. The court set Nov. 7 for a hearing.

"Although work on our sewage disposal program has been at a standstill for want of money since Jan. 1, we are not yet behind on our schedule," Mr. Bowler said. "Moreover, the Supreme court decree provides that until Dec. 31, 1935, we can continue to divert our present 8,500 cubic feet per second; thereafter until Dec. 31, 1938, we are to be limited to 5,000 cubic feet; after that date the maximum is to be 1,500 cubic feet.

No Buyers for Bonds.

"At worst we should not be in contempt for another year. By so much, at least, this complaint is premature. And even in such an extremity we could not well be held responsible. This work is to be done through a bond issue. The bonds are available, but there are no buyers.

"Meantime we have applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan of $36,500,000. Now that we have been enabled by legislation to put up our bonds as collateral, we have assurance that our request will be acted upon favorably. Approval is expected by the end of the week.

Saving Seen in New Plant.

"So far we have done a hundred million dollars' worth of work on a project that was originally estimated at two hundred and sixty-nine million. The best thing that has happened during this enforced delay has been the development through experiment by our own engineers of a new type of disposal plant that is expected to reduce the cost of the remainder of the program by 50 per cent. The new plants will substitute incineration for the slow and costly sludge beds previously used.

40,000 RE-EMPLOYED BY NEW YORK STATE FACTORIES IN MONTH

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A distinct improvement in factory employment in New York State was reported today by Industrial Commissioner Frances Perkins of the State Department of Labor.

Figures made public by Miss Perkins in her monthly report on employment conditions showed that about 40,000 factory workers in the state were re-employed between Aug. 15 and Sept. 15, effecting a rise of 5.5 per cent in this type of employment.

MARY DAHLBERG "ONLY FOOLING"; NOT ENGAGED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PALMA, Majorca, Oct. 10.—"I was only fooling," Mrs. Mary Dahlberg, divorced wife of Bror Dahlberg of Chicago, said today to deny her reported engagement to Thomas Roberts, Baltimore society man.

Mrs. Dahlberg explained that she had "announced" the engagement only to add zest to a gay party at the opening of "Las Mas," a fashionable club. This was the second time that she had announced her betrothal to an unsuspecting islander this year, but today she declared that Clifford Harmon, elderly air enthusiast, was the only person who had asked her to marry since her divorce.

Roberts was astounded to learn of the "engagement."

"Mary is a great little girl, but I never asked her to be my life partner," he said.

Mrs. Dahlberg continues to hold lively parties at her residence, the old Valldemosa monastery, where monks once held quiet devotions and where Chopin and George Sand sought retreat.

MICHIGAN TO ASK LOAN FROM R. F. C. TO AID JOBLESS

Lansing, Mich., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Acute need of Michigan municipalities for funds to meet growing welfare demands upon depleted city resources was recognized today by Gov. Wilber M. Brucker and other administration leaders when it was decided that the state will borrow in behalf of cities from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

The Detroit situation is considered the most desperate, with continuance of welfare relief to thousands of families dependent upon an immediate loan. Clarence E. Page, assistant corporation counsel, and William E. Curran, budget director, informed the state that $3,525,000 is needed for 1932.

Under R. F. C. rules only short term credit is extended, and a new loan will be applied for early in 1933, it was indicated. Detroit has an application in for the funds but cannot obtain them, it is believed, without the state's intervention, although one loan of $1,800,000 has been approved.

Under the plan worked out by the governor, Paul W. Voorhies, attorney general, and members of the state loan board, the state will pledge its faith and credit to obtain necessary loans for the cities, the municipalities making payment through withholding of state funds due them as automobile weight and gas taxes are distributed back to the local communities.

Welter and Deputy Sheriff Stanley Murray tonight interrupted a holdup of the Lone Tree roadhouse, eight miles west of Ottawa, engaged in a pistol battle with two bandits and captured both after wounding them. Welter and Murray were unharmed. The stickup men declined to disclose their names. A third member of the bandit crew, in an automobile outside when the firing began, escaped.

FRANK McERLANE BURIAL TODAY WITHOUT RITES

Frank McErlane, called by police Chicago's most vicious gangster, who died of pneumonia at Beardstown, Ill., several days ago, will be buried this morning without religious services. This was revealed last night by the undertaker handling the funeral.

A rule established some years ago by the Catholic diocese here was invoked in McErlane's case, it was understood. That rule forbids church rites at the funerals of notorious gangsters.

McErlane's body lay last night in the home of his mother, Mrs. Vincent McErlane, at 6941 Anthony avenue. Only a few friends were noticed calling at the house and but few floral pieces were seen. McErlane lay in an inexpensive casket. The funeral procession will start from the home at 10 o'clock this morning. Burial will be in Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

Cuba Fails to Celebrate Ten-Year War on Spain

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 10.—For the first time since the republic was declared, May 20, 1902, Cubans today did not celebrate the historic "Grito de Yara," commemorating the beginning of the ten years' war, 1868-'78, the first revolutionary strife against Spain for independence. Police and the army were on the alert because of reports that terrorists had designated the day to reopen activities against the government.

5 NAVY PLANES FORCED DOWN IN PACIFIC OCEAN

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Five planes of the Vs-15M squadron, attached to the U. S. S. Lexington, scouting force airplane carrier, were forced down at sea early tonight off San Clemente Island. Naval officials here said four were recovered, but one with two men aboard still was missing at 11 o'clock.

Three airplane carriers, the Lexington, Saratoga and Langley and half a dozen destroyers were searching the murky waters, playing searchlights through the mist in an effort to locate the missing plane with Lieutenant Edward C. Dyer, pilot, and an enlisted aviator named Chambers aboard.

Rear Admiral Harry E. Yarnell, commander of aircraft, battle force, said no detailed report of the accident had been made to him since the planes involved were attached to the scouting force, which is commanded by Rear Admiral John Halligan. Admiral Halligan is aboard the Lexington.

ALDERMEN AGREE TO $3,018,324 CUT IN PENSIONS

But Balk at Reduction of Judgment Fund.

The council finance committee agreed yesterday to reductions totaling $3,018,324 in the 1931 levies for three municipal pension funds, as recommended by the citizens' committee on public expenditures, but turned down the committee's request that the levy to meet judgment against the city be scaled down from $1,400,000 to $1,000,000.

The committee had refused previously to eliminate the $4,000,000 levy for the working cash fund, so that the citizens' committee obtained less than 50 per cent of the tax levy reductions which it set out to get after urging banks to buy no more tax warrants from the city until the levies were out.

Previous Cuts Made.

In addition to the reductions in pension fund levies authorized yesterday, the library and municipal tuberculosis sanitarium levies have been cut approximately $1,300,000, making the total reductions $4,311,322. This reduces the 1931 tax levies for all city purposes aside from those of the school board from $93,951,493 to $89,640,171, or 4.6 per cent. The old and new 1931 levies for pension purposes are as follows:

Fund.	Original levy.	Reduced to.
Police	$ 3,413,078	$2,620,000
Firemen	4,315,246	3,260,000
Civil Service	2,640,000	1,470,000
Totals	$10,368,324	$7,350,000

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman, stated at the finance committee meeting that of $150,128,000 worth of tax warrants sold by the city and school board directly to banks in the last four years, only $20,805,000 worth remained unredeemed. Of this latter amount $15,855,000 are 1931 warrants, in anticipation of taxes not yet placed in collection, so that only $4,950,000 worth of warrants sold to the banks are still unredeemed because of tax delinquency.

His figures included the warrant purchases, approximately $4,000,000 worth, made last week and yesterday to give city and school employés a half month's pay. They did not, however, take into account the banks' share of the $74,000,000 worth of warrants which various business houses of the city bought early in 1930 to keep the city government going at that time. The banks were pledged to take a third of those warrants, which were sold by the city, county and school board to the Cook County Tax Warrant trust.

"If the banks don't do any more for us than they have been doing lately," said Ald Clark, "we'll have to look elsewhere for money."

Consult Banks Today.

Representatives of the banks will be asked today just how much more they are willing to lend the city at a conference arranged by City Controller Szymczak, at which a subcommittee of aldermen will also be present.

The conference is principally to seek a way to meet the obligations of the city and school board on their bonded debt payments due on the first of the year, but the aldermen will also seek to learn how much they can expect in tax warrant purchases to provide money to make up back pay days. The city must pay $18,556,506 on Jan. 1 in principal and interest due on bonds and water certificates, while the school board must pay $4,186,684 on that date and $746,000 on Feb. 1, a grand total of $23,489,190.

WILL CO. BOARD VETOES VOTE ON ECONOMY PLAN

Supervisors of Will county voted unanimously yesterday to reject a petition to allow the voters to ballot Nov. 8 on abolishing the board of supervisors as an economy measure. The petition, signed by 10,981 persons, asked that the county be given the right to decide on a proposition to centralize the township and county governments under three county commissioners.

Attorney Joseph Keig, retained by the supervisors to examine the petition, reported that he had found 1,700 fraudulent signatures, which brought the number of signers below the necessary one-fifth of the county voters, he said. The supervisors voted on Sept. 14 to place the question on the ballot, but later decided to reconsider their action.

Seize Suspect After Fake Tax Lists Are Discovered

Christopher Bray, 4500 Woodlawn avenue, a former employé of the old board of assessors, was arrested yesterday after it had been found that he had notarized about 100 personal property schedules which were turned in to Assessor J. L. Jacobs. Bray has no commission as a notary public. Further mystery was added to the case by the discovery that the names of the supposed property owners on the schedules were largely fictitious. Police advanced a theory that Bray might be deranged.

CHECKS MAILED TO TEACHERS FOR TWO WEEKS' PAY

School employés will get checks for two weeks of their overdue pay today. Employés in the office of Charles E. Gilbert, secretary of the board of education, worked overtime last night to mail out the checks after a tax warrant transaction by which the funds were obtained had been completed.

The checks, which will be distributed at schools today, are for the first half of April. The total pay roll amounts to $2,401,220, of which the board received $2,155,000 by the sale of tax warrants in which the city treasury acted as an intermediary for downtown banks.

The board gave the city 1932 tax warrants, and the banks took 1931 school warrants which were already held in the city treasury. The division of these warrants into denominations of $1,000 and up and their signature by city and school officials were completed yesterday and word was given to send out the pay checks.

Bandits Seize Cashier, Get $900 Cash, $12,000 Checks

Fisher was halted by the bandits as he left the company's office to take the money and checks to a loop bank. They forced him into their automobile, took the money and drove to Washtenaw avenue and 26th street, where Fisher was thrown from the car.

ASSESSED VALUE OF COUNTY TOWN REALTY CUT 21%

Jacobs Says Tax Trim Is Now Up to Governments

The 1931 quadrennial reassessment has reduced real estate assessed valuations in the country towns of Cook county an average of 21 per cent below the 1930 figures, Assessor J. L. Jacobs announced yesterday as his office finished the last of the real estate books for the country towns.

Taking into account the increased amount of personal property placed on the rolls during the quadrennial reassessment, Mr. Jacobs estimated that real estate tax bills can be reduced from 30 to 40 per cent below 1930 levels if the major local governments comply with demands of the citizens' committee on public expenditures for reductions in their 1931 levies. Tax bills for 1931 will be sent out Jan. 1.

Reduction of $151,000,000.

Real estate assessed valuations in Cook county outside of Chicago total $557,825,630 for 1931, as compared with $708,930,459 for 1930 and $679,486,929 for 1928, when the last reassessment was made. These figures do not include those portions of the country towns lying within Chicago. Assessments in those districts are to be made this year by Mr. Jacobs' office and not by the country town assessors who formerly made them.

Final assessed valuation totals were announced yesterday for thirteen country town townships. The figures for the remaining seventeen townships were completed ten days ago.

REED CHARGES PRESIDENT IS FALSE PROPHET

Delivers Bitter Reply to Des Moines Speech.

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Speaking tonight in the Coliseum where President Hoover last week opened his drive for reelection, former Senator James A. Reed of Missouri tonight delivered a bitter attack on the President, his policies and his personality.

Mr. Reed made absolute denials of some of the statements contained in the Hoover speech and called the chief executive's address as a whole "a series of incorrect statements and unjustifiable deductions."

Prophecies of President.

After declaring that a long series of prophecies by the President to the effect that the business depression was to be of short duration had come to naught, the former senator asked the question: "What has Hoover accomplished?" and answered:

"If he has accomplished anything, it is the establishment of a species of capitalistic communism. For I assert that it is as communistic in principle to take the money from the people by taxation and loan it and the government credit to assist great banks, trust companies, railroads, and other large institutions, because they are in distress, as it would be to impound the national wealth to take care of the mass of men and women who are also in distress."

In discussing the President's sensational statement that the United States was once within two weeks of going off the gold standard, had not he and his associates taken steps to prevent it, Mr. Reed said:

"I regret to say that that statement was absolutely untrue. The fact is that we were never within $2,700,000,000 of the lawful suspension of gold payments. For that I have the authority of a great economist who specializes on the subject."

Quotes Senator Glass.

The former senator then declared that Senator Carter Glass, former secretary of the treasury, had called attention to the fact that the only danger to the gold standard was from unjustifiable measures proposed by the administration, among which "was the proposition to permit the unliquid and ineligible assets of the banks to be dumped into the federal reserve system and to make eligible for rediscount millions of dollars of foreign securities which had been dumped into interior banks by the high pressure salesmanship of great banks which assume the overlordship of our financial structure."

It was an astounding thing that the President, in an effort to win an election, should "spread false rumors" about the reserve banks, Mr. Reed said.

"His statement has done infinite harm and if credited will send a shiver of alarm throughout the financial and industrial world," he declared.

Heavy Breaks in Stocks.

Next he called attention to the fact that the speech of the President was followed, the following day, by heavy breaks in stocks, bonds and commodities.

As to the Garner so-called pork bill, of which the Republicans have made much political capital, Senator Reed declared it was nothing more than a followup of the Hoover $3,000,000,000 public works program advocated first in November, 1928.

"I might paraphrase the creed of the Mohammedan: 'There is but one god mammon and Hoover is its prophet.'

"In his Des Moines speech and elsewhere in the campaign Mr. Hoover told the people that he now has plans to restore prosperity and that these plans will certainly work. It will be observed, however, that none of them can be demonstrated until after the election. What we are asked to accept, therefore, is Mr. Hoover's prophecies as to the future.

Reliability of Prophet.

"The test of the reliability of a prophet is the way his prophecies have turned out."

The Missouri ex-senator then read a number of statements made by the President to the effect that the depression was soon to end and that employment would soon be on the upgrade. These "prophecies" extended over 1929, 1930 and part of 1931. Then the speaker continued:

"But Hoover was not the only prophet. All the lesser prophets of his cabinet were similarly seized with the gift of foresight. Mellon declared that wages would not be reduced, and then ordered a 10 per cent reduction in the aluminum works.

"Davis, secretary of labor, asserted that unemployment had ceased and men were going back to work. That was his political comealong, somewhat similar to the recent lottery exploitation. Mills, Lamont, all of them gathered about Hoover and substantiated all of the false and foolish prophecies he had made.

"Senator Watson in the senate declared in substance that within a year after the signing of the Grundy tariff bill, prosperity would be again at flood tide.

"Surely the time has come when we should cease to place confidence in either the prophecies or schemes of Mr. Hoover. His predictions have come to naught.

"On October 4, in this hall, the President delivered an address. Its exordium was a pathetic account of his tribulation as an Iowa farm boy. In tearful number he told us of the hardships the farmer suffered in 1870. His secretary, Mr. Mills, tells the farmer that Mr. Hoover was born on an Iowa farm and there learned about farm mortgages. But Mr. Hoover's biographer states that in 1879, Mr. Hoover was only five years of age; that his father was a blacksmith; that his experience on a farm consisted in living with his uncle one year, at the age of nine; that he left Iowa to join an uncle who was in the business of promoting the sales of western lands.

Experience With Mortgages.

"It was in the office of this land speculator that Mr. Hoover's experience with farm mortgages began. His deep sympathy for the farmer and his horror of farm mortgages can hardly be attributed to his twelve-months' residence on his uncle's Iowa farm. We are much more likely to find the cause of his bleeding heart in his anxiety to get the farmer vote.

"The body of Mr. Hoover's speech is a series of incorrect statements and unjustifiable deductions. But there is one thread which runs through it all, namely, that it is the duty of the United States to sustain the financial and economic structure of the world.

"That is not a new theory of Mr. Hoover as I will show—it has existed for many years. It is naturally the view of a man who spent twenty-three years of his adult life abroad; who exploited corporations in Australia, Russia, China, New Zealand, and Great Britain; who was a member of more than a score of foreign syndicates; whose house and home was in London; who was registered as a qualified voter there [whether he voted or not I do not know]; who never voted in the United States until he was 45 years old; who made his fortune in these foreign lands; who came here with a scheme to reduce the price of American farm products and who, without authority of law, carried his scheme into effect and thus laid the foundation for agricultural bankruptcy.

Thoughts Turn Abroad.

"Just as naturally as the crow flies home to roost, as the fox returns to his home, as the coyote, catching the scent of the sheep pen where he has often fed—so Hoover's thoughts turn to the lands where he spent his manhood years, accumulated his fortune and where reside his friends and his victims—just as he there organized his syndicates and sold his watered stock to the people, telling them wondrous tales of riches to be gained, he now promises the country financial prosperity through the loaning of the national credit to big banks, big syndicates, big trusts, upon the theory that those who have exploited the country will take care of the people."

Mr. Reed declared that President Hoover had taken the public into his confidence and told them three hidden facts which, in Mr. Reed's opinion, were not hidden at all. One was the danger to the gold standard. The second was the fact that the yield from income tax payments would be greatly reduced this year, and the third, that there would be a great governmental deficit. The first he branded as untrue, and the second and third as no secrets to the public.

Calls Statement Untrue.

"Mr. Hoover charges that Gov. Roosevelt promises a reduction of farm tariffs and asserts that the Democrats will reduce agricultural tariffs after they come into power. I denounce the statement as a willful perversion of the truth. Gov. Roosevelt has never said that he favors a reduction of tariff on farm products which can be shipped into the United States.

"What the Democratic platform has said—what Gov. Roosevelt has said—is that the Grundy tariff bill, which rests upon almost everything conceivable, is too high; that it has brought retaliatory tariffs and destroyed our foreign markets for both farm and manufactured products. That is a very different thing from saying that the tariff against importation of farm products should be taken off, a fact which Mr. Hoover and his advisors well knew when they prepared his false statement to be delivered in the agricultural belt of the country.

"The Democratic party in both houses has supported measures to bar competitive farm products and their substitutes. Speaking for myself, if we are to have a tariff for the protection of the manufacturers of things that the farmer must buy, then the farmer should receive an equivalent protection. That he cannot receive because he is an exporter rather than an importer, but insofar as the inequality can be reduced, we stand for giving him that protection.

An Unsound Currency.

"Mr. Hoover charged in substance and effect that the Democratic party is committed to the policy of creating an unsound currency and an unstable financial situation. He bases that statement upon the introduction of certain bills in congress which never passed. As a matter of fact—and Mr. Hoover knows the fact—there were some Republicans and some Democrats who introduced measures which might have been injurious, but that fact committed neither party to any proposition to destroy the stability of our financial structure. And Mr. Hoover knows that our candidate is committed to no such policies as he charges.

"Mr. Hoover charges the Democratic party seeks to ruin the country by the public building and the public improvement bill commonly known as the Garner bill. Regardless of the merits or demerits of that measure, which I have not time to discuss, it is enough to say that if the Garner bill is a "pork barrel bill" then Mr. Hoover is in the lard up to his eyes. Indeed, he is the responsible author of that kind of legislation.

"On Nov. 21, 1928, at a conference of governors held in New Orleans, he advocated the adoption of a program for the expenditure of three billion dollars on public works in order to take care of unemployment when it should arise. In consonance with that recommendation Mr. Hoover's officials prepared a list of public buildings and works which they asked to have adopted by congress. The Garner bill simply puts this proposal of Mr. Hoover into effect.

Denies Hoover Ever Farmed.

"I invite your attention to the picture of Mr. Hoover weeping over the misfortune of the American farmer. I speak from the record and I shall begin at the beginning. Every statement I make can be sustained by the record. Mr. Hoover had never been a farmer; he had been a promoter of mines and mining stocks, mostly rotten."

After reading testimony of Mr. Hoover before a senate committee in 1917, in which the latter told of living nearly twenty-five years abroad, Mr. Reed continued:

"Upon the floor of the senate Senator Phelan, who was defending Hoover, admitted an article by Will Irwin, published June 25, 1917, and eulogizing Mr. Hoover, had been inspired. The article tells how Hoover left China to form in London a partnership with an Englishman.

"The foundation of this firm was in the Chinese coal field but they functioned in other quarters of the world. It is hard to describe in one word Hoover's niche in the mining industry. He describes himself as a mining engineer and indeed he is among the leaders in that profession. Yet he was from this time forth an entrepreneur, a French word for which we have no exact equivalent. He laid out mining enterprises, found the capital for them and managed them.

"We do have something that is mighty near an equivalent for 'entrepeneur.' As the word is translated for me the meaning is 'promoter.'"

"In his testimony before the committee of the senate and the house, Mr. Hoover asserted that prices must be regulated for the benefit of the consumer; that they were entirely too high and that a fixed price should be set in order to keep prices at a lower level.

Congress Rejects Proposal.

"At that time wheat was selling at $3.40 a bushel. Mr. Hoover suggested that the price be fixed at $1.50 a bushel. Congress declined to pass such a law. But a bill supported by Mr. Hoover passed to prevent hoarding. And Mr. Hoover was given authority to license all large dealers. The sole purpose of the law was to prevent hoarding and a food shortage in this country.

"In order to encourage wheat production, congress passed a bill guaranteeing a minimum price for wheat. And to induce the farmers to plant and insure them against a possible loss because of the possible speedy ending of the war, congress passed a law guaranteeing a minimum price of $2 for their wheat, which was changed a couple of weeks afterwards to $2.20 by a committee provided for in the bill.

"Mr. Hoover was authorized to license the grain dealers, millers and other great dealers. He proceeded at once to make the minimum price fixed by congress the maximum price which should be paid. He compelled the grain dealers under threat of forfeiture of their licenses to pay that particular price.

"Under that arbitrary order the farmer received at his home station from $1.60 to $1.80 per bushel.

Wheat $3.50 to $5 Abroad.

"At the same time wheat was being sold in the European markets from $3.50 to $5 per bushel. That unjust ruling by Hoover left no place for the American farmer to sell a bushel of grain in the domestic market except at the arbitrary price fixed by Hoover.

"Mr. Hoover's regulation of prices was for the benefit of England, Italy, France, and Belgium. Thus did he carry out the plans he brought with him to the United States—viz.: to beat down American farm prices for the benefit of Great Britain and her allies."

The former senator next attacked the administration of the farm board money, which he said, was "largely wasted."

"Clearly enough there must be a change of policy," he said. "Seven years Hoover has been in position of command. Evey time he has uttered a word, written a pamphelt, sent a telegram or indited a message he has succeeded in breaking the market.

"Again I quote the pathetic wail of Senator Fess; 'every time the administration gives out an optimistic statement about business conditions the market immediately drops.' And once more I quote the confession of the Republican party as it stands at the bar of public opinion; 'we meet in a period of widespread distress and of economic depression that has swept the world. The emergency is equal only to that of a great war. The human suffering occasioned may well exceed that of a period of actual conflict.'

"Under these circumstances, common sense demands a change of administration. The postmasters cry, 'don't change horses while you are crossing the stream.' That expression was first uttered by Abraham Lincoln. It had some applicability to him and to his times. But unfortunately the man in the White House bears no resemblance whatever to the great emancipator.

"What we need most of all in America is a man whose every heartbeat is for America, who faces toward this country, who thinks in American terms. The man we have named has no divided allegiance. He has but one country, the United States of America; but one flag, the stars and stripes. The task before him is Herculean.

"To extricate this country from the morass in which it has been involved will require the highest degree of statesmanship. Yet I venture to prophesy that when the ballots have been counted on the eighth day of next November and Roosevelt's election assured, the sun of hope and prosperity will emerge above the horizon of the dark night through which we have been passing."

COOLIDGE CALLS G. O. P. CHANCES FOR VICTORY GOOD

Opens Campaign Tonight in New York.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Calvin Coolidge arrived at the Grand Central station this afternoon and said that in his opinion Republican chances of victory this fall were "good."

The former President, in an address tomorrow night at Madison Square Garden, will officially start the Republican campaign in this state. He came to the city today to attend the funeral of Darwin P. Kingsley, chairman of the board of the New York Life Insurance company.

"Will you answer any questions for newspaper men?" he was asked.

"No questions," was the clipped reply.

A Bold Newspaper Man.

Another newspaper man stepped forward and asked:

"What do you think of the Republican chances this year?"

Mr. Coolidge turned upon him and said:

"Didn't you just hear me say no questions? Of course, I think the chances are good, but that is no excuse for you to have asked me."

With that the former President walked down the platform, and, according to reports, drove to the Waldorf.

With Mr. Coolidge speaking tomorrow night, his first campaign address in four years, the Republican party today intensified its campaign to carry the state for President Hoover and Col. William J. Donovan, its candidate for governor.

See Ticket Strengthened.

The mayoralty situation has finally been straightened out and in Lewis H. Pounds, former borough president of Brooklyn, the Republican leaders feel that they have a candidate who will strengthen their ticket both nationally and in the state.

Meanwhile the Republicans are relying on Col. Donovan to cut into the Democratic vote, particularly in New York City, because of his name and because of his world war records. The Democrats, however, are, in turn, relying upon former Gov. Alfred E. Smith to rally the Irish Catholics to Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the Democratic party's candidate for governor.

More than 50,000 requests for tickets to hear former President Coolidge speak have been received by Republican eastern national headquarters. On the same platform will be the Republican state candidates, Mr. Pounds and Representative Ruth B. Pratt, who is running for reëlection to congress from the 17th district.

Policeman Shot in Bandit Battle

Four in Gang

Policeman John Lancaster, 32 years old, of the Cragin police, was shot in the left arm and leg yesterday in a revolver battle with four bandits in the offices of the Household Finance company, 4710 Irving Park boulevard. Lancaster, who lives at 3915 Altgeld street, was off duty and was among the ten customers and employés in the office when the bandits entered.

The gunmen forced Lancaster and the others to line up against the wall and took $75 from the cashier, Miss Betty Schwake, 22 years old. As the bandits departed, Lancaster seized one of them as a shield and opened fire on the others. The robber held by Lancaster jerked free and shot the policeman twice. Lancaster continued to fire as the men fled down the stairs and said that he saw one of the bandits clutch his side as though he had been wounded. Miss Schwake, Miss Lois Sundwahl, 19 years old, and Miss Annette Sell, 20 years old, all employés fell to the floor and crawled to the washroom to escape the bullets.

TAX INJUNCTION DENIED BY U. S. APPEALS COURT

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday upheld the decision of Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward, who dismissed a suit of the American Mutual Liability Insurance company seeking an injunction to prevent county authorities from collecting taxes from the company for 1928 and 1929. In its petition the insurance company charged that the assessed value of its property in Cook county was far in excess of the assessment on property adjacent to its holdings.

The Appellate court concurred with Judge Woodward in his ruling that the tax matter should be tried in the state courts, and that the federal courts had no jurisdiction until every resource provided by the state had been utilized.

Commenting on the decision, County Attorney Hayden Bell said that 99 per cent of all tax litigation was based on the erroneous theory that the body of taxes can be lowered to make all assessments conform to isolated cases in which the assessment is too low.

GLENN EXTOLLS HOOVER'S WORK IN CRITICAL ERA

Simpson Also Addresses Waukegan Rally.

Speaking at a Republican rally in Waukegan last night, United States Senator Otis F. Glenn attacked past régimes of the Democratic party, warning the voters there was no hope that another such administration would help the country. He was heard by a large crowd in the Waukegan Township high school.

Senator Glenn paid high tribute to President Hoover, placing him next to Washington and Lincoln and declaring that no other president save those two, had governed during such troublous times. Mr. Hoover has worked unceasingly to relieve the depression, he said.

Takes Rap at Col. House.

Much of the senator's talk dealt with the Wilson administration which he blamed for failing to protect the rights of American citizens. 'And the very man whose advice got us into the war—Colonel House—is now at Albany advising Roosevelt," he declared. The United States will never be repaid all of the money loaned to European countries during a Democratic administration, Mr. Glenn added.

Gov. Roosevelt was named as one of two governors who favored the dole bill sponsored in congress by Senator La Follette of Wisconsin. The senator also twitted Roosevelt for numbering Huey Long of Louisiana among his advisers.

James Simpson Jr., candidate for congress in the 10th district, whose nomination was finally certified in court a few days ago, was another speaker at the Waukegan rally and presented a nine point program for the attention of the voters. He was given a warm reception by the crowd.

Takes Stand for Economy.

The young candidate first advocated a reduction in the expenses of the national government and pledged himself to work for a 30 per cent cut in the national budget. Economy can come from an elimination of bureaus and commissions, he said, and he promised to do all possible to accomplish that elimination.

The repeal of the prohibition laws was another plank in Simpson's platform. He promised that he would maintain an office in his congressional district so as to be readily available to his constituency.

CITIZENS' GROUP ATTACKS RECORD OF PROSECUTOR

Opposed to Re-election of Swanson.

The Citizens' association yesterday put forth a statement that in its opinion State's Attorney John A. Swanson is not entitled to reëlection on his record.

The declaration, which was adopted by the directors of the organization at a meeting at the Mid-Day club, set forth that the Citizens' association was formed as a non-partisan movement by taxpayers in 1874, one of its principal aims being to effect prompt enforcement and execution of the law. In its 58 years of existence, it remarks, the association has never indorsed any candidate for public office.

Able to Appraise Office.

"In its work from year to year," it says, "the Citizens' association has necessarily had continual contact with the office of state's attorney of Cook county, to which the public must look for action to curb the activities of criminals, including grafting officials. For this reason it has perhaps had a better opportunity than any other civic organization, except the Chicago Crime commission, to appraise at close range the work of John A. Swanson, the present state's attorney.

"As the proper conduct of that great office is essential to the protection of the lives and property of the 4,000,000 people of Cook county, and as present unsettled conditions make this matter vitally important at the present time, this association considers that it owes to its members and to the public the duty of stating its judgment regarding the present incumbent of that office.

Gives Result of Judgment.

"The directors of the Citizens' association, as the result of its careful observation and its experience with that office, are strongly of the opinion that the present state's attorney's administration of his office has not been such as to entitle him to reëlection."

NAMES OFFICERS OF DEMOCRATIC FINANCE GROUP

Officers of the permanent organization of the Illinois finance division of the Democratic national committee were announced yesterday after a luncheon given by Mayor Cermak at the Congress hotel.

Mayor Cermak will act as chairman of the committee, Lawrence P. Bonfoey of Quincy vice chairman, and Robert J. Dunham of Chicago treasurer. The committee headquarters are in the Congress hotel.

Among the members of the permanent committee are John Bennan, John Bremner, Fred W. Brummell, A. F. Lorenzen, E. Emery Lancaster of Quincy, Dr. W. Allen Pusey, Col. A. A. Sprague, Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Melvin A. Traylor, John E. Ericsson, John P. Harding, J. L. Houghteling, J. F. Jelke Jr., Emmett Whealan, John E. Quinn, and others.

IOWA CONTINUES BATTLE GROUND ON TARIFF ISSUE

Agrarian Discontent of 30 Years Still Manifest.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 10.—With Iowa wobbling in its allegiance to the G. O. P., never broken save in 1912, one hears again the familiar rumblings of agrarian dissatisfaction with the operation of the protective tariff.

For more than a generation Iowa has been prominently identified with the development of the protective tariff principle as now enunciated in Republican doctrine. It was the protest of this agricultural region against tariff created monopoly that gave birth to the "Iowa idea" more than thirty years ago and persisted until the doctrine was profoundly modified.

The Iowa idea not only denounced tariff sheltered monopolies but advocated the development of foreign markets by means of tariff reciprocity, the Roosevelt proposal that is finding favor in this region today. In the succeeding two decades Iowa statesmen were in the van of the Republican insurgency from which emerged the principle that the measure of tariff protection should be the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad. This was eventually established as orthodox Republican doctrine.

Fought Payne-Aldrich Act.

Iowa statesmen, notably Dolliver, led the historic battle against the Payne-Aldrich tariff, the signing of which led to the undoing of Taft. It was Dolliver who laughed Aldrich out of court with the remark in the senate: "The year 1909 will go down in history for the discovery of the north pole by Dr. Cook and the revision of the tariff downward by the senator from Rhode Island."

As Taft went to Winona to defend his signing of the Payne-Aldrich bill Mr. Hoover came to Des Moines to defend his signing of the Smoot-Hawley bill and to persuade the farmers that, if anything, they need more tariff protection. Whether he persuaded enough voters to affect the result is a matter of great difference of opinion.

Republican National Committeeman Harrison E. Spangler says there is impressive evidence that the speech brought many wavering Republicans back into line for the ticket. He instanced a township meeting of eighty farmers at which thirteen stated they had intended to vote for Roosevelt but since the Des Moines speech would vote for Hoover.

Differ on Effect of Speech.

"The situation is steadily improving and I do not doubt for a moment that Iowa will go for President Hoover," said Mr. Spangler.

The contrary view is expressed by Henry A. Wallace, son of President Harding's secretary of agriculture, who is the head and front of the agrarian revolt in this region against the Hoover conception of the protective tariff. Mr. Wallace is a Republican and comes from a family that has been Republican since it was Whig, but he has declared for Roosevelt, chiefly on the tariff issue. The Democratic leaders look to his influence to count heavily in favor of Roosevelt, in as much as his paper, "Wallace's Farmer," reaches 95 per cent of the 220,000 farms in Iowa. The Republican leaders retort that Wallace bolted Hoover in 1928 also, but Hoover carried Iowa by 320,000. Of course, religious bigotry was the G. O. P.'s most powerful handmaiden in that election, Coolidge's majority over Davis and La Follette having been 153,000 in 1924, when conditions more closely resembled those of today.

Wallace Opposes Hoover.

Mr. Wallace said today that he regards the President a "dangerous man" from the viewpoint of the welfare of agriculture because of his "tariff philosophy."

"Most of the farmers of the middle west," he said, "are Republicans by tradition and it would be easy for them to accept the outworn shibboleths about the tariff were it not for the fact that thousands of them have been unable to make the second payment of their taxes, which comes due in September, and the semi-annual installment of interest on the mortgage, which usually comes due in September or October.

"Hoover told them that farm products were a billion dollars higher than during the early summer, but they know that new corn is 10 cents a bushel, oats 8 cents, and hogs 3 cents a pound on the farm. Hoover told them that a glorious victory had been won over the depression and that steps had been taken to relieve the mortgage situation, and then the radio listener, after the enthusiasm of the office holders at Des Moines had died away, thought of his own particular conditions.

More Careful of Promises.

"Some of them thought of Hoover's promise at St. Louis in 1928 to call a special session of congress in order to arrive speedily at a determination of the farm problem before the harvest of 1929 and of his declaration of purpose at West Branch to establish for American farmers an income equal to that of other occupations. And then on analyzing the 1932 Des Moines speech in the papers the following morning they found that Hoover had become strangely humble and had said: 'I will not make any pledge which I cannot fulfill.'

"They read his pledge to maintain the gold standard and the high tariff on farm products and reflected on their sufferings during the recent past when both of these blessings were in full operation. They heard his suggestion that he was in favor of doing something about the mortgage situation, but could not understand just what plan he had in mind."

"Farmers' Holiday" an Index.

Mr. Wallace and many others cited the "farmers' holiday" movement in Iowa and other parts of the corn belt as symptomatic of the desperation of the tillers of the soil, a desperation that is being translated politically into a sullen grouch on the party in power.

According to Mr. Wallace, the audience that heard Mr. Hoover was handpicked and consisted chiefly of federal job holders, Republican leaders, and their friends. The 2,000 farmers who came to Des Moines to stage a parade of resentment, said Mr. Wallace, "were not sufficiently respectable in clothes, manners, and previous attitude to get into the Coliseum to heckle Hoover, so they let their resentment blaze forth in a parade. It is my guess that the parade is a good barometer of the farm attitude which will eventually defeat Hoover in the middle west after the enthusiasm of the Republican office holding contingent has spent itself in trying to squeeze comfort for farmers out of the Des Moines speech."

Roosevelt Poll.

With satirical reference to Mr. Hoover's Des Moines appearance, the Democratic state committee advertised "no tickets, no troops" for the Jim Reed speech here tonight.

A one day poll taken before the Hoover speech by the Register, owned by Gardner Cowles, Hoover appointee to the R. F. C. board, gave Roosevelt 45,321; Hoover, 27,562.

now. That is, we are past it unless the country elects a Democratic congress and a Democratic President who will carry out the program that the Democratic house leadership did its best to carrry into effect. If that happens, then good-by gold standard.

"If congress should pass the Goldsborough bill with its requirement that the dollar be restored to its 1926 value then we should have to go off the gold standard or else be flooded by the surplus products of the rest of the world."

The senator was asked whether, in case of a Democratic victory, he foresaw any danger of the Goldsborough bill's revival and passage.

Points to Garner Record.

"I didn't think," Senator Reed replied, "that there was any danger that Jack Garner would allow the house to pass the Goldsborough bill or the bonus bill at the last session. But he did, and Garner is now the Democratic candidate for Vice President.

"If I thought the Democrats were to win I'd sell every security I own."

Measures that the senator thought the coming session of congress would be sure to pass were a bill to modify the Volstead act and one revising the new tax laws. He believed the country's demand for modification was such as to result in immediate congressional action. Beer and wine would bring in a large revenue, but not enough to balance the budget. The new special taxes and the income tax increases were proving inadequate. Further taxes, Senator Reed believed, would be necessary. He hoped to see a manufacturers' sales tax adopted and thought the chance of passing it improved.

Reed Voices Denials.

Concerning his recent conversations with Premier Herriot of France and Premier MacDonald and Sir John Simon of Great Britain, Senator Reed had two emphatic denials to issue.

They had not talked cancellation or reduction of the war debts, he said, and he was sure the Dec. 15 payments would be made. Nor, he declared, had he acted as American spokesman in making any agreement that the United States would support the French in opposing arms equality for Germany provided the French would join the United States in a common stand on the Manchurian question.

He had been asked by the administration, Senator Reed said, to ascertain the French and British points of view concerning the Manchurian crisis. He had obtained the desired information, he said, but would give no details other than to say that the French and British "showed no marked hostility" to the American policy on Manchuria as enunciated by President Hoover and Secretary of State Stimson.

Sees France Able to Pay.

He thought France "better able to pay her debt to us than we are to cancel it." At the same time he asserted: "Those who say that conditions here could not be worse ought to visit Europe."

Europe regarded conditions in the United States as indicating the beginning of an upturn, Senator Reed said. He was sure President Hoover would be reelected and was ready to join actively in the campaign. Pennsylvania is certain to go to President Hoover, he said.

"Those who say that Roosevelt is in the lead should remember that McKinley was considered beaten a month before the election," he said. "But McKinley won, and so will Hoover. There is a world of common sense in this country."

Plans Platform Speeches.

Only a few details were made public regarding the Cleveland trip. Postmaster General Brown and Mr. Thompson said the speech would be delivered in the evening around 8:30, that President Hoover would spend the day making rear car platform speeches en route from Washington, and that a crowd of at least 10,000 would listen to the presidential address. Both expressed confidence that while the trend in Ohio today was toward Roosevelt the state could be lifted out of the fire by a fighting speech on the part of the President.

The presidential party will arrive in Cleveland only a few moments before the Hoover speech is scheduled to be broadcast to a nation-wide audience. White House officials indicated that the President would leave the same night for Washington. The Republican rally will be held in the Cleveland municipal auditorium, the scene of the 1924 Republican national convention. Entrance to the hall will be by ticket.

Football Stars Introduced.

John Hay Hopkins, special assistant to the secretary of the treasury, introduced the football stars to the President with the statement that these young men, under the leadership of Paul Orvis, chairman of the college division for the eastern campaign have undertaken the task of urging 4,500,000 young "first voters" to help repeat the Republican victory in 1896 when McKinley defeated Bryan.

"I know of no greater service," said the President, "that the young people of this country can do than to enter actively into this campaign. The future of the United States is in their hands, and I believe in the Republican party. I do hope that you hit the line hard."

Head of Greece Pleads for a Coalition Cabinet

ATHENS, Oct. 10.—(AP)—President Zaimis of Greece addressed a letter to the leaders of the political parties today appealing to their patriotism to form a coalition cabinet made up from all parties except the communists. Such action, he said, was the only means of solving the financial crisis of the country and inspiring confidence abroad. Similar governments were formed twice before, in 1877 and in 1926.

CHAPPLE TELLS OF FIGHT AGAINST LA FOLLETTEISM

Credits His Victory to Conservative Trend.

John B. Chapple, the Republican who defeated the La Follette political machine in Wisconsin by winning the nomination for the United States senate against Senator John J. Blaine, sketched the details of that fight yesterday before the Wisconsin Society of Chicago at the Tavern club. Mr. Chapple is 32 years old. He edits the Ashland Press.

The young nominee credits his victory to the desire of the Wisconsin electorate to overthrow radicalism in favor of conservatism. He spoke of the upheaval against La Follette as "an important step in safeguarding American principles," brought about by an experiment in radicalism which failed.

Pays Visits to Radicals.

Mr. Chapple said he once had a few radical ideas himself, which he used to expound in editorials in his father's paper in Ashland and which stirred a revolt on the part of many of the subscribers, resulting in canceled subscriptions. He had previously visited William Z. Foster, the communist, in Chicago, and Victor Berger, the Socialist, in Milwaukee, he said, and not satisfied with his own feelings on the subject of radicalism, he went to Europe with scant funds and toured twelve countries studying government as he went.

In those countries where radicalism abounds, Mr. Chapple found, he said, that the leaders, instead of aiming for the good of the people, were seeking personal power.

He sent stories on conditions he found, he said, and upon his return to Wisconsin was offered a job by the editor of a La Follette paper, who said to him: "Come down out of that hick town and work for us. We're pushing this government ownership program and the Progressive movement is going stale. We're trying to think up some new ideas." Chapple declined the offer.

Demands Legislative Aid.

When taxes mounted under the La Follette administration and forest fires ate into his section of the state he went before the legislature at Madison and demanded help. When it wasn't immediately forthcoming, he said, he told the legislature that all it was interested in was "a five-year plan for Wisconsin." He got the help.

He began his campaign by going about the state lecturing on the three evils he saw in the La Follette system: confiscation of private property, the attack on religion, and the attack on morals. He attacked the socalled liberal organizations—the League for Industrial Democracy, and the Civil Liberties union, for example—and urged that the people be allowed to work out their own destinies and that the government be kept out of private business. In concluding his speech, he lauded President Hoover's reconstruction program and condemned the radicals opposing him.

ROSSETTER SAYS PUBLIC SPENDING PERILS COUNTRY

C. A. C. Head Makes Plea for Economy.

"It's not a matter of saving dollars, but of saving the country itself," was the warning sounded yesterday by George W. Rossetter as he told members of the Union League club of the urgent necessity for immediate reduction of the cost of government.

Mr. Rossetter, who is president of the Chicago Association of Commerce and chairman of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, gave his talk before the Union League round table, a group studying subjects of importance to Chicago.

Mr. Rossetter told of the increasing amount taken yearly from each dollar of national income. In 1913, according to Mr. Rossetter, the taxpayer gave up 8 cents of each dollar as his contribution to the cost of government. At the height of the war he gave up 16.7 cents and by 1931 this had risen to 22.1 cents, Mr. Rossetter pointed out. For this year it is estimated that government will take 33 1-3 cents from each dollar of national income, the speaker said.

Warns of National Bankruptcy.

"Economists tell us that when a government takes more than a fifth of the national income for the cost of its operation, that government is headed toward bankruptcy," Mr. Rossetter asserted. "Well, we are apparently well on the road to bankruptcy."

Saying that the national debt was but a little over 1 billion dollars in 1914, Mr. Rossetter pointed out that it was 26 billion dollars at the close of the war. This, he went on to say, was reduced to 16 billion dollars by 1930, but is now about 20½ billion dollars. The debt for all government, federal, state and local, has increased from 4 billion in 1913 to 36½ billion now, according to his figures.

"We simply cannot go on at this rate," Mr. Rossetter said. "Apart from our own inability to pay these staggering sums, we cannot morally shoulder such burdens on our children. They will have problems enough of their own without our bequeathing them these huge debts."

Urges Governmental Economy.

The speaker said that the minimum saving by the national government should be 750 million dollars and he pointed out various fields ripe for economy. There are around 250,000 governments in the country, he said, about a half of which could be abolished. In Cook county alone there are 416 tax spending and tax collecting agencies, a half of which could be dispensed with, he added.

Mr. Rossetter, saying he was a war veteran, assailed the demands of the veterans for the bonus.

FEDERAL RELIEF TO BE DISCUSSED BY ROOSEVELT

Will Reply Thursday to Social Workers.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential candidate, decided today to plunge into a controversy that has rocked Washington and congress for two years. It's the dispute over federal relief to those in distress, increased appropriations for public works as an aid to employment, unemployment insurance, and child welfare.

This decision was reached today by the governor after he had received a questionnaire addressed to presidential candidates on the subject from a group of social workers and economists. The nominee announced he would answer the questionnaire over a nation-wide radio hookup Thursday night. He will speak from the executive mansion in Albany.

This speech will be the first statement he has made on those general subjects except for a telegram sent last spring to Senator Robert F. Wagner during a debate in the United States senate. At that time he indorsed the general principle of using federal funds to supplement local relief where such funds are needed, but refrained from indorsing any particular bill.

These Are the Questions.

The questions to which he will respond Thursday night are as follows:

"Do you favor meeting the present economic disaster by substantial increase in federal outlays for relief, and the accelerated granting of federal funds to states and communities in such a way as to provide the maximum of local aid, supplemented by federal funds where local resources are, for the time being, inadequate?

"Do you favor substantially increased appropriations for public works as an aid to employment, with emphasis on aid to states and communities in such programs as stimulating the elimination of slum areas, developing parks, playgrounds, and recreation facilities, and the construction of school buildings?

"Do you favor a system of unemployment insurance reserves made compulsory by the states, supplemented by a system of federally coordinated state employment offices, to facilitate the reëmployment of jobless workers?

"Do you favor supporting and strengthening the children's bureau as the central governmental agency for the protection of the interests of children in the United States?

Query on Education.

"Do you favor as a national policy a higher school-leaving age, not less than 16, accompanied by such aid to vocational education as to provide for the needs of those children who otherwise would not receive adequate educational training; this to be not merely as a temporary measure of relief of adult unemployment, but as the only wise solution of the problem of boys and girls who due to the changing demands of industry, and the fact that they are not trained in accordance with their own capacity and aptitude, cannot find worth-while employment, even in normal times?"

The questionnaire was signed by Paul T. Beisser, executive secretary for the Henry Watson Children's Aid society of Baltimore; Courtney Dinwiddie, general secretary of the National Child Labor committee; Isador Lubin, economist for the Brookings institution at Washington; Harrie Lurie, research bureau, Jewish Welfare association of New York; Walter West, executive secretary of the American Association of Social Workers; Jane M. Hoey, member of the New York state commission of correction; Mark Simkhovitch of Greenwich House; Owen Lovejoy of the Children's Aid society, New York City; John O'Grady, director of the National Catholic Welfare council, Washington, and Prentice Murphy of the Children's bureau of Philadelphia, each signing as individuals and not for their organizations.

See Peril to Children.

They stated in their letter that they were directing it to him because they believed that "certain essentials for normal and wholesome child life in the United States are being imperiled, directly through child deprivation, or indirectly through family financial insufficiency, to such an extent that, if continued, national health, well being and security are threatened."

Final plans for the southern and middle western trip of Gov. Roosevelt were being made tonight as the nominee conferred with James A. Farley, chairman of the national committee.

Urban L. Lavery of Chicago predicted that he would carry 42 states in November.

Hoover Speeches Gain Many Votes, G.O.P. Leaders Assert

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Republican national headquarters took the view yesterday that the Hoover versus Roosevelt campaign of 1932 is repeating the course of the 1896 campaign, when William Jennings Bryan appeared to be sweeping the country in September but William McKinley carried the election in November.

Party leaders, after analyzing reports from party workers in the agricultural states of the middle west, declared that President Hoover's Des Moines speech has changed the campaign situation in the areas west of the Alleghenies. In addition to changing votes, they held that the Hoover "fighting speech" has put the fighting spirit into the party organization, and the tide having been stemmed, all is ripe for the big October push. In 1896 it was the "full dinner pail" that won for McKinley. This time the underlying issue being stressed is that a change in administration at Washington would halt business recovery.

Stress Hoover's Attack.

The Republican organizations in the western states are emphasizing President Hoover's statement at Des Moines that the Democratic program as demonstrated in the house at Washington under Speaker John N. [Postoffice Jack] Garner and as expounded by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt would set back the present measures now combating the depression. The Republicans are stressing the Hoover argument concerning the Democratic house program:

"Had the Democratic program passed it would have been the end of recovery. If it ever passes it will end hope of recovery."

Compares 1896 Campaign.

Everett Sanders, Republican national chairman, and Harry S. New of Indiana, former postmaster general and former senator, both drew a comparison yesterday between 1932 and 1896, and also 1908.

"In the Bryan campaign," said Mr. Sanders, "predictions by political writers of 1896 and 1908 showed Bryan the winner at this stage of the campaign, but he was hopelessly defeated.

"I have been unable to find cause for alarm because straw votes in certain sections seem to give indications of a Democratic trend. August and September straw votes under ordinary conditions are never more than a rough approximation of political opinions, and in the present campaign they are virtually valueless.

"Every time President Hoover speaks he gains millions of votes. The acceptance speech had a tremendously favorable effect and the Des Moines speech changed the entire complexion of the middle west campaign. An even greater change may be anticipated after his Cleveland speech Saturday.

"Similar situations have occurred in the past. The Literary Digest poll in 1916 showed that Hughes would win by 4,593,000, but he lost by 591,000, a discrepancy of 5,000,000 votes. When Herbert Hoover and the Republican speakers have presented the complete case for the Republican party the real votes in November will mean a sweeping Republican victory."

New Issues a Statement.

Mr. New, who is a former chairman of the Republican national committee, gave out a statement that the campaign reminded him of the old Bryan days. He was at headquarters conferring with Chairman Sanders.

"I have been in many campaigns," said the veteran Hoosier, "and today's claims are almost verbatim echoes of those I heard when Bryan was a 'sure winner.' So far as Democratic claims are concerned, I wouldn't worry too much about that angle. It's the same now as always.

"But why the silence of the courageous Democratic presidential candidate on the soldiers' bonus? It has been reported Gov. Roosevelt wanted to go back east to confer with his friends before asserting a definite stand on the bonus. This, in spite of insistent demands made at Portland and all points touched by the campaigner. Why should there be any mystery?

"President Hoover made a ten strike with his Des Moines speech in sections of the middle west I have visited since Tuesday."

Sees Start of Landslide.

Finishing a 3,000 mile campaign tour, Ernest L. Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, said: "A Hoover landslide has begun in the west following the President's Des Moines speech."

The Young Republican league, which now claims 1,250,000 members, yesterday announced arrangements for rallies in 2,734 counties from coast to coast the night of Nov. 1. President Hoover's voice is to be heard at every meeting through a national radio hookup. In Chicago George Olmsted, national director, plans to hold the rally in the Stadium.

More than 600 Republican platform speakers in the middle west yesterday received from the agricultural division of national headquarters suggested arguments for use in counter attacks on the Democrats for their onslaught upon the "Grundyized" tariff. It read in part:

"Candidate Roosevelt glibly informs the farmers that the Hawley-Smoot farm tariff destroyed our export trade. He also claims that it has caused foreign governments to set up retaliatory tariff rates against us. Both statements are wholly mendacious and given out to deceive the unwary.

"Here are the facts: The Hawley-Smoot act became effective in June, 1930, and finished its first two years of operation on July 1 of this year. During these two years we imported foreign merchandise valued at $4,141,600,000 and of this total 68 per cent came in duty free. A total of $1,323,400,000 paid duty and $2,818,200,000 worth was dumped on our shores duty free. These figures are accurate.

"Do you see anything in such a report that would indicate that the Hawley-Smoot farm tariff was destroying our international business?"

HOOVER SPEECH IS CHALLENGED BY MRS. BASS

Opens Fire on President's Appeal to Women.

An open statement addressed to President Hoover in answer to his radio broadcast to the women of the United States last week was issued yesterday by Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, Democratic woman leader. Mrs. Bass is co-chairman of the National Business and Professional league, which is supporting Roosevelt, with headquarters in the Congress hotel.

"You say the tariff has saved our farmers from lower prices while the fact is they are getting no prices and have lost even their farms," wrote Mrs. Bass. "You say to women that your opponents would loose upon us the destructive forces that would come from a breakdown in standards of living through competition. But you avoid the present fact that our factories are closed. Of what value, Mr. President, is a high standard of living to the starving?

Tells of Hungry Children.

"Women are not patient with academic discussion and belated planning when several million of the children of the nation are starving or undernourished. You tell the women that the Democratic congress is to blame for the delay. The senate is yours, the cabinet is yours, and all the vast resources of the national executive power have been yours for more than three years.

"The house alone with a small majority has been Democratic for seven months only and during that time it has offered the only measures promising immediate relief and one of these you call a pork barrel bill.

Asks New Assurance.

"If hungry stomachs turn to another leadership you will still be President until next March. So in your next radio talk to women I hope you will tell them that you will, with the help of your appointed coadjutors, the senate which is still yours and the house which will enthusiastically be yours to such an end, set in instant motion resources that will meet this country's needs."

ROBBER FOUND SLAIN AN HOUR AFTER HOLDUP

Albert Henderson, colored, 55 years old, was held up last night near the office of Dr. E. M. Smith Jr., 861 North La Salle street, by whom he is employed as a janitor. The robber took Henderson's pocketbook, 14 cents, his spectacles and several cards of Dr. Smith.

An hour later the police were informed that a man had been found, dead of bullet wounds, in an alley in the rear of 864 Orleans street. Lieut. P. D. O'Connell of the Chicago avenue station searched the body and found the loot taken from Henderson.

The body of the slain man was identified later as that of Joseph Saccia, 28 years old, 1218 Sedgwick street. The police expressed a belief that after Henderson had been robbed Saccia was shot and killed when he attempted to hold up some armed person.

County G.O.P. Asks Voters to Approve Relief Bonds

The Republican county central committee yesterday urged the voters to adopt the $20,000,000 state relief bond issue at the election on Nov. 8. Announcement of the Republican stand was made by William H. Reid, chairman of the halls and speakers committee. Literature of the county committee recommending approval of the bond issue is to be distributed throughout every precinct in the county, he said.

Speakers are to be furnished to committeemen whenever they can use them to describe the advantages of approving the bond issue, Mr. Reid said. He declared that the program drafted by the Republican county organization will be so thorough that no Republican voter will go to the polls on Nov. 8 without a full understanding of the bond issue.

Bond Issue Is Explained.

How approval of the bond issue will prevent a state property tax increase of 35 to 39 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation was explained yesterday at meetings of the Lutheran Ministerial association and the 10th district of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs. L. M. Nelson Jr., president of the Midland club, addressed the ministers, and Mrs. Walter L. Benson, treasurer of the Cook County League of Women Voters, spoke to the women.

"Aside from the practical considerations which make it desirable to vote for this bond issue, the people in Cook county have a moral obligation to support it," Nelson said. "Last winter the legislators of Illinois came to our assistance and voted the bond issue. To do this they were obliged to provide for the additional tax levy. Civic leaders in Cook county assured the legislators that they would work for the approval of this bond issue to prevent the collection of the tax. If the issue is approved the bonds will be retired by that share of the gasoline tax which goes to the counties that have assisted through state relief funds."

Asks Women's Support.

"The bond issue will have the support of all thinking women," Mrs. Benson said. "At this time when we hear so much about reducing taxes, it is vital that we give our approval to this measure, which will prevent a decided increase in the state tax rate. Leading women's organizations have given the bond issue their indorsement and active support."

Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, will speak on the bond issue at the meeting of the Chicago Rotary club this noon.

FORM GIFTS DIVISION

Organization of the preliminary gifts division of the Emergency Welfare fund in preparation for the fund's drive for $7,500,000 to be spent for relief other than unemployment relief this winter, was announced yesterday by R. Douglas Stuart, president of the fund. Vice chairman of the division include Stuart, Sewell L. Avery, C. B. Goodspeed, E. L. Ryerson Jr., Col. A. A. Sprague, and Melvin A. Traylor. Robert A. Gardner is chairman of the committee that is directing the drive.

Twenty-one captains were named as follows: Lester Armour, Ralph A. Bard, Edward J. Bermingham, William McCormick Blair, L. E. Block, Kent S. Clow, E. A. Cudahy Jr., Howard W. Fenton, Charles F. Glore, Robert M. Hutchins, D. F. Kelly, Weymouth Kirkland, Frank Knox, James R. Leavell, Alexander J. McKay, Holman D. Pettibone, Fred A. Preston, George A. Ranney, John Stuart, Frank L. Sulzberger, and Robert E. Wood. Philip W. Moore was named chairman of the suburban division.

The preliminary gifts division will start its work immediately, Mr. Gardner said.

RAIL EMPLOYES FORM CLUB TO BOOST HORNER

Railroad workers interested in the Democratic candidacy of Judge Henry Horner for governor organized a nonpartisan club yesterday, established headquarters at the Sherman hotel and began to enlist the aid of their fellow workers in the judge's behalf. E. O. Dugan was designated state manager for the club.

As a first step Mr. Dugan addressed a letter to every railroad brotherhood member in Illinois urging him to vote for Judge Horner as the true friend of railway labor and attacking the record of Len Small, who was described as opposed to railroad interests and railroad men generally.

Democratic headquarters announced yesterday that Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, a popular dark horse candidate for the presidential nomination at the Democratic convention last July, will make three speeches in Chicago this month. He will speak first at the downtown campus of Northwestern university on the evening of Oct. 17 and the next evening he will speak twice, first at Guyon's Paradise ballroom and later at the Calumet high school.

Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic candidate for state's attorney, will address the Chicago Bar association at noon today in the Burnham building.

New Moline-Rock Island Bridge Opens Saturday

Moline, Ill., Oct. 10.—The new bridge from Moline to the Rock Island arsenal island will be opened formally to traffic Saturday morning. Arsenal officers, headed by Col. H. W. Schull, are coöperating with the Moline association of commerce.

DEMOCRAT PLAN ON TARIFF PERIL TO LABOR: DOAK

An audience of steel workers at Gary was told last night by William N. Doak, secretary of labor, that their livelihood would be endangered under the tariff program proposed by the Democrats. He also urged the reelection of Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, Republican leader of the senate, as an active supporter of the protective tariff principle.

"The Democrats," said Secretary Doak, "say American labor is in favor of a low tariff. I say to you that the representatives of the American Federation of Labor, and all labor in this country which has a medium of articulate expression, is advocating high protective tariff rates.

"Our home market consumes the major portion of the steel products manufactured in America. Why should the vessels that carry the ore be standing idle at the docks and the fires drawn in the blast furnaces, merely for the sake of keeping foreign steel workers in jobs and our own steel workers walking the streets looking for jobs? This is what will happen if the Democratic party comes into power."

Three on Way to Funeral in Auto Killed by Train

Wyaconda, Mo., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Three persons, father, mother, and son, en route to Ottumwa, Ia., from Lewiston, Mo., Sunday to attend a funeral, were killed when their automobile was struck by a Santa Fé fast mail train at a crossing near here. The dead are Wiley Shoemaker, 50; Mrs. Shoemaker, 44, and their son, Harold, 21. The driver apparently did not see the approaching train.

PAUL F. JAHNCKE, SON, TOO, FINED IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, La., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Paul F. Jahncke, a brother of Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, was fined $100 with the alternative of 30 days in jail. The sentence followed an assault on Nolan Maurin during a feud among New Orleans society leaders.

His son, Edward, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail and their companion, Denton Wilmot, drew a fine of $75 or 30 days in prison.

They pleaded guilty to charges of assault and battery. Testimony purported to show they lured Maurin to a secluded place near the Southern Yacht club and beat him with the help of hired fighters.

Maurin said he and Edward Jahncke had "differences" and he went to the rendezvous expecting to "have it out alone with him."

U. S. TO BEGIN NAVY TALKS WITH BRITAIN TODAY

Accord Sought by Davis on Global Tonnage.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Norman H. Davis, American delegate to the international disarmament conference, who spent the week-end as the guest of Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, at his home at Banbury, near Oxford, returned to London today. No formal disarmament conversations took place and the week-end was devoted to golf.

Davis lunched with Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, but saw no British politicians, today. He expects to begin serious work tomorrow and his first meeting is with Sir Walter Layton, British economist, who is interested in the arrangements for the international conference.

Seeks to Reconcile Demands.

Davis, who is accompanied by Admiral A. J. Hepburn and Allen Dulles of the American state department, came to London primarily to try to reconcile the British thesis of many and small ships within global tonnage figures with the American demand for fewer and bigger ships.

It is understood that there has been some approach in ideas between British and American experts on the basis that neither is frightened of the other and that each might be allowed to deal with its own problems in its own way within global tonnage limits.

There is a possibility that Davis may be dragged into Thursday's conversations between Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Herriot of France on the land armaments dispute between Germany and France.

Lord Lytton Backs Stimson.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Lord Lytton, whose report on Japan and Manchuria goes a long way toward backing up the American policy in the Far East, is also a firm advocate of accepting Secretary of State Stimson's declaration of Aug. 8 concerning consultation as all the assurance the world now needs of the coöperation of the United States and the league of nations. Lord Lytton also believes the British government should try to convince France that she has all the security she needs in this same Stimson assurance of consultation to focus world opinion against any aggressor state and that the time has now come to consider favorably Germany's demand for an equality status.

"Two things that must be achieved in European diplomacy," he said, today, "are the security of France and the equality of Germany. The only way to do that is through recognition by all states that war anywhere concerns everybody.

"Separate states cannot pledge themselves in advance as to what they would do individually, given an emergency, but Mr. Stimson has solved the problem for us all by his declaration that consultation among the powers is implicit in the Briand-Kellog treaty, outlawing war as a means of bringing the aggressor to account."

"Now that we have this assurance from the United States it is inconceivable that we should not seize upon it as a great asset in organizing the world for peace. It is not necessary, we insist, for the American government to dot all the I's and cross all the T's in its policy of consultation. We may safely take it as Mr. Stimson gave it to the world and make it the keynote of a new peace policy, based on the assumption that the United States and the League of Nations will work together."

Von Papen's Dictatorship in Prussia Before Supreme Court

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LEIPZIG, Germany, Oct. 10.—The German Supreme court met today to rule on the legality of the dictatorship established in Prussia by Chancellor Franz von Papen on July 20.

The states of Prussia, Baden, and Bavaria instituted the proceedings, charging Von Papen with violation of the German constitution. The Supreme court will devote the week to study of the question because it is "vital for the existence of the state."

The court's decision will center on paragraph 48 of the constitution, which provides dictatorial power for the president in case of emergency. Prussia charges that no emergency existed when the chancellor induced President Paul von Hindenburg to appoint him dictator of the state. Baden and Bavaria argue that the constitution does not empower the federal government to dismiss state officials and that Von Papen distorted paragraph 48 to suit his own purposes.

Illegality Is Charged.

Dr. Arnold Brecht, counsel for Prussia, today stressed that the state is convinced that Von Hindenburg is inspired in all his actions by the desire to protect Germany and her constitution, but added that the president was presented with an exaggerated picture of Prussian disorders by Von Papen.

"We do not intend to delve into the political side of the problem," he said. "We only want the court to establish once and for all whether or not Von Papen's action was justifiable under the provisions of the constitution."

Prussia frankly is seeking to compromise with Von Papen for a "legal readjustment of the political status of Prussia in its relations with the federal government according to the constitution."

Secret Deal Charged.

Dr. Gottheimper, representing the chancellor, contended that the Prussian government had failed to maintain order, and energetically refuted the charge that the dictatorship over Prussia was agreed upon in secret negotiations between Von Papen and Adolf Hitler, leader of the National Socialists.

Prof. Joseph Heller, who represents the Socialist faction of the Prussian diet, thereupon asked the court to summon the chancellor, Hitler, and Baron Heinrich von Gleichen, president of the aristocratic "Herren klub," to testify. At the time the dictatorship was set up Hitler's enemies charged that there had been a deal between Hitler and the chancellor by which the Nazi leader agreed to support Von Papen and in return the chancellor agreed to lift the ban on the Nazi storm troops.

LONG DECLARES RADICAL IS MAN OUT OF OFFICE

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Reared back in an easy chair in the pressroom of the Roosevelt campaign headquarters at the Hotel Biltmore, Senator Huey P. (Call Me Kingfish) Long of Louisiana expounded the political situation to a score of reporters today and told them what a great man he is down in his own home state.

Senator Long is in town to map out a couple of campaign speeches for Gov. Roosevelt. He met the Democratic candidate at Hyde Park yesterday for the first time.

"Some people call me a radical," he said. "I'm not a radical. I have a political office. A radical is a person who is out of office and trying to get in.

"Politicians are the riffraff of a party. I'm different. I'm a kingfish and I can stay where I please."

Speculating about the "certainty of Roosevelt's election," Long said, reflectively:

Judge Woodward sustained defense objections to the admission of advertising matter issued before 1928, on the grounds that the indictment covered only the years from 1928 to 1930.

Help!

IN these trying times, facts are, perhaps more than ever essential to the needs of men, women, and children—in business, at home, in government, in school.

You can get facts by asking the right person, if you can find the right person.

You can get them by searching diligently through a thousand books, by assembling and "digesting" a confusion of tens of thousands of words.

Or you can get them by opening a single book—the twenty-fourth volume of the latest Fourteenth Edition of the new Britannica—the Index volume.

In that one volume is a complete index to all recorded human knowledge. In that one volume, in orderly alphabetical arrangement, are a half-million cross references that quickly direct you to the precise quarter-section of the particular page of the 24,000 in the Britannica where you can find whatever you want to know.

A few seconds bring you to facts that answer any conceivable question of human interest—in business, finance, taxes, child care, literature, science, sports, gardening, anything you can imagine.

Written by 3,500 Noted Authorities

Furthermore, the new Britannica is not an "authorless" reference work. You know you can depend upon its information, because the Britannica carries the experience and knowledge of 3,500 of the world's leading authorities. Think of any notable person in any field of human endeavor, and you are almost certain to find him a signed contributor to this latest and greatest Britannica.

The list of contributors to the Britannica is the honor roll of world leadership. From Chief Justice Hughes to Ramsay MacDonald, from Sir Wilfred Grenfell, the ministering doctor of Labrador, to Bertrand Russell, the social economist; from Noguchi, the great crusader against yellow fever, to Walter S. Gifford, business man—they are all on the list of the Britannica contributors.

Westermarck, Malinowski, Elihu Root, Owen D. Young, Ogden Mills, Henry Ford, Maurice Paleologue, Benedetto Croce, Millikan, Jeans, Pershing, Foch, Chesterton, Shaw, Nicholas Murray Butler, Einstein, Freud, Trotsky, Alfred E. Smith number among the 3,500 leaders of modern scholarship, statesmanship and business who give you in the Britannica the advantage of all their experience and knowledge.

OWNERS SAY

Owen D. Young

"Economics, politics and science . . . correct information regarding them is essential . . . the new Britannica meets these needs."

Walter Dill Scott, President, Northwestern University

Viscount Snowden

A Sound Investment

More than $2,500,000 was spent on assembling the 35,000,000 words of information in the Britannica. More than $500,000 went to prepare the 15,000 illustrations and 500 maps, many in color. More than $150,000 was spent to organize the index to the complete text which is the equivalent of 500 good size books valued at $1,200.

Today, you can buy all this great wealth of material—and it is in the Encyclopaedia Britannica and nowhere else — for no more than it costs to buy a good radio.

Buy Now and Save Dollars!

How long the present low price can be continued, however, in the face of present conditions, we don't know. The fact remains that the Britannica, considering the completeness and authority of its text and illustrations, is the least expensive encyclopaedia you can buy. And the shrewd man or woman will invest at once.

CHEER UP.

[From The Tribune of Oct. 11, 1871.]

In the midst of a calamity without parallel in the world's history, looking upon the ashes of thirty years' accumulations, the people of this once beautiful city have resolved that CHICAGO SHALL RISE AGAIN.

With woe on every hand, with death in many strange places, with two or three hundred millions of our hard earned property swept away in a few hours, the hearts of our men and women are still brave and they look into the future with undaunted hearts. As there has never been such a calamity, so has there never been such cheerful fortitude in the face of desolation and ruin.

Thanks to the blessed charity of the good people of the United States, we shall not suffer from hunger or nakedness in this trying time. Hundreds of trainloads of provisions are coming forward to us with all speed from every quarter, from Maine to Omaha. Some have already arrived—more will reach us before these words are printed. Three-fourths of our inhabited area is still saved. The water supply will be speedily renewed. Steam fire engines from a dozen neighboring cities have already arrived, and more are on the way. It seems impossible that any further progress should be made by the flames or that any new fire should break out that would not be instantly extinguished.

Already contracts have been made for rebuilding some of the burned blocks and the clearing away of the debris will begin today if the heat is so far subdued that the charred material can be handled. Field, Leiter & Co. and John V. Farwell & Co. will recommence business today. The money and securities in all the banks are safe. The railroads are working with all their energies to bring us out of our affliction. The three hundred millions of capital invested in these roads is bound to see us through. They have been built with special reference to a great commercial mart of this place and they cannot fail to sustain us. CHICAGO MUST RISE AGAIN.

We do not belittle the calamity that has befallen us. The world has probably never seen the like of it—certainly not since Moscow burned. But the forces of nature, no less than the forces of reason, require that the exchanges of a great region should be conducted here. Ten, twenty years may be required to reconstruct our fair city, but the capital to rebuild it fireproof will be forthcoming. The losses we have suffered must be borne; but the place, the time, and the men are here to commence at the bottom and work up again; not at the bottom, either, for we have credit in every land and the experience of one upbuilding of Chicago to help us. Let us all cheer up, save what is left yet, and we shall come out right. The Christian world is coming to our relief. The worst is already over. In a few days more all the dangers will be past and we can resume the battle of life with Christian faith and western grit. Let us all cheer up!

THE PEOPLE'S FIGHT FOR PUBLIC ECONOMY.

In Kane, Du Page and Will counties an inspiring fight has begun between citizens and politicians to simplify local government. The effort is to abolish the board of supervisors and consolidate the county and township governments under three county commissioners. The supervisors in each county have rejected the citizens' petition for a chance to vote on the proposition at the next election, on one or another pretext, yet the victory is perhaps not one the politicians can afford to win. We are confident it will strengthen the determination of the people of these counties to be relieved of the out-of-date and expensive machinery of local government. Secretary Mollan of the Joliet Real Estate board, who presented the petition in Will county, estimates that the proposed county commissioner plan would reduce the per capita cost of government 50 per cent.

Former Gov. Lowden in a speech a year or more ago made a forceful appeal to the people of the nation and his fellow Illinoisians to simplify local government, which he truly said had become cumbersome, inefficient and expensive beyond all reason. He gave a formidable array of facts and we hope his appeal has reached our people. We in Chicago have a preposterous machinery of government, but downstaters instead of indulging in so much self-righteous criticism of Cook county would do well for themselves as well as for their fellow Illinoisians of Cook county by setting an example of reform at home. The citizens of Will, Kane and Du Page counties are likely to do so, for they are fighting a good fight for themselves and for us all. More power to their elbows.

There is no possible doubt that the full restoration of what we all cherish as normalcy in American conditions depends upon relief from inordinate taxation, federal and local—that is, state, county, town, etc.—and local taxation is the heavier burden. We must fight our way to freedom from parasitic government. The vested interests of professional politics and job holding will resist every inch of the way, but citizenship is stronger than special privilege. The conditions from which our local governments grew naturally and properly have greatly altered, and it is urgently required that we should simplify and consolidate not only to reduce the cost and waste of government but to increase its efficiency and responsibility.

GOV. ROOSEVELT ON COAL MINES.

At a recent conference with officials of the miners' union Gov. Roosevelt pledged himself to work with the union for a limitation in the number of coal mine openings. There are too many miners and too many mines in this country, he said.

It is curious that Gov. Roosevelt, while recognizing that we have more coal mines than we need, does not see that his program for government creation of water power plants is working toward the same end in the power business. There is in the United States today more generating capacity than the country has need of. The proof of it is that there has been no diminution in the generating capacity of the country while there has been a marked diminution in the sale of power since the depression set in.

Gov. Roosevelt cannot consistently hold that private power interests have failed to take care of the growing demand for electricity in this country in the last quarter of a century. The growth in generating capacity has been phenomenal. He cannot pretend, either, that the government power projects are calculated to provide cheaper current. The difference in cost between water generated power at a government plant and steam generated power in a private plant is constantly narrowing as steam plants increase in efficiency. The steam plants, broadly speaking, are better situated with respect to the consumers. Therefore the transmission costs are less. The very large costs for readiness to serve for distribution and for transmission through congested areas are chargeable against the government as well as against the private power companies. It is significant that a privately owned power company in southern California recently offered to surrender its contract for a share of the Boulder dam current on the ground that it could produce electricity in its steam plants at less cost.

Except in the most favorable natural setting, the original cost of water power development is far heavier than for corresponding steam plants. Accordingly, the fixed charges are higher, though the operating charges are lower. Technical progress is lowering the operating costs of steam plants, while political control of water power generators is likely to result in increasing operating charges for publicly owned generators. But the fixed charges against government owned plants will remain at least as long as the long term bonds which pay for the construction of the dams, generators, and transmission lines are outstanding. Those charges must be met, if not by the consumers of the current then by the taxpayers generally.

The Ontario hydro commission today confronts just such a situation as Gov. Roosevelt's power policy would create in this country. The commission has much more current to sell than it can dispose of at a price which will be fair to the taxpayers. Accordingly, the commission is selling power to large consumers for whatever it will bring. Presumably the taxpayers are required to make up any deficits so incurred.

Gov. Roosevelt's policies with respect to coal mines and power are put forward in the name of national economic planning. He does not seem to realize that it is a curious national plan which will close redundant coal mines and at the same time create redundant power sources.

Incidentally, it should be noted that Gov. Roosevelt's scheme for government water power plants must serve to aggravate the problem of the coal miners, for, the greater the amount of water power available, the less will be the amount of coal required for steam generation.

A PROVINCIAL RULING.

[Boston Transcript.]

Under a new ruling by the department of labor, students who come as visitors from foreign countries to attend American colleges, and who have to earn any part of their expenses here, will be refused admission. Several hundred young men from all parts of the world face exclusion and hardship as a result. Their number is not enough to make more than an infinitesimal difference in the employment situation, but it is quite enough to work heavy loss to the cause of American leadership in education.

From the beginning of civilized history the rank and authority of a city or nation have always been subject to one clear and simple test. If a country has attracted students from afar then it has been plainly a center of intellectual force and of material dominion. On the other hand, if it has failed to draw foreign students, it has stood merely as a province, a colony, a tributary to some other power of greater mental strength, wealth and character. For three hundred years the United States was, on the whole, considered simply as a province in the realm of occidental science, letters and humane learning. Americans, throughout the nineteenth century, who desired to gain higher education and attain superior standing in academic matters, went to the universities of Europe. Thousands of our scholars had their graduate training there. Meanwhile, few came from the old world to learn in America, for the nation still lacked superlative repute in education.

Since the world war the worth and authority of American institutions of learning have come to be recognized, and the need to gain training here has been more and more felt among the young men of Europe, South America and other continents. To the future strength of the United States, to the spread of American thought and standards in all the world, this is a development of vital significance. Today, for example, even the Bank of England has looked to the United States to supply the bank its principal adviser—Prof. O. M. W. Sprague, on leave of absence from Harvard. Yet just at this time, when the United States is rising above its former status as a province in the realm of education and is gaining dominion, the department of labor would turn from our shores any visiting student who must earn a few dollars while he is here, even though this necessity only goes to show the earnestness of his purpose in coming here. The sooner such a ruling is reconsidered in the light of something more than a narrow and technical view of the immigration law, the sooner it will be rescinded, as surely it ought to be.

LOST MINIATURE.

Miss Marcia Lucia Singletree had brought Few tears to drop beside Sue Lacy's bier,
Although she wore the lavender and black
Prescribed for gentlewomen of her day.
At last she'd found the cause, the single cause,
That built the barrier between the two—
Though both pretended it did not exist.

Miss Marcia Lucia, in the twelve-room house
To Sue's fourteen, suggested one spring day
They match effects and live under one roof,
"I'll bring my best things over, horse-hair couch—
The whatnot . . . stands with marble tops . . . the chair
Carved by my great-grandfather Singletree,
The low commode . . . the twin-leaved cherry drop——"
And there Miss Lacy stopped quite still and said,
"My house is full. You can't expect me to Part with ancestral treasures, heirlooms,
In order to make room for your best things."
And so they compromised, and halved the year,
Lived six months in each house, "just for the change."

On winter evenings sitting by the fire
That glittered on brass andirons like the sun,
They talked of their romances. Each had loved,
But names were never spoken, or revealed.
"His eyes were like the eyes in dreams, his hands
Were broad, with fingers tapering at the ends,
His voice soft music from another sphere."
And Marcia always answered, "His were so."
And then she'd go upstairs, if in the year
They shared her house, but always would return,
"I never can find that old miniature!"
And she pretended that she did not know
It disappeared when she put up her hair—
And first wore pantalettes with ribbon bows.
Nor did Miss Lacy show the face of one
She'd hid for years, in this place and in that . . .
But when she slept, beneath her pillow sham.

Now that the thing they both had feared had come,
Sue lay serenely in her final rest
Draped in the satin hand-made wedding dress
That had not yet beheld her bride nor wife.
Lace curtains freshly starched above drawn shades
Bore hand-work of the once ingenuous Sue:
The plush-trimmed head rests, tasseled lambrequin
Large sweet-iced cakes, and spicy funeral meats
Were sent by neighbors, crêpe hung on the doors;
The fluted paper covers loosed from Sue's
Long-treasured jell, the rich preserves and jam.
And lifelong friends came silently, and went.

The will had said, surprising every one,
"I leave Miss Singletree, my companion,
All that I have, except the lacquered box
Locked in a safe down at the Farmers' bank:
I wish it buried with me, unopened."

But as Miss Marcia Lucia went to place
It by the rigid form as last token,
It dropped down from her warm and nervous hands
And strewed its contents on the parlor floor.
And then she knew. She saw with startled eye
The miniature, placed on a ribbon band
Worn thin and threadbare where it hung for years
Lost miniature! Ah, well, at last she knew . . .
He had been faithless, she had not, and now—
The choir could sing its best the following day—
"Where is thy sting and where thy victory."
She would not weep, nor would they ever know.

Quickly assembling Singletree demesne
Tall Marcia slipped the band about Sue's neck,
Miss Marcia Lucia saw the form of him
That she had loved, the whole span of her life;
It bridged the gap the lifted earth had made,
And went beside her to the empty house.
She thought she heard him say, "That lost is found."

It may have been the restless wind, but still
When Marcia walks alone in quiet streets

RACHEL MACK WILSON.

THE TWO OLD PARTIES are worried for fear there won't be a very big turnout today, the last chance to register before election. Well, it's their own fault. Why didn't they take the registration when the Cubs played the Yankees? Most of the sovereign voters turned out then.

THE NEW CANADIAN TARIFF increase against American products goes in force tomorrow. We ought to get back at 'em by increasing our tariffs on the principal things we import from Canada. Now the principal things we import from Canada are—but no, we can't do it; those things come in free.

BURNING TONGUE.

A MULTITUDE of people have written to this column in the course of twenty years, asking about burning tongue. Some of these had geographic tongue, some plaques, and some other well known tongue conditions. These are not the cases that are in mind as this article is being written. Persons who have ulcer of the tongue, sores of other kinds, areas that they can see and feel as something different, are advised to have a physician decide whether the cause is cancer, syphilis, leucoplakia, or what not. They are advised not to wait for pain or swelling before they suspect what the trouble is, and to get the best diagnosis and treatment available.

The group of cases now being considered are those where there are no ulcers or even hard areas on the tongue. It is possible that the tongue is somewhat larger than normal and the print of the teeth is noted on its edges. However, in most instances the tongue is not enlarged. In some cases it is red, particularly along the edges, but in most no difference in appearance is noted.

The principal symptom is burning—an unnatural sensation—and not much else besides. The burning may be part of a burning streak which feels as though it runs from the stomach up through the chest to the mouth and the tongue. This sensation is nothing more than a symptom, and it may not be that, but it is very important. The cause should always be investigated.

In most cases there is nothing wrong. The patient is merely an introspectic neurotic and he builds up a minor sensation into a disturbing symptom. He may be worrying about cancer, or something else of which he is afraid. What he needs is to train himself away from his fears—at least, away from this fear.

In others, the symptom may be far more important. It is apt to be the first indication of pernicious anemia, coming months before other signs. If the tongue is numb, or tingles, as well as burns, the blood should be carefully examined for pernicious anemia. Liver treatment works like magic in these cases in the early stages.

In other cases, burning tongue is a symptom of pellagra. A diagnosis of this disease, when this is one of the few symptoms, makes cure by diet rather easy. Yeast, wheat germ, and good meats are the remedies to use.

In some cases the burning tongue is a symptom of myxedema. In some, the cause lies in the stomach. In the search for the cause, too little acid in the stomach juice should always be investigated. In a few cases there is too much acidity of the gastric juice.

It is not necessary to go beyond the head, in some cases, for the cause. Sometimes the trouble is due to the material used in the plates of false teeth. In some, irritation of rough teeth is responsible. Other cases are due to infection of the sinuses, the nose, the pharynx, or the tonsils. The tonsil, located in the back part of the tongue itself, is often at fault.

LEUCEMIA.

Mrs. H. T. writes:

1. Is any progress being made in the cure of leucemia?
2. Which is the more dangerous, lymphatic leucemia or the kind that affects the spleen especially?
3. What are the symptoms of each?

REPLY:

1. I don't think so. X-ray treatments decrease symptoms and interrupt the disease, but they do not cure.
2. As a rule the splenic kind is the more serious, though there are cases of lymphatic lucemia that progress very rapidly. More mistakes are made in the diagnosis of the lymphatic variety.
3. In both there is profound weakness and anemia and a great increase in the white blood cells. In the splenic kind the increase in white cells is the greater and the spleen is very large and heavy. In the lymphatic variety the lymph glands are enlarged. The special increase is in a small white cell called the lymphocyte.

NOT HEREDITARY.

J. D. R. writes:

1. Is acne hereditary?
2. I have had this trouble on my face for about fifteen years. It is clearing up gradually. Can this skin disease be cured, and by what method?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes: in most cases by keeping the grease glands of the face well erupted.

DERIVATIVE CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—I became a citizen of the United States when my father took out his second paper in January, 1923. 1. Is there a way of getting a certificate of my acquired citizenship and where can I get same? 2. How much does it cost? 3. Can I register for the coming election without showing any citizenship paper, as I have changed my residence since the last registration? H. H.

1. Yes, the writer may obtain a certificate of derivative citizenship by applying at the naturalization office, room 776 postoffice building, Chicago.
2. The fee is $10.
3. The election officials will probably require the writer to show his father's certificate of naturalization.

LIMITATION TWENTY YEARS.

Lovington, Ill., Oct. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—About fifty years ago Mr. A received injuries crossing a bridge. He sued for damages. The bridge was condemned and the cost of the trial was thrown on Mr. A. The defendant got judgment. Since then Mr. A bought a farm. Will that judgment after all these years hold good on the estate of Mr. A, who is now deceased? E. C.

The Illinois limitation period on judgments is twenty years. Unless exceptional facts have been involved to extend the period liability on the judgment in question is barred.

MORTGAGE.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I bought a mortgage from a bank in 1931. Now I find taxes for 1928, 1929, and 1930 have not been paid. In order to save my mortgage, by sale of property for taxes I can pay the taxes, but must I or the bank pay for the taxes which were on the property before I bought the mortgage? 2. The property mentioned is one of four lots owned by the same party. The taxes for the four lots come in one bill. He and I have decided on a settlement whereby I will get title to the property for a small sum. I have tried to get the four lots subdivided and find that a tax lawyer has title to this property because of unpaid taxes of 1928. I also found would have to get a clear title before it can be subdivided. I would like to know how to proceed to get clear title and back taxes paid. W. P.

1. The obligation of the bank depends in part on the wording of the agreement under which you bought the mortgage. If the title was shown by a guaranty policy, as is usually the case, then it is hard to understand how you should have failed to notice the recital that the taxes had not been paid. In general a person who has had no experience in such matters should be represented by an attorney.
2. If you mean that a tax deed has issued it would be necessary either for you to pay the amount that the holder of the tax deed asks for a quitclaim or employ an attorney to institute proceedings to quiet the title.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

OCTOBER 11, 1916.

CHICAGO.—State's Attorney Hoyne attempted a triple raid on the city hall. At two points he was checkmated, but at the third he considered himself successful. He sought to seize all the city hall records on saloons, gambling, and vice. To carry out the plan he shot three raiding squads into the building simultaneously. One went to the mayor's office, the second went to Chief Healey's office, and the third to the office of Second Deputy Funkhouser. Each party consisted of assistants of the state's attorney, investigators, and policemen assigned to the state's attorney's office. They were armed with subpoenas duces tecum to produce before the grand jury at once all letters, books, papers, and other records having to do with saloons, gambling, and vice. At the first two points of attack the raiders were foiled, but succeeded in getting several drawers filled with papers from Second Deputy Funkhouser's office.

LONG BRANCH, N. J.—President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing discussed in detail at Shadow Lawn the German submarine attacks on merchantmen Oct. 8 off the New England coast. It was indicated by officials that the facts so far collected through government agencies have disclosed no grounds for drastic action by the United States government because of the attacks themselves. No evidence has been found that international law was violated.

LONDON.—Austro-German troops under Gen. von Falkenhayn are continuing their advances in Transylvania, according to the German official statement. All the passes in the Hargetta and Carole mountains have been captured and on both sides of Kronstadt the troops of the central powers are reported to be pressing the Rumanians back. West of Vulcan pass on the Rumanian frontier Negruini mountain has been captured, Berlin says.

NEW YORK.—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt arrived on the Espagne after a three years' absence from America. Bundled snugly in a warm civet coat and in excellent spirits, the actress was carried down the gangplank by four proud French sailors while a group of young society girls scattered flowers in her path. After a short rest Mme. Bernhardt took the train for Montreal. She said she would not present "Les Cathedrals" in the United States because of her promise to do nothing which would disturb a neutral country.

GREENFIELD, Ind.—On the bank of Brandywine creek, overlooking "The Old Swimmin' Hole," which the late James Whitcomb Riley made famous, lifetime friends today paid tribute to the memory of the Hoosier poet. A large stage was erected on the bank of the creek, hills to the east forming a natural amphitheater. Arrangements for the celebration were being made when the poet died and the observance was in the nature of a memorial. A number of Indiana's foremost literary men were present.

FROM THE STATE PROBATION OFFICER.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 1.—Early in September I wrote THE TRIBUNE expressing my gratification over the stand it was taking concerning the very flagrant misuse of probation in certain cases. In that letter I said: "Probation is not a form of leniency nor can it apply to every situation. It was never intended for gunmen, burglars, pickpockets, rapists, and those who resort to crime as a business."

I think my stand on this is very clear. I am no sentimentalist about it nor do I think it is a panacea for crimes or criminals.

On Sept. 21 an editorial headed "Salesmanship" appeared in THE TRIBUNE in which my office was accused of "high pressure salesmanship for a government bureau," "its support and expansion," and that we showed "no interest in the weaknesses developed or in measures to safeguard probation from perversion and crime."

A paragraph is quoted from one of our pamphlets which attempts to show a sentimental view of probation. The editorial states that in "our official advertising" we say nothing about the protection of the public. Quite the contrary is true.

On the opposite page we say: "The swiftness and certainty of punishment, even if not severe, is the real deterrent to crime in the normal individual. . . . Probably the two mistakes which have been most prejudicial to the use of probation have been its granting unwisely by the court and the niggardly attitude of the taxing authorities in providing for supervision. . . . In granting adult probation the welfare of the community and its protection is of more importance than that of the individual. We have to think of the greatest good to the greatest number."

My office forces consists of myself and one secretary-stenographer, and my wildest dreams of "expansion" have never embraced more than the employment of three field workers who might demonstrate in the backward counties how probation could be administered, how it could prevent crime and delinquency and also save money.

So far the state has denied us such assistance, while it employs at the same time 60 parole officers and agents necessary to salvage the products of its reformatories and prisons.

"The money and the power" for probation that we sought from an indifferent legislature would have been used, had our bills passed, largely by the County and Circuit judges who have the appointment of probation officers. The department of public welfare asked only to guide and direct the work, improve the personnel and standards of officers, and pay half the salary and expenses of such officers. We had no thought of building up a "bureaucracy." We were, and are, sincerely interested in building up an effective probation service.

MRS. GEORGE THOMAS PALMER,
State Probation Officer.

POLITICAL STRAW FROM SOUTHERN MICHIGAN.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 4.—Add Roosevelt recruits.

A one-time Chicagoan, now a local fruit grower, has just left the hospitality [only a warm place and a chair] which I was able to offer while he waited for the adjacent office to open. Warmth was welcome, for he had come from a chill, steady rain on the fruit market.

Small talk brought out that for picking, packaging, and hauling it costs him a cash outlay of 8¼ cents per jumbo [12-quart basket] to get his grapes off the vine and onto the market. Yesterday he got 14 cents, today 15. Say 6 cents for spraying, cultivating, fertilizing, pruning, trellising, use of land, and the initial investment of planting and three years of unproductive growth. The net return leaves him a lower rate for his labor than he pays the help he hires.

But the last straw is taxes. When he bought the farm thirty years ago the previous owner complained of the taxes of $8 a year. This year the taxes are $168—an increase of 2,000 per cent, and the land is less productive than when he bought it.

He and his companion between them know of just one farmer who is for Hoover. The rest are not enthusiastic about Roosevelt personally. Nor do they think Hoover personally responsible for state and local property taxes. But they are determined to vote against the whole party and machine which permeates public affairs from top to bottom.

CHANGING HORSES.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Being in a business that brings me in touch with over six hundred of our leading industrial plants in all lines of manufacture in Cook county I find a slight pickup all along the line. That's what we are looking for. Companies are working three and four days a week that were only working two and three days. In fact, one plant is working fifty-five hours a week and is rushed.

So why change horses in the middle of the stream and have a change in the administration, and put off business for another two years at least? That is what it would do. No one man is responsible for things being as they are.

I have spoken to plant managers and superintendents and they tell me, in some cases, that they have put all their old men back, and others have given their old employés three and four days a week in place of shorter time, and they hope to put more men on if things continue to pick up.

I do not and never did believe in any politician's promises, and knowing what present conditions are, why change for something you know nothing about?

TORTURE BANDITS HOLD UP JOLIET FAMILY IN HOME

Two bandits, believed to be members of the torture gang which has been operating in southern Cook county and about Joliet for several months, took $1,463 early yesterday from Peter Kuna, 45 years old, 607 Elwood street, Joliet.

They held Kuna and his three grown children for more than an hour while they threatened the father with torture if he did not tell where his money was hidden. One of the bandits finally found it in a tobacco can under a mattress.

After compelling Kuna's son, Stephen, 26 years old, and his daughters, Gabel, 18 years old, and Rachel, 21, to lie on the parlor floor, they aroused Kuna, who was sleeping in his bedroom. They tied him to a bedpost and threatened to burn the soles of his feet when he refused to give up the money. The robbers escaped in an automobile in which a third member of the gang was waiting.

The bandits are believed to be the same who recently committed a dozen torture robberies near Peotone, east of Joliet. Vigilantes patrolled the roads about that town six weeks ago when the gang threatened to kidnap the grandson of Mayor G. H. Eichenlaub.

SEVEN DOOMED NEGROES' FATE UP TO HIGH COURT

U. S. Tribunal to Pass on Alabama Rape Cases.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The United States Supreme court today assumed responsibility for the fate of the seven Negro youths convicted and condemned to death eighteen months ago in Scottsboro, Ala., for raping two white girls.

The court took the case under advisement following an afternoon session in which it heard Walter H. Pollak, New York attorney associated with the communistic international labor defense, argue that the defendants had been denied a fair trial, and Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr., of Alabama declare that their constitutional rights had been adequately protected.

Special police precautions were taken to guard the court lest there be a demonstration by communist elements that have been active in demanding freedom or a new trial for the condemned men. But the demonstration failed to materialize. Many Negroes were in the crowd that filled the Supreme court room and which stood in the hall hoping for admittance, but the proceedings were unusually orderly.

Negroes Barred from Jury.

"Mob domination, denial of the right to be represented by counsel, and the exclusion of Negroes from the trial jury and the failure to question jurors as to race prejudice" were given by Attorney Pollak as the factors which brought about an unfair trial for his clients.

The defense lawyer told how the seven Negroes had been convicted of raping Virginia Price and Ruby Bates, white girls, on a freight train, following a fight with white boys whom they forced from the train.

Pollak described the calling of the Alabama militia to prevent a lynching and what he termed were the unfair tactics of the court. Later the death sentences ordered by the trial jury were affirmed by the Alabama Supreme court. The defendants, Attorney Pollak said, were denied proper counsel and were given "the merest form of trial."

No Apologies for Verdict.

Answering, Attorney General Knight declared:

"I have no apologies to make for the severity of the jury's verdict. I know of no better case than this in which to impose the supreme penalty which the state legislature in fixing the sentence for rape at from 10 years' imprisonment to death evidently considered a fitting punishment for certain instances of this crime."

In addition to hearing arguments in the Scottsboro case the Supreme court handed down a long list of orders.

As the result of its week's work since the opening of the term last Monday the court disposed of 180 cases out of the 370 on the docket by the simple process of denying petitions for writs of certiorari. Hearings were granted in only some 35 cases.

Elk Hill Naval Reserve.

By declining to review a ninth Circuit Court of Appeals decision canceling three leases of the Pan-American Petroleum company in portions of the Elk Hills naval oil reserves in California, the court virtually restored to the government 660 acres of oil lands.

The leases were made by former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, but were distinct from those already canceled in which the court noted that they were made as the result of a $100,000 bribe by Edward L. Doheny.

The court granted a review of the appeal of the Detroit International Bridge company, which claims that its bridge, being in international commerce, is immune from the Michigan franchise tax.

The court agreed to hear the appeal of C. V. Sorrell of Canton, N. C., who pleads that a prohibition agent used illegal entrapment methods in effecting his arrest.

CITY AIR BOARD INDORSES LEGION MEET FOR 1933

Aero Commission Hears Plans for Event.

The Chicago Aero commission yesterday indorsed the American Legion National Air races, which the Cook county council of the Legion is planning to hold here next year. Joseph de la Cour, commander of the council, appeared before the commission and told the members that it is proposed to make the 1933 air meet the largest ever held in Chicago.

Seek Altitude Revision.

The commission also voted to recommend to the city council that it lower the altitude requirement for lighter than air ships over the city from 2,000 to 1,000 feet when such ships are inflated with helium noninflammable gas. That revision would apply particularly to the airship Puritan that is now operating from the World's Fair grounds.

M. C. Meigs, chairman of the commission, appointed a committee to investigate the possibilities of holding a national model airplane contest next year in connection with the World's Fair. The committee is composed of Thorne N. Donnelley, chairman; Capt. B. B. Lipsher, Maj. Reed G. Landis, Homer Berry, and Maj. R. W. Schroeder.

Tells of Sales Competition.

Leigh Wade, representative of the Consolidated Aircraft corporation in South America, told the commission of some of the dimculties encountered in the sale of American military aircraft to South American countries.

American military craft are by far the most popular in South America, he said, but representatives of German, French and British concerns offer five year credits in the sale of their planes and motors. How such credits can be offered when European financial conditions were said to be so bad that moratorium had to be put into effect, is one of the great mysteries of foreign trade, Wade said.

GRONAU RESCUED AT SEA; STEAMER IS TOWING PLANE

MANILA, Oct. 11 [Tuesday].—(AP)—Capt. Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions on a round-the-world flight have been rescued by the British steamer Karagola and their flying boat taken in tow for Rangoon, said a message intercepted by the Radio Corporation of America here tonight.

A wireless message said the Karagola had picked up the four German airmen from their flying boat after it had been forced down yesterday in the Indian ocean by a broken water pump. Later the steamer reported "The plane O. K., being in tow of Karagola."

The vessel is due at Rangoon, Burma, some time today, another message from the Rangoon airport said the plane was forced down in the Bay of Bengal and distress signals were radioed.

CHINESE DEMAND ARMED DRIVE TO WIN MANCHURIA

Lytton Report Assailed by Ruling Party Chiefs.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 11 [Tuesday]—Fifteen members of the central executive committee, constituting approximately half the membership of the governing Kuomintang party within the committee, today issued a signed statement denouncing the Lytton commission's report to the league of nations on Manchuria.

The signers included the so-called Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, who recently went to Kalgan, north of Peiping, on the Mongolian border, for the alleged purpose of organizing an armed force against the government of Manchuku.

Report Is Denounced.

The statement declares that the Lytton commission's recommendations —demilitarization of Manchuria, establishment of a special autonomous regime, recognition of Japanese rights and interests—all are incompatible with China's sovereignty, territorial and administrative integrity.

"Hence," the statement continues, "it is suicidal for China to place further reliance in the league of nations, which is exposed to impotence and inability to uphold right and justice."

The group therefore declares that China's only course is to open armed resistance and urges the people to compel the Nanking government to carry out a policy of armed opposition to Japan.

See Victory for Japan.

Amplifying the stand, the group declares that the acceptance of the Lytton proposal would legalize Japan's position in Manchuria and would open the way for international control, thereby setting a dangerous precedent for similar action over the entire country, thereby making China a dependency of the powers.

Simultaneously with the issuance of the statement, the foreign affairs commission at Nanking, in a formal report, also denounced the Lytton recommendations as unacceptable and incompatible with China's sovereignty.

The Nanking report said that China's official opinion on the Lytton report is under consideration by the central political council and will be sent to the Chinese delegation at Geneva in the near future. The sharp differences of opinion regarding the Lytton report promise to become an acute domestic political issue in China.

Rebels Seize Large Area.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Oct. 10.—Chinese rebel forces are in control of the entire Barga region and almost all of the Chinese Eastern railway east of the Nonni river, according to dispatches from Manchuria today. The troops, who have hoisted the Chinese flag, have revolted against the government of Manchukuo.

Gen. Su Ping-wen, unconfirmd Chinese reports said, had established a new "government" at Manchuli and was claiming dominion over all the territory west of the Nonni.

Dispatches from Mukden said that the Japanese army launched an intensive drive today to wipe out Chinese insurgents in southern Manchuria and to crush the rebellion in the northwest. The Japanese military leaders plan to drive the insurgents into the forests and mountains and starve them out.

China Disregards Anniversary.

NANKING, Oct. 10.—(AP)—China's most important holiday, the twenty-first anniversary of the establishment of the republic, was not observed today.

A government order said: "The Manchurian crisis necessitates giving attention to the national salvation instead of to fun and amusement." It was the first time in the republic's history that the day was not celebrated.

DUTCH STIRRED AS JAPAN SEEKS TO BUY ISLAND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

THE HAGUE, Oct. 10.—A report that Japan is seeking to purchase the territory of Timor from Portugal has alarmed Dutch colonial circles. One part of the Island of Timor is in possession of the Netherlands and it is feared that if Japan gets a foothold in the rich Dutch East Indian archipelago the Japanese will gradually extend their influence.

It is also feared Japan would use Timor as a naval base against Singapore, the Philippines, and Australia. It is expected here that England will endeavor to influence Portugal to refuse Japan's offer.

[Timor is about 1,000 miles directly south of the Philippines and about 300 miles north of Australia, being the southernmost large island of the East Indian group. Portugal's territory has an area of 7,330 and population of 451,604.]

2 ARE INDICTED AS FALSIFIERS OF CIRCULATION

2 Others Accused of Attempted Bribery.

Youngstown, O., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Mahoning county grand jury today returned four indictments against six persons, including two officials of the Youngstown Telegram, who were charged with falsifying circulation figures. Two of the others were charged with attempting to bribe a county sanitary district official with $200,000 to obtain contracts.

"This is only one round in a long battle with the county prosecutor over public affairs," said Felix Bruner, editor of the Telegram.

Bonds of $1,000 Posted.

John T. Watters, business manager, and James J. Morrisey, circulation manager, were named jointly in an indictment charging the newspaper with padding circulation figures "for the purpose of deceiving advertisers." They were served with the indictments and posted $1,000 bond.

The grand jury recommended that Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas submit to the United States district attorney evidence of alleged false affidavits "pertaining to the Telegram's circulation."

The grand jury report charged an attack made by the Telegram on Fred La Belle, a director of the Mahoning valley sanitary district, a $9,500,000 project, "resulted in a loss to taxpayers of this community of a sum in excess of $500,000."

Awarding of Contract.

It charged La Belle was approached by Albert A. Reilly, vice president and associate editor of the Telegram, "for the purpose of attempting to influence La Belle in awarding certain contracts . . . to a proposed company to consist of Gallitzen I. Reilly, Albert A. Reilly, W. C. Reilly, John G. Beck and Albert F. Riley."

"We further find," the grand jury report said, "an attempt was made by John G. Beck and Albert F. Riley to bribe La Belle in the amount of $200,000 for the purpose of securing contracts."

The three Reillys are brothers. W. C. Reilly is vice president of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and Gallitzen Reilly a contractor. Beck is from Pittsburgh and Riley is from Chicago.

Broken Water Main Floods Subway at Theater Hour

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A broken water main in 40th street, just south of Times square, flooded the west side I. R. T. subway early tonight, as the theater crowds were at their height. Surface cars were also blocked; several automobiles marooned, and many basements, including the costume room in the Metropolitan Opera house, were flooded. The water surged more than knee deep through 40th street and poured through the sidewalk gratings into the subway.

PRINCIPAL ASKS AID IN FEEDING ANEMIC PUPILS

Makes Appeal to Hungry Children's Fund.

Mrs. Edna Meyers, principal of the Lewis-Champlin school, 62d street and Stewart avenue, asked yesterday for aid from the Hungry School Children's fund to feed fifty anemic children in the school's three "open window" rooms.

These children are pupils in the first to the sixth grades. Because they are anemic they are given milk daily by the board of education's fund for that purpose, but there is no money to provide hot lunches in the Lewis-Champlin school except a small temporary fund that teachers have raised in the neighborhood.

"We hope to keep the lunches going until the Hungry School Children's fund can come to our rescue," Mrs. Meyers said. "There are in all about 100 children really in need of hot lunches and unable to pay even the penny lunch money. The fund fed that many last year and the need is just as urgent this year."

Need Additional Rations.

While many families are fed by the relief agencies, Mrs. Meyers said, that is not enough for the anemic children. Their rations must be supplemented, she declared, by the hot noonday lunch. They must have a hot dish, vegetables, plenty of bread and butter, and dessert, in addition to the milk.

"We plan to keep records of the weight of the children in homes where their families are getting relief," Mrs. Meyers said. "Another thing we try to do is to give recipes to the families as to how best to prepare the rations for the children."

The total of gifts to the Hungry School Children's fund dropped decidedly yesterday, only $251.05 reaching the fund. This gives a total of $1,641.55. Among the contributors were three children who held a bazaar and sent $1.20 to the fund. They were Mary Jo Hoyne and Teddy and Dorothy Salinger of Winnetka.

RICH AMERICAN MADE HONORARY CITIZEN OF PARIS

PARIS, France, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Edward Tuck, a native of New Hampshire, who has made his home in Paris since 1890 and has given this city museums and numerous art objects, today was made an honorary citizen of this city at a ceremony at the city hall attended by notables from both countries. Gen. John J. Pershing and J. P. Marriner, chargé d'affaires of the American embassy; Gabriel Hanotaux, former foreign minister, and Mme. Jusserand, widow of the late ambassador, were present.

Baron de Fontenay, president of the municipal council, in bestowing the honor said, "This capital upon which you have bestowed graces chosen among the most authentic masterpieces of French genius salutes you with respect."

In his acceptance Mr. Tuck quoted Benjamin Franklin: "I would rather have it said of me 'he lived usefully' than 'he died rich.'"

Mr. Tuck was associated years ago with James J. Hill in the Northern Pacific railroad. He also was interested in copper and other mining properties.

PARAGUAY CLAIMS ANNIHILATION OF BOLIVIAN FORCE

ASCUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The Paraguayan army command announced capture of two forts from Bolivia in the disputed Gran Chaco region today and "annihilation" of a Bolivian force near Yukra.

The Bolivians were reported fleeing toward Fort Arce after abandoning Fort Ramirez, about ten miles southeast of Fort Boqueron. Fort Carrales, taken from the Paraguayans last August, was said to have been recaptured.

Bolivia Confirms Fighting.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Oct. 10.—(AP)—An army bulletin said today that four Bolivians and at least 15 Paraguayans were killed in skirmishes in the Gran Chaco territory.

EX-BANKER SEEKS RETURN OF MILLION GIVEN TO HIS WIFE

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Hitherto unrevealed difficulties between Henry H. Wehrhane, 60 years old, retired banker, and his thrice wed wife, who is 38, came to light today.

Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook heard motions on Wehrhane's behalf to recover $1,000,000 in securities given his wife as a wedding present in 1927.

Charles S. Whitman, for Wehrhane, asked an order to prevent sale of the securities pending outcome of the suit. Nathan L. Miller, for Mrs. Wehrhane, moved that all details regarding her life prior to her present marriage be stricken from the records as irrelevant.

Justice McCook reserved decision on both motions.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10.—The Shanghai market for American automobiles, trucks and buses, received encouragement yesterday with the opening of the new highway connecting Shanghai with Hangchow and Nanking, the national capital, and other points of the interior.

Up until now the Shanghai district has not been connected with the highway systems of the interior to the north and south. Hence the sale of motor cars was restricted. Shanghai agents for various American automobiles celebrated the opening of the new highway system with competitive trial runs.

Agents said that the road development is certain to speed motorization of the Yangtze valley. Bus lines already are operating along the new roads, using American cars almost exclusively.

Soldiers Rout Mine Strikers With Tear Gas

Disperse Crowds as Pit Opens at Hewittville.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Taylorville was warlike this morning. The Hewittville mine, Peabody No. 58, was reported under control of the National Guard.

The ranks of local strikers who went to the Hewittville mine to picket were reinforced by hundreds from other parts of the state. The troops, however, using tear gas, kept the pickets off the main roads to the mine, forcing a large number into empty store buildings and Hewittville homes.

One Hewittville woman objected to the troops and was ordered off the street. She stood on her porch and harangued the troops until they not only sent her into the house but drove about 60 men whom she had invited to take refuge in her yard into the house with her. They were kept inside until after time for the mine to start work.

Tear gas bombs were set off when a crowd of two or three hundred gathered near the west city limits on England, Prairie, and Rich streets. When ordered to disperse by Capt. Cook of Lawrenceville they did not obey promptly and the captain's men used tear gas. Nearer the mine other gas bombs were used to scatter small crowds.

The coal company reported that 98 men went below in the Hewittville mine. There is said to be a full force of about 50 at work on top. Not all who reported for top work could be used. At the same time the company reports a full force of about 400 at work at Langley mine No. 9.

Soviet Warships Anchor Off Estonia; Crews Seasick

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 10.—Two Soviet battleships, the Kommuna and the Silatch, today anchored in the shelter of an island off Tallinn against international regulations. Inquiries revealed that the most members of the crews became seasick in yesterday's gale and that the ships were part of the squadron searching for the sunken soviet submarine Rabotchi. The rest of the squadron sped to Kronstadt for shelter.

IN THE WORLD'S GREATEST MARKET

There's buying right now in New York . . . Big Buying.

And, it's available for any manufacturer who has the nerve to throw his hat into the ring and go after the business.

Here is a market that provides one-seventh of the retail business of the whole United States . . . has a population bigger than 14 western states . . . is easily covered by salesmen . . . and can be sold thru a great dominating medium like the New York Herald Tribune.

So, we say to you . . . display your story consistently in this sales-creating medium and take the most effective forward step toward sales success that you can take in New York. We can back up every assertion we make with facts . . . actual examples of proved response.

Sears, Roebuck and Co., for example, advertised a $750.00 log cabin in the Herald Tribune in the summer of 1931. Over 1,100 inquiries were received . . . over $800,000 worth of potential business. The advertisement was repeated in March, this year . . . and it drew more than 800 replies the first week!

In 1931, Electrol oil burners advertised most in the Herald Tribune . . . and their sales jumped amazingly, surpassing 1930 figures by 50%!

There are many, many other such instances of pulling power in the Herald Tribune, that prove how it consistently gives more returns for advertising dollars, for the Herald Tribune has more circulation on weekdays in New York's well-to-do suburbs than any other standard size morning newspaper.

These are FACTS! We have more on tap that are equally convincing.

Write, wire or 'phone today for the complete story of the Herald Tribune and its vast balanced audience that is waiting to buy your product!

Newspapers Can Sell Your Merchandise NOW!

You can judge the Herald Tribune only by seeing and reading it yourself. Buy next Sunday's issue . . . or better still, subscribe for it regularly at $5.00 a year.

Mr. W. E. Donahue, Adv. Mgr.
The Chicago Tribune
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Mr. Donahue:

We would like to give you the second chapter of "The Tale of The Shirt". The first chapter, you remember, took place in June when we sold 31,680 shirts from a page ad in the Sunday Tribune.

The second chapter took place yesterday. Sunday we had another full page ad in the Tribune featuring 77¢ shirts - and this time we sold even more shirts than we did in June, and averaged more shirts to a customer. The total sales by mail, telephone, and over the counter, were 36,457 shirts.

The customers remembered the first ad - and they remembered the fine quality of the shirts - the big value - and the satisfaction they got. That's why Sunday's ad was such a success.

You see - it proves that concentration in the Tribune pays.

Yours very truly,
Maurice L Rothschild

"WE would like to give you the second chapter of 'The Tale of the Shirt,'" writes Maurice L Rothschild.

"You see—it proves that concentration in the Tribune pays."

Daily and Sunday, the Tribune has the interested attention of far more families in Chicago and suburbs than read any other Chicago newspaper.

It pays Maurice L Rothschild to concentrate his advertising in the Tribune—and it will pay you!

Spanish Rebel Has Doubts on Rule of Masses

Finds They Lack Ability to Follow Leaders.

"The Revolt of the Masses," by José Ortega y Grasset. [Norton.]

WE are told by the mysteriously anonymous translator of "The Revolt of the Masses" that its author, Señor José Ortega y Grasset, not only shares with Miguel de Unamuno the intellectual leadership of a large section of modern Spain, but that he, like Unamuno, is a supporter of the new Spanish régime and a member of parliament. The combination is piquant to an American who does not know that any professor of metaphysics has a seat in the American congress, although Dr. Dewey has lately helped to organize a new party.

It is to be hoped the fusion of metaphysics and practical politics represented by the author of "The Revolt of the Masses" will attract a large reading public in the United States to his book, for we doubt there is any people who would be more benefited by a digestion of its contents. The book is in form a group of articles. This has produced some repetition but not to the average reader's disadvantage. Señor Ortega himself describes his tactics as "marching seven times around the walls of Jericho," and that, after all, was a notable success.

It is to be explained at the beginning, as the author himself recognizes and is careful to do, that the words in his title—revolt and masses—must not be interpreted in the political sense, either exclusively or primarily. Public life, he points out, is not solely political, but equally, and even primarily, intellectual, moral, economic, religious. By masses Señor Ortega does not mean the proletariat or any political, economic, or social class. "Society is always a dynamic unity of two component factors: minorities and masses. The minorities are individuals or groups of individuals which are specially qualified. The mass is the assemblage of persons not specially qualified . . . The mass is the average man."

With this in mind, the reader will proceed to Señor Ortega's opening assertion: "There is one fact which, whether for good or ill, is of utmost importance in the public life of Europe at the present moment. This fact is the accession of the masses to complete social power. As the masses, by definition, neither should nor can direct their own personal existence, and still less rule society in general, this fact means that actually Europe is suffering from the greatest crisis that can afflict peoples, nations, and civilization." (Señor Ortega is not interested in the American democracy, although he recognizes it as an illustration of his thesis.)

The mass man having acceded to complete social power, and it is quite obvious to others than Señor Ortega, the reader will ask what his author's conception of this formidable power is. "The mass," he says, "is all that which sets no value on itself—good or ill—based on specific grounds, but which feels itself 'just like everybody,' and nevertheless is not concerned about it; is, in fact, quite happy to feel itself as one with everybody else . . . For there is no doubt that the most radical division that it is possible to make of humanity is that which splits it into two classes of creatures: those who make great demands on themselves, piling up difficulties and duties; and those who demand nothing special of themselves, but for whom to live is to be every moment what they already are, without imposing on themselves any effort towards perfection: mere buoys that float on the waves."

Señor Ortega's chapters on the evolution of the mass man as he is at this time cannot be summarized here for lack of space, but the following must be quoted upon the mass man's two fundamental traits. They are "the free expansion of his vital desires and, therefore, of his personality, and his radical ingratitude toward all that has made possible the ease of his existence." It is the condition, says our philosopher, of the spoiled child, and it does not equip him to fulfill the responsibilities which his accession to power involves. It makes him, also, indocile to leadership by the competent. "The mass man would never have accepted authority external to himself had not his surroundings violently forced him . . . On the contrary, the select man, the excellent man, is urged by interior necessity to appeal from himself to some standard beyond himself, superior to himself, whose service he freely accepts."

The danger to civilization in the accession of the masses to complete social authority is, in sum, in what Señor Ortega deems the inherent inability of the masses to respect the essential principles of civilization or to understand and therefore to support what has made civilization and their own well-being. "For, in fact, the common man, finding himself in a world so excellent technically and socially, believes that it has been produced by nature and never thinks of the personal efforts of highly endowed individuals which the creation of this new world presupposed. Still less will he admit the notion that all these facilities still require the support of certain difficult human virtues the least failure of which would cause the rapid disappearance of the whole magnificent structure." (When overcome by disaster homo sapiens inclines to create a scapegoat; or, as Señor Ortega puts it, "In the disturbances caused by the scarcity of food the mob goes in search of bread, and the means it employs is generally to wreck the bakeries.")

The very interesting and often illuminating processes of Señor Ortega's analysis cannot be followed here. It is hoped the quotations will send the reader to his book, and nowhere is its challenge more worth pondering than in the American democracy of today. Since 1929 there has probably been nothing more frequent than our demands for "leadership." But there can be no leadership for a people that does not know how to follow.

Señor Ortega, on the threshold of Spain's experiment in popular government and himself one of its supporters, thus looks with grave eyes upon its weaknesses. Americans, after a century and a quarter of democratic evolution, will find a good deal in his survey to agree with and much to illuminate American tendencies at this stage. T. B.

Graceful Walk Proves Great Feminine Asset to Any Woman

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We women are overlooking an awfully good beauty bet not practicing walking to the tune of the radio. We don't need the radio on, to be sure, but a little music makes any duty less irksome.

Observation of famous beauties and interviews with them indicate that they didn't come by their graceful carriage without some practice. The famous Dolores, who used to grace the Follies, and one of the most gorgeous moving bodies ever seen, learned that walk of hers under the direction of the famous modiste with whom she enrolled as model. It's not just rumor that she used to have to practice walking around the room with a book on her head. She did it, which accounted for that steady, imposing head bearing of hers and the graceful swing of the hips.

If you've been on any of the West Indies cruises you have noticed the way the native women swing along in lovely rhythmical movement carrying incredible baskets of fruit or washing on their heads. It isn't alone what this practice does to the leg movement, but what it does to the upper part of the body, the neck, the shoulders, and the head, that counts. There's an undisputed elegance in the head and neck carriage of these native women after the load has been lifted off their heads.

The perfect Spanish dancer, they tell us, is the one who can commit her dance steps with the least swaying of carrings. This "head control" is the thing we're trying to recommend here as a beauty asset incomparable, and the thing one might easily get by putting a book on the head and parading around the room in which the radio music is turned on.

Women surely have the figures now. Anyway, they know how and where they can get younger ones if they want them. But, since it is the great feminine appeal that is the moment's ambition, here is a bet, as I say, that could be taken up with devastating consequences to the male.

Spend a little time and thought on that walk of yours! The man notices it more quickly than he does the Chanel frock you may be wearing. It has more lure than a whole case of makeup cosmetics.

Symphony Orchestra Opens Rehearsals for New Season

Picking up the melodic threads where they laid them down last April, Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra held their first rehearsal of the 1932-'33 season at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. The first program will be played from the same stage Thursday evening of this week and repeated on Friday afternoon. With Dvorak's symphony, "From the New World," and several briefer compositions, Mr. Stock and his fine orchestra will usher in the new concert season.

The Salmaggi Opera company, originally announced to open at the Studebaker theater tonight, has postponed its operations for a week and will open Tuesday night, Oct. 18.

Ruth Klauber, pianist, will play a program of her own compositions at the home of Mrs. John J. Seeley, 1047 Hyde Park boulevard, this afternoon.

New Fashions Coax the Cash Out of Purses

Women Welcome Return of Glamour.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

NOT very long ago the lone shopper, prowling rather disconsolately about the shops, experienced that funny feeling of being about the only person with an errand . . . but these brisk and crisp days it's as much as your comfort is worth to try to cruise any faster than a stroll through the crowded shops filled with kindred souls, probably having the best time they have had in three years.

Sales persons and buyers alike look rather dazed but happy and the gal who dashes down "just to look" joins the crowd and spends money with a gratifying vigor.

The new clothes must have accomplished this miracle . . . stunning new collections of suits, coats, hats and the necessary "little things" that are crowding the cases in every shop are charming more money out of well concealed hideouts than all the combined efforts of political orators and gentlemen with staggering reasons and theories about finances.

Fashions this year have, thank goodness, a certain glamour, an air of distinction. New clothes are so designed that we can all look different from any one else. For instance, coats, there doesn't seem to be one and lo only knockout model. There are so many exceptionally beautiful creations, each a perfect find for one particular personality, that you can invest your coat money without wondering how many other females you will meet during the next few weeks who were enamored of the same identical creation!

Suits and dresses are likewise available in plentiful assortments, in all kinds of fabrics, with a flattering amount of originality present in each model.

Waistlines, or their proper fashionable location, need no longer vex or displease any one. . . If you're clever you'll wear your waistline just where it best accents or complements your silhouette. You'll be hearing lots about Patou's insurgent departure this fall during his display of new winter apparel, for he has a gay, artistic disregard of consequences, shoved the wandering waistline down to the hips. You've seen this before, so there isn't any cause for dismay.

The thing to do is to visualize yourself a few years back, and if you liked that hip anchoring then the chances are you'll slide the beltline down this year. Returning buyers, rather skeptical about this downward shift of the beltline, returned to town with the illuminating stories that all the youngsters on the ship were enthusiastically sponsoring this shift to the south.

This is no year to hide any gift at fine handwork . . . if you have nimble fingers that can deftly shirr, or embroider, or sew a fine seam, or facet, or neatly guide yards of braid around curves and angles, this is the season to do your stuff.

Tricky French originals have more exquisite handwork than ever before . . . enchanting new short evening jackets are shirred from neckline to waistline, including the long, wide, loose sleeves.

The voluminous new sleeves go in for fagoting, intricate puffing, fine embroidery, and decorative braids in a big way. If your grandmother patiently spent hours showing you how to master all this truly feminine handiwork you are indeed lucky, for you can embellish frocks and gowns with that bit of handwork that marks the definitely distinctive models as created by famous French designers.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we make in our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

By way of warding off old man Depreciation and the toll he takes of our house each year, this is the month to repair the chimney, clean the flues, the furnace and the boiler. Make sure there are no broken places in the grate, replace the boiler door if it is warped or cracked. Check the condition of automatic controls. It is good business to employ an expert to go over the heating system with vacuum chimney and furnace cleaner. There is truth if not poetry in the old jingle, "A thought in time will save a chill, and help to cut your heating bill."

"Tiger Shark" Has Thrilling Fishing Scenes

THE CAST.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!
"Tiger shark!"

When that dread cry falls from the lips of a lookout, deep sea fishermen gird their loins and prepare for trouble. For

Is, lo, the very dregs!
His appetite craves human flesh—
A sailor's arms or legs . . . !
He circles round and round a ship
His every tooth a sword
And awful is the seaman's fate
Who hops to fall o'erboard!

There are some great, some thrilling fishing scenes in "Tiger Shark"! Episodes to make the heart of the fishing addict leap and pound; scenes that cannot fail to hold the fascinated attention of the layman. Edward G. Robinson gives a sympathy inspiring and workmanlike performance in a rôle as different from that of "Little Cæsar"—in which he made his first big hit—as a rôle could be. Richard Arlen and Zita Johann are splendid as his pal and gal. That's about all that can be said in commendation of the film. Trite story and gruesome incident prevent the production from rating high as entertainment.

The little Portuguese hero's substitute of an iron hook for the hand confiscated by a tiger shark will bring back memories of Captain Hook in "Peter Pan." Various horrific incidents will recall ones of like nature in "Moby Dick." The romantic sequences will bring to mind innumerable films—especially the Jack Holt and Ralph Graves cinemas, wherein a girl comes between buddies and, innocently or otherwise, works havoc with their friendship. The finale—in which Mr. Robinson dies at length, voicing sweet sentiments to soft music—has the aroma of Little Eva's passing in "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Just the same—you do learn a lot about what men go through to furnish you with brain food and, chances are, you'll down your next tuna fish salad or sandwich with respect.

To sup on dish of tuna fish
No more will be a lark
For as you eat that dish of fish
You'll think of "Tiger Shark."

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

Copyright, 1932, By Ivan Spaulding Co., Inc.

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

KIDNAPED.

As he knelt on a long, massive chest and rested his hands on the broad sill, Prof. Fordney thrust his head through the opened window and called to Inspector Kelley at the foot of the ladder.

"Find anything?"

"One set of footprints; that's all."

He turned to the maid huddled in a chair.

"If I'd thought for a minute he was going to kidnap the baby I would have risked my life," she sobbed.

"Can you describe him?"

"No. I was coming up the stairs just as a man crawled in the window. His head was down so I didn't see his face. I dashed back to the living room, but Mr. and Mrs. McNally and the chauffeur were gone. I then stole quietly back up the stairs and found he had escaped with the baby."

"How was the child dressed?"

"Wore only a pair of diapers."

"Would you know if any of his clothes were missing?"

"Surely. I'll look in the chest."

As she reached to open it Fordney said, "Just a minute. Examine it thoroughly, sergeant, and don't forget the prints. I'll take yours, miss."

"Not a mark on it, professor, except these fingerprints," said Reynolds a few minutes later.

"No doubt those are mine," exclaimed the maid.

Fordney put the two sets in his pocket and apparently dismissing the matter said, "Never mind about the clothes, now. That business of stepping on the toys in the baby's crib wasn't so clever, either. This is an inside job, of course."

HOW DID HE KNOW?

Pamphlets Are Designed to Help Parents

They Answer Hundreds of Questions.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Babies are being born all the time, which means that some young people who were not parents suddenly become fathers and mothers. Which, in turn, means that what they had no interest in previously as suddenly becomes an absorbing topic. It's like deciding to buy a new coat, or having a chance to go to Europe. You begin to watch the latest models being shown, or to read steamship and travel ads with avidity where before both items had been merely blind spots to you.

So, when you become a mother you may start reading this column and if you're only beginning to do so you won't know certain things about our booklet service. Or, you may have children and all may have been smooth sailing until suddenly Tommy begins to have tantrums, or the baby won't eat, and you need help. Several such mothers have recently written in saying, "Where can I get a list of your booklets?" Following is a partial answer:

The booklet service is divided into three groups: First, we have a group of booklets in which I have written in full on such topics as obedience, stubbornness, patience, shyness, orderliness and choosing books for children. And second, we have a group of leaflets which give general suggestions, but which also refer you to good short reading—sometimes as short in form as pamphlets. These are so arranged because the subject is too large a one to handle briefly in a short and free booklet. Among these are "Cultivating Mealtime Habits," "Sex Education," "Nailbiting," "Elimination Habits," "How Not to Say 'Don't Touch.'"

And in the third group are the leaflets which contain reading suggestions only, such as "Child Management," "Keeping the Well Baby Well," "Informal Study List," "Correction of Stammering," "Speech Clinics."

A complete list of the material we send out would take a great deal of space, so instead I would suggest that if there is a subject on which you would like help, write in and we will either send you a booklet on the subject or other advice. A stamped, self-addressed envelop should accompany all requests.

Miss Adelaide Atkin Goes to League Parley

Represents Local Group at Boston.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Chicago Junior league is to be represented by Miss Adelaide Atkin, sister of the president.

Miss Margot Atkin, at the welfare conference to be held in Boston Oct. 17-21. Miss Atkin leaves on Friday of this week for Boston and will be back in time for the fall meeting on Monday, Oct. 24, when Mrs. John G. Pratt of New Orleans, president of the national association of Junior leagues, will address the members.

The fall meeting will be held in the morning and will be followed by luncheon. Mrs. Pratt also will talk to the provisional members at the first of their lectures this year, on Tuesday, the 25th.

Miss Adelaide Atkin is placement chairman of the Chicago league, which means that she places the volunteers in welfare work, a responsible job, it would seem, especially this year when agencies are depending more than ever on volunteer service. The workers, too, will be given greater responsibility than ever for work will be entrusted to them that used to be done by experienced, paid workers.

Although the league officers have little to say yet about the "Enchanted Island" of the Century of Progress, work on it is progressing rapidly and already the children's wonderland is in the process of being constructed at the fair grounds. The league suggested the name for the island and drew the initial drawings, which were enlarged upon and completed by Nathaniel Owings, husband of the former Emily Otis.

When the "Enchanted Island" opens, the league's Children's theater will put on a repertoire of children's plays, but the members have plenty of work to do before then for it is the league's job to handle the promotion of the "Enchanted Island," running the newspaper publicity and contacting all the schools of the city.

Miss Dorothy Schmidt, who was the very efficient president of the league for two terms, is Century of Progress chairman. Miss Helen Tieken is director of the Children's theater, of which Miss Florence Higinbotham is business manager and Miss Elaine Blackman, secretary.

Announce Two Debut Parties.

Two daughters of well known Chicago families will make their formal bows to society on Friday, Dec. 30—Miss Marie Swift and Miss Josephine Patterson.

Miss Swift, who is at Bryn Mawr for her first year, is to be presented by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift, at a dinner dance at the Casino, and Miss Patterson, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Medill Patterson, will make her debut at a ball at the Blackstone hotel later that same night. Both parties are to be simple, in keeping with the general trend of the times.

Mr. and Mrs. Swift and their elder daughter, Miss Geraldine Swift, who made her debut two years ago, have left for a three weeks' motor trip through the east and are at the Virginia Hot Springs now. They closed their Lake Forest residence and moved back into their town house at 1551 Astor street before they departed.

The Murder of Caroline Bundy

By ALICE CAMPBELL.

SYNOPSIS.

Neil Starkey, American biographer, is engaged by Caroline Bundy to compile the life and letters of her late father, a famous English biologist. Miss Bundy is in poor health and acting peculiarly. She has hired a photographer, named Tilbury, as bailiff, and he and his wife, an ill bred couple, hold a strange influence over Caroline. Natasha Andreyev, Caroline's half Russian niece, acts as her aunt's secretary. She detests the Tilburys. Caroline tells Neil that her father, a man of science, was also a mystic. Caroline and the Tilburys hold nightly meetings in the library. Giles Gisborne, vicar of a nearby parish, and his sister, Rachel, are friends of Neil's. Neil is attracted to Natasha, but is baffled by her odd behavior. She is giving money to a man she meets secretly. Emily Brassilton, an old friend, swoops down on Caroline to rescue her. Caroline promises to follow Emily to Paris. Natasha drives her aunt to London. Natasha returns a few days later and tells Neil that her aunt gave her a pearl necklace, which she sold. She receives a wire which Caroline sent from London, asking her to look for an alligator bag left in the car. The bag is not found. Caroline doesn't reach Paris. The police are notified. Caroline's body is found in a ditch near her estate. She'd been brutally murdered. Neil realizes that Natasha will be under suspicion. She refuses to account for all her time in London. Neil goes to London to check up on Natasha's movements there.

INSTALLMENT XXVI.

A STARTLING DISCOVERY.

"MURDER AT BRISTOL. . . . WELL KNOWN SOMERSET WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN DITCH. . . . DAUGHTER OF EMINENT SCIENTIST."

These headlines leaped at Neil from the newspaper he unfolded in the London bound train. The small print below, as in the Times account already seen, gave no new details, but half a column devoted to Theodore Bundy's achievements. Nothing to be learned here, but a good indication of what the general public was thinking reached him through the comments uttered by the couple opposite. The man, frostily red of face, plainly of the hunting contingent, was even now remarking in a cheerful tone, "Strikes me, Elinor, that this niece—what does she call herself?—will bear looking into. Bad lot, these Russians. Don't know if I'd believe the pack of them on oath. Soon knife you as look at you."

To which his wife protested: "But not this brutal kind of murder, Charles! O, this isn't a woman's crime, surely. Now if it were arsenic, it wouldn't surprise me."

During the argumentative harangue which followed Neil turned cold and hot alternatively. If on such slight premises strangers were already taking this view, what might not be said when further information had leaked out? If it did leak out. . . . Fortunately no one but himself knew of that scene at the corner last night. Well, he would take good care no one did learn of it. It had meant a sleepless night for him, and though he had hoped his morning interview would dispel certain doubts the girl, when confronted with his knowledge, had denied nothing, explained nothing. She had listened with a stony face and when he had finished merely asked what he intended to do about it. At that he had once more lost his temper.

"Strikes me, Elinor, that his niece—what does she call herself?—will bear looking into. Bad lot, these Russians."

"Do? What do you expect me to do? Keep quiet, of course. Only, can't you understand what came over me when that car drove up and I confidently believed you were going off in it?"

"Going off? O—so that was your idea! You imagined—perhaps you still imagine—I'm concerned in this terrible affair?"

"What does it matter what I thought? It's what other people may think that frightens me."

"Other people don't know—or I hope they don't. Would you be worried if you hadn't been told about my selling those pearls? For that matter, I can tell you some more damaging facts. What about the two ten pound notes in my purse which the bank can identify? And what about my having been alone in London for so many hours that I could easily have driven to Bristol and back?"

"Then you really were alone?" He seized on this declaration with fresh eagerness, only to find when it came to the point she was hard to pin down.

"This, at all events, is true. I can't produce one single reliable witness who saw me from 6 o'clock onward. I've racked my brain, but it's no use."

"At least there was the waitress who served you at dinner."

"I said, 'reliable witness.' I don't for a moment suppose we can count on her. If I don't recall her face, why should she remember mine? The place was crowded. It always is. I can draw you a diagram of where I sat, that's all."

"Never mind. Tell me as truthfully as you can how you spent your time."

The implication of his words brought a flush to her face, but without comment she repeated in greater detail what she had told Gisborne the previous evening. This done, she continued firmly, "When I left the Carleton I drove about, both before and after dinner. For one thing, from about 7 to 8, I went out to Wimbledon to pay a call."

He pricked up his ears at this. "What, you went to see some one? That's distinctly better."

"No, it isn't. The person was away. I did speak to the hall porter, but as the lights had gone wrong and we were in total darkness he'd never know me again."

"Perhaps he will. Let's have the name of the flats."

"Sorry, I can't give you that. I assure you it wouldn't help."

Again he was brought up against a stone wall. No persuasion would move her, and indeed now he thought it over he could not avoid wondering if this visit were an invention to which, later on, she might be able to lend the color of truth.

"Well, then, say you drove about the whole time; but you must have slept somewhere. To what hotel did you go, and when?"

Several seconds now elapsed. Then she countered his query with one of her own, wistfully ironic. "Would you believe me if I said I passed the entire night in the car?"

"Not unless you can provide proof. Anyhow, you could hardly hit on a more compromising statement."

"I suppose you're right." She drew a long breath. "Well! At 12 o'clock I garaged the car at a place in Greek street, Soho. I think the proprietor's name was Pollard. It's easy enough to locate. And then——" She looked away from him. "If you must know, I went to a rather horrid little pub called Bianchini's. It's close by, also in Greek street. If you insist on inquiring for me there I can't stop you; only it's no good giving my name. You'll have to ask about—Mrs. Addison."

It was as though a two ton weight had landed on his heart. At last, marking noughts and crosses on the bit of paper he held, he repeated in a hard voice, "Mrs. Addison. Yes. Then you are married?"

"No."

He had a desperate hope that she would supplement her denial by some excuse, but although twice she opened dry lips to speak, she ended by saying, "Why need you go on with this? You're going to hate it."

"Do I have to remind you that this has nothing to do with me? I'm setting out determinedly to find as many people as possible who can vouch for your being in London. It's of the utmost importance to get hold of them before they've forgotten—or it will be if the police fail to trace your aunt's movements. Now, can you supply me with a photograph of yourself?"

"I've only the one on my passport. Here it is."

Turning the pages of the little book she handed him, he caught sight of a purple stamp. It represented a visa, dated 21st March—Saturday.

"Good God!" he cried. "What's this? Persia——!"

"Yes—why not? I told you I meant to go away."

"But—Persia! What can you intend to do there?"

"What I'm doing now. Drive a car."

From his "A. A." guide he found out the exact time it would take to journey by car from London to Bristol. The result was far from reassuring. Yes, the situation was this: If he could satisfy himself that Natasha had spent the interval from approximately 8:15 to 9 o'clock at the Corner House restaurant he would breathe easily, but not otherwise. Unhappily he knew only too well how hard it might be to obtain proof of this crucial fact. Five days is a long time for a waitress to remember a chance customer. He had small hope that this one would.

Since Scotland Yard had extracted all the information to be got from the London library he could give that august institution a miss. Caroline Bundy, for many years a member, had rung up on Thursday last to ask that certain archæological works on Somerset be set aside for her, but the volumes had not been claimed nor had the doorman, who knew her by sight, seen her come in. The inference staring one in the face was a double one—first, that the old lady had altered her decision on the very threshold, and second that her change of plan hinged on the loss of her alligator bag. Natasha held this opinion and he agreed with her, but why had Miss Bundy been unwilling for the girl to see her safely to her friend's flat? Did Natasha know the reason, or was it something private and concealed, part and parcel of the victim's obsession? For a moment he inclined to this latter view, but soon it was banished from his thought by a startling discovery—banished utterly, not to return till much water had flowed under the bridge.

Pendulum of Favor Swings Back to Bran

BY MARY MEADE.

We Americans seem to be built after the style of a pendulum. We go at things with such a tremendous amount of enthusiasm that we can never for long stay balanced on a safe and satisfactory medium. We insist upon working on the assumption that "if a little is good, more must be better," and, in consequence, we get into constant hot water by carrying a good thing so far that it boomerangs, and on the way back frequently knocks us down and leaves us with the conviction that our whole idea was wrong, and not, as is really the case, just our extravagance in applying it.

To be specific. The subject under debate is bran. The question before the house—to eat or not to eat?

About ten years ago, bran was considered a useless, indigestible food product. It seldom went into cooking and was increasingly being refined out of the tons of white wheat flour that was going out each day to home and commercial bakers.

Then quite suddenly scientists decided that what America, with her sluggish habits, really needed was not more medicine but more roughage. Fibrous vegetables and fruits, skins, peelings, and edible husks became popular. Bran—the outside of the grain kernel—was eaten in huge amounts—in fact, in such unwise quantities that the food canal, instead of being cleared was blocked and the whole system badly upset.

And then, as usual, the pendulum swung. Turning against excessive bran eating, we proceeded to scramble off the bran band wagon, leaving, as we should, the harmful orgies of bran eating, but also losing the real help which we so need and could so easily obtain from the moderate use of bran.

There are scores of ways in which this oddly textured and generously mineralized foodstuff can turn up and be applauded in everyday meals as well as at company functions. A great many particular eaters enjoy a sprinkling of bran over soups and luncheon dishes. Some lean toward bran made into flakes and some stand on the old uncrushed bran husk. Then bran is finding itself stirred into its more pale cereal sisters, even served as a crusty topping for stewed prunes and peaches for breakfast or supper. Griddle cakes, plain cookies, icebox cakes, gems, muffins, upside down cakes—endless ideas for wideawake minds to discover.

FRUIT BRAN GEMS.

2-3 cup boiling water
½ cup finely chopped dates
½ cup chopped seedless raisins
1 cup unflaked bran
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup white flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
3 tablespoons melted butter
5 tablespoons molasses
1 egg
1-3 cup finely chopped nuts

Combine the dates, raisins, and water and let stand together for ten minutes. Then add the bran, beaten egg, melted butter, and molasses, stirring well. Sift the flour, baking powder, and salt together and add to the bran mixture, stirring only until just mixed. Fold in the nuts and turn at once into greased muffin tins. Bake in a hot oven [420 degrees F.] twenty-five to thirty minutes.

Spanking hot bran griddle cakes may be neatly evolved from your best griddle recipe with bran substituted for one-half the flour. Waffle batter also clamors for its share of bran. Again half-and-half is the most favored proportion. And finally since the latest thing is to let your refrigerator set the modern note in cookery, let's have—

Peanut Bran Icebox Cookies.

Mix together 2½ cups unflaked bran, 1½ cups sifted white flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, and ½ teaspoon salt. Cream together 1-3 cup of slightly softened butter and 2-3 cup peanut butter until fluffy and well blended. Slowly cream in ¾ cup each of brown and white sugar and stir vigorously 3 minutes. Add two eggs and beat till well blended, then stir in the flour mixture. Turn out onto waxed paper and shape into rolls two inches thick and roll neatly in waxed paper. Now chill overnight in the refrigerator, and when firm, slice in ¼ inch slices. Bake in a hot oven [410 degrees F.] 8 to 10 minutes.

Big Embroidered Sleeves Feature of Furless Coats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—In all of the leading French couture houses there are to be found coats for midwinter that are without fur trimmings. These coats are lined and interlined until they are quite as warm as fur laden wraps, and they are just as chic.

The Redfern coat, shown in our sketch today, not only has big sleeves, but these sleeves are embroidered in a new way. The coat is made of a camel's hair soft gray wool, one of the smartest French coats materials of the winter season, and certainly one of the smartest colors. The sleeves are a type of leg o' mutton, and from the shoulders to the elbows, where they swell to their biggest proportions, are embroidered in big coin dots done with black yarn that is cut to look tufted.

Carpentier in Hollywood, but Is Camera Shy

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 10.—Georges Carpentier likes to go places with Lita Grey Chaplin, but he doesn't like to have his photograph taken with her. At the Frolics night club, Lita was willing to pose in a twosome, but not the French gladiator. Even when cameramen tried to sneak the pair dining together, Georges, who is a shrewd young fellow, politely bowed himself out of camera range.

Now they know the answer to the question: "Where did Katherine Hepburn get those odd clothes?" Miss Hepburn wrote a letter from Bermuda in which she said that she had acquired another wardrobe to flash on the film colony when she came back for her next film. She wrote that she got her duds in Berlin.

The reason that Buddy Rogers, in New York, is talking about coming back to the movies and Hollywood, is probably because Mary Pickford, who always has admired young Buddy's features and film work, lets it be known she would like to have him for her next leading man.

Mrs. Herbert Mundin, wife of the British comedian, is also cast for a part in the all-English cast for "Cavalcade." I am told that Fox's is budgeting more than $1,000,000 to be expended on making this feature picture. The all-English cast has been rehearsing for nearly three weeks, and probably will rehearse three more before they even start shooting. And, in these days, that's expensive.

The stars may be broke, but not the the script girls. Ruth Bowman, script girl for Bill Powell's unit, was robbed last week, and here is what she reported missing from her home: $450 diamond ring, $300 watch, and several hundred dollars worth of additional jewelry.

Miss Adelaide Atkin Goes to League Parley

Libertyville estate, but they plan to come into their apartment at 209 Lake Shore drive on Nov. 1. Miss Patterson studied journalism at the Medill School of Journalism at Northwestern university last year, but this season she is going to be a full fledged debutante, and so is not continuing her course, although, if she carries out the plan she told us about last year, she will enter active newspaper work next year.

Miss Leonard Returns to East.

Miss Fleury Leonard, daughter of Mrs. David R. Forgan Jr., has returned to New York after a visit with her mother. The young lady is not to make a debut this year, although Mrs. Forgan plans to give a party for her at Christmas time, either here or in New York. Miss Leonard, who intends to study music this winter, is just 17 years old and was graduated from Miss Walker's school last June.

Ellsworth Laflin and his bride, the former Miss June Kennedy of Pittsburgh, are in Lake Forest after a four months honeymoon which began with a lengthy sojourn in the West Indies and ended with a trip to Germany.

The young people have not made any plans about their future residence as yet, and Mr. Laflin's mother, Mrs. Louis E. Laflin, is delighted at the prospect of having them with her for the winter in her Lake Forest house. She intends to give a reception for them soon.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hopkins have returned from a fortnight's stay at Hot Springs, Ark., and are to remain at their Lake Forest estate for another two weeks before moving into their town apartment at 1530 State parkway.

Mrs. Ralph James will arrive in New York this week from Europe and is expected to return to Chicago next Monday. She went abroad in July for the marriage of her daughter, Miss Margaret James, to Charles C. Smith of London, and has been traveling since then in Switzerland Italy, and France.

Return from Week-End Trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Woolsey M. Pollock and Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. W. Peck of Lake Forest will return today from a week-end sojourn at French Lick Springs. Mrs. Pollock and Mrs. Peck are sisters.

Mrs. Joseph Burdett Woodruff of 220 East Walton place and her daughter, Miss Lyla Woodruff, are expected to return today from a fortnight's stay in New York.

Princess Clarissa Cantacuzene will return next Monday from Boston after having been in the east since June with her parents, the Thomas Pelham Curtises of Boston, at their summer place at Nahant, Mass. The Cantacuzenes' two children, Irina and Rodeon, are to remain with their grandparents through the winter and are going to school in Boston.

Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth has returned to Evanston from a summer stay in England. Her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Lawrence Padley of London, accompanied her and plans to remain until after Christmas. Mr. Padley is expected to visit the Bosworths during the holidays.

Mrs. John Walter Miller of Winnetka is sailing on the Conte Grande Saturday for a five weeks' trip through Italy and France.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram E. Foster have returned from having spent the summer at their lovely old farm in northern Vermont. They spent a week in New York on the motor trip home.

Another Benefit Announced.

Another date to check for those busy days in early November, Friday, Nov. 4. The reason for the check—a county fair to aid the North Avenue Day Nursery to be given at the Opera club. This makes four large benefits for four consecutive days, for already announced are, polo matches and military demonstrations at the 124th Field Artillery armory on Saturday, the 5th, for the Eli Bates Settlement house; Lawrence Tibbett's concert in Orchestra hall on Sunday, the 6th, that the Woman's Aid society of the Passavant Memorial hospital is arranging to raise money for the free beds in the hospital, and the Olivet Institute benefit on Monday, the 7th, the opening night of "When Chicago Was Young," at the Goodman theater. All worthy charities and all being managed by large committees of well known women, which practically insures the success of all four.

Mrs. John Beadle is in charge of the sale of tickets for the county fair, Mrs. Clark J. Lawrence is planning the decorations, Mrs. George M. Silverthorne Jr. is in charge of the food—gingerbread, pumpkin pies, hot dogs, popcorn, etc.—Mrs. Owen West and Miss Ruth Matz of the finances, Miss Peggy Glidden heads a committee of debutantes who will be dressed as milkmaids and sell articles to swell the proceeds of the entertainment; Mrs. Nathaniel Owings and Mrs. George Jaeger Jr. will look after the publicity, Mrs. Barrett Scudder is arranging for an orchestra, and Mrs. John D. Ames is the invitation chairman.

Girls Assist Ticket Sale.

Three young girls are undertaking the task of selling tickets in Evanston for the Eli Bates Settlement house benefit, Miss Virginia Winston, Miss Nancy Avery and Miss Cherie Burnham. Working with Mrs. Elliott Donnelley in Lake Forest is a large group of young women including Mrs. Keith Carpenter, Miss Margaret Chapman, Mrs. Dexter Cummings, Mrs. G. Corson Ellis, Mrs. Charles Garland, Mrs. Charles C. Haffner Jr., Mrs. Robert Hixon, Mrs. Stephen Y. Hord, Mrs. Gordon P. Kelley, Mrs. Allan Kempe, Mrs. Robert N. McCreary, Mrs. Robert S. Pirie and Miss Maroussa Russell.

Another costume ball on the winter calendar: The Association of Arts and Industries is making plans for an arts ball to be given on Dec. 17 at the Drake hotel. It is to be a costume affair, but the period in which it will be staged has not been announced.

The Cordon club will open its season with a tea on Friday afternoon for Agnes Potter Lowrie, whose paintings are on exhibition in the club galleries. Mrs. Ethel M. Colson Brazelton, president, and Mrs. William E. Vogelback, social chairman, will receive.

Chicago Jews End Celebration of Yom Kippur

Rabbi Mann Tells Meaning of Holy Day.

By the Rev. John Evans.

Chicago's 350,000 Jews at sundown last night closed the observance of the most solemn and holy day of their calendar. The day is known by the world's 16,500,000 members of that race as Yom Kippur, the Sabbath of Sabbaths. Dr. Louis L. Mann, spiritual leader of Sinai congregation, 4632 South Parkway, last night said that every synagogue and temple of Chicago and suburbs, which, he said, makes up the third largest Jewish community in the world, observed the holy day in harmony with its austere significance.

Dr. Mann said the Jew sets the ratio between what one now is and what one might have been as the chief obstacle to righteousness.

"This ratio," said Dr. Mann, "between what one might have been, could have been, and, therefore, should have been, is the clew to the understanding of the whole Jewish concept of sin. In fact, the observance of Yom Kippur, our Sabbath of Sabbaths, reveals not only our understanding of the nature of sin but also of repentance and atonement."

Dr. Mann characterized as "barbarous" the description of the ceremonies of the day found in the Book of Leviticus in the Old Testament. "No Jews can be found today who would undertake such observances as outlined in Leviticus relating to the Day of Atonement," he said. On the other hand, said Rabbi Mann, Jewish thought on Yom Kippur now centers in repentance which leads to atonement.

"To the Jews," Rabbi Mann declared, "repentance does not mean the wiping out of sin. The Jew arms himself, spiritually, against the future repetition of the thing for which he repents."

Atonement in Jewish thought, Rabbi Mann explained, means at-one-ement with one's better self, with his neighbor and fellow men, and with God. It also means that one is "attuned with the Infinite and with the moral laws of the universe. This at-one-ment and attunement with God and moral law is impossible until atonement is found with neighbor and fellow men."

This princess slip has a fitted brassiere top, and the lower part of the slip is cut in gores that mold the figure through the bodice and hips. At the hem it is just comfortably wide enough to wear beneath the slim line frocks. Crêpe de chine, flat crêpe, and washable satin are lovely materials for slips.

The pattern, 2993, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2⅛ yards of 35 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch all-over lace.

Events on the Stage

The date for the opening of Ed Wynn's musical show, "The Laugh Parade," at the Apollo theater—Nov. 6—has been scratched off the Chicago stage calendar. Mr. Wynn, who often calls himself "the perfect fool," does not want to offer his amusement in competition with "Of Thee I Sing," and hopes to appear at the Grand Opera House after the Kaufman-Gershwin extravaganza has moved elsewhere. Since he chooses to play a waiting game, it is likely that "Of Thee I Sing" will keep him in suspense for many months.

The cast for "Reunion in Vienna," which the Theater Guild will bring to the Erlanger Oct. 24, includes Alfred Lunt, Lynn Fontanne, Helen Westley, Ernest Cossart, Minor Watson, Edouardo Ciannelli, Edward Fielding, and twenty-five others. The engagement is limited to three weeks.

Arthur J. Beckhard, producer of "Another Language," has put into rehearsal a play dealing with the picturesque career of the female temperance agitator of thirty years ago, Carrie Nation. Oddly enough, the author of the piece, Frank McGrath, insists that his heroine's name must be misspelled in the title, which is "Carry Nation." Esther Dale has been engaged for the title rôle, and others in the company are Lesley Adams, Daisy Belmore, Mildred Natwich, William Morris and Arthur Morris. The stage direction is in the hands of Blanche Purka. "Carry Nation" will begin a trial engagement in Baltimore Oct. 17, and will appear on Broadway a week later.

"The World Between," at the Adelphi theater, announces a downward revision of its box office scale which turns back the hands of the clock about twenty-five years.

The Lawndale theater, which specializes in Yiddish drama, will begin its season tonight with a comedy called "Megen Mener Ales." In the company are Sadie Schoengold, Sam Kasten, Max Kletter, and Samuel Auerbach.

"Music in the Air," a new musical comedy with score by Jerome Kern of "Show Boat" fame, had its first performance in Philadelphia last night. Its impresario is Peggy Fears, the ex-"Follies" girl who has become an important producing manager. Last week Miss Fears launched "Nona," with Lenore Ulric as its star. C. C.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. George Marshall Kendall of Glen Ellyn announce the marriage on Oct. 1 of their daughter, Abby Deering, to Dean Wellington Richardson. After Nov. 1 the bride and bridegroom will reside at 430 Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn.

Doris Tells Girl Not to Eat Humble Pie

Advises Display of Feminine Pride

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"I have tried to make Mr. A. understand that if he has grown tired of me and cares more for the other girl I am perfectly willing to discontinue our friendship. He said he did not want to give me up, or at least he wasn't in favor of doing it at this time."

In the meantime, "Troubled" reports, other gentlemen whose companionship she might be enjoying believe "Mr. A." a permanent fixture.

The open suggestion to a man that he may be growing tired of your company, "Troubled," is not a clever handling of a situation. The last thing on earth a girl should want to suggest is that she may be a bore. If, to one particular man, you happen to have lost that earlier glamor, it's not up to you to point out the fact. You may recognize it. You may recognize that it is something over which you have no control. But you do not have to voice it.

You let yourself down in male opinion when you make the admission. Don't do it! Step out of the situation with grace and dignity when you see the handwriting on the wall. Better to give the man a hint that your interest in him is waning than to have him think the loss is all on his side.

Being magnanimous about another woman is not one of the beloved virtues in woman. You may think you are behaving in a great big generous way when you offer to decamp in favor of another, but it is a gesture without an appreciative audience.

Under the circumstances, "Troubled," being available always to this gentleman is not wise tactics. The suggestion from him that some future date would be agreeable for the parting should bestir some activity on your part. Neither etiquette, common sense nor self preservation require that you sit around meekly and wait for your final discharge papers.

It's while this man is still on the job that you'd better be scouting around for a substitute. Don't wait until he has completely undermined your morale and left you high and dry and lonely.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

A Peculiar Man.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a man who disapproves of cosmetics, going swimming with parents or friends, or talking to male friends. Kindly advise. SOPHIE."

With all the men in the world, why pick on a "crab" like that to fall in love with, Sophie? I'd try to fall out quickly.

Tell Gardeners to Place Bulbs in Store Space

BY PAUL POTTER.

The first frosts of fall are ample warning to veteran gardeners to take up the tender tubers, bulbs, corms and roots of the summer and fall perennials for winter storage. In their place are to be buried the tulips, narcissus, crocus and other early spring blooming bulbs.

Among the valuable buried treasures to be unearthed from the garden as soon as the foliage begins to turn brown or becomes softened from light frosts, are the tuberous begonia, caladium, calla, canna, cooperia or evening star, four o'clocks, dahlias, gladioli, oxalis, tube rose, zephyranthus or fairy lily, the Madeira vine, tigridia, summer hyacinth and ismene.

When uprooting the bulbs it is desirable to take the entire plant with earth about it on a deep spade. These can be laid out on boards or in a sunny patch of the yard to "ripen" with the earth to hold back too quick drying.

They are then placed in a dark yet cool part of the basement, where there is ventilation to prevent decay or disease formation. As the foliage withers it may be removed and the clumps carefully divided. Even the best of gardeners do not rely upon memory, but label each species and kind of plant.

In the case of dahlias, the stalks are cut off to within eight or ten inches of the ground before being dug. Some gardeners keep their bulbs, corms or tubers in fine sand or sawdust to prevent undue withering in storage. When taking up the gladiolous clumps, the shriveled mother corm, which is no longer useful, may be removed when the clump has dried out.

MOTHER OF 7—STILL YOUNG

Her system doesn't stagnate; her face doesn't age. She has the health and "pep" that come from a lively liver and strong, active bowels.

When you're sluggish and the system needs help, don't take a lot of "patent medicines." There's a famous doctor's prescription for just such cases, and every druggist keeps this standard preparation. It is made from fresh laxative herbs, active senna, and pure pepsin. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin. Take a little every day or so, until every organ in your body feels the big improvement.

The next time you have a bilious headache, or feel all bound-up, take this delicious syrup instead of the usual cathartic. You'll be rid of all that poisonous waste, and you haven't weakened the bowels. You'll have a better appetite, and feel better in every way. The constant use of cathartics is often the cause of a sallow complexion and lines in the face. And so unnecessary!

Would you like to break yourself of the cathartic habit? At the same time building health and vigor that protects you from frequent sick spells, headaches, and colds? Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's syrup pepsin today. Use it often enough to avoid those attacks of constipation. When you feel weak and run-down, or a coated tongue or bad breath warns you the bowels need stimulating. Give it to the children instead of stronger laxatives that sap their strength. It isn't expensive.

What $16,000 buys in The American Weekly

A full page in color more than twice the size of any other magazine page in the world . . . 5,500,000 families at a cost of less than ⅓ cent per family . . . The attention of the entire family instead of a single buying factor.

ITS repeatedly demonstrated ability to make more sales for less money has established The American Weekly as the most potent force in the magazine field today.

That's why in times like these you see one advertiser after another turning his back on tradition and concentrating in this Mighty Magazine.

For $16,000 an advertiser in The American Weekly can reach one-fifth of the families of the United States with a full-page advertisement printed in four colors.

That means he can address 5,500,000 families located in the richest buying areas of the nation at the incredibly low cost of ⅓ cent per family.

The page itself is a BIG page. Measure it—twice as big as any other magazine page on the market; an eye-smiting page that compels the attention of both consumer and retailer.

These advantages are concrete and subject to audit.

But there is another great factor in making The American Weekly the great advertising medium it is.

We say to you The American Weekly is the most interesting magazine in the world; to wit: a circulation twice as great as that of any other magazine.

To capture and sustain the interest of 5,500,000 families calls for a great understanding of people, of what interests them and why.

Turn through the colorful pages of this magazine and see for yourself how each issue contains something to challenge and hold the attention of every literate person in this land.

Sensational? Perhaps. Since people are interested in people The American Weekly devotes space each week to intimate glimpses into the triumphs, tragedies and romances of life.

But the editorial menu offers wide selection. Archaeology, astronomy, philosophy and the wonders of science are treated by world authorities in words the layman can understand.

On its magic carpet, the stay-at-home can ride to the fascinating isles of faraway. Here one can read of strange lands and the stranger people who live on the other side of the globe.

Fiction, too, in absorbing serials written by the outstanding authors of our time.

These are the ingredients that go into this Mighty Magazine that out-performs them all.

Where this Magazine goes

The American Weekly is the largest magazine in the world. It is distributed through 17 great Sunday Newspapers. In 558 of America's 995 towns and cities of 10,000 population and over, The American Weekly concentrates 70% of its circulation.

In each of 136 cities, it reaches one out of every two families
In 105 more cities, 40 to 50% of the families
In an additional 153 cities, 30 to 40%
In another 164 cities, 20 to 30%

. . . and, in addition, more than 1,750,000 families in thousands of other communities, large and small, regularly buy and read The American Weekly.

Where can you spend your advertising dollar more effectively?

ALUMNI OF OLD SING SING COLD TO GRID RIVALS

Can't Seem to Make Pals of Coppers.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—The Sing Sing football correspondents are beginning to refer to the game with the Port Jervis police department as the annual classic, although the first contest between the two institutions was played only last year and the second one will not be played until Sunday.

Possibly the Sing Sing correspondents refer not so much to the football competition as to the ancient relation between the policemen and the Sing Sing undergraduates, a rivalry that is cherished by the Sing Sing old grads too. A Sing Sing old grad never forgets that he is a Sing Sing man in after years, and there is practically no fraternizing with the police on the eve of the big game or at any other time.

Not Like Other Alumni.

This is unusual in old grads as a breed, for the alumni of other football institutions are fond of foregathering in hotel rooms and suburban homes having bars in the cellars at football time and being just little boys grown up. Sometimes the little boys grown up engage in feats of strength such as tossing the morris chair out the hotel window [form, distance, and accuracy to count in the scoring] or taking apart the piano without the use of an ax.

In some of these gatherings there may be found old grads of half a dozen colleges, and there have been some little boy pranks recorded on Friday and Saturday nights which the hotel keepers, surveying the wreckage on the mornings after, have refused to believe possible in college graduates. Rather they have thought the supposed old grads must have been just a lot of hoodlums masquerading as alumni. But this is unfair to the hoodlum alumni of Sing Sing, Joliet, and San Quentin, the big three of the Big House conference, who are taught decorum and consideration for others in their college days behind the ivy clad walls of their institutions.

What! No Riots?

Last fall, when Sing Sing's varsity played the Port Jervis cops for the first time in the sporting competition which so soon has become a classic, there was no disorder whatever, either inside or outside the walls. Things were especially quiet in the homelike little jigger shop and refreshment stand close by the ivy clad towers where the New York reporters gather on execution nights to fortify themselves for the ordeal and return afterwards to revive themselves.

There were half a dozen patrons standing at the refreshment counter on the night of the game discussing the playing of Alabama Pitts, the Sing Sing triple threat star, sipping their beverages and consuming pickled lambs' tongues out of a vinegar jar. They did not engage in any feats of strength and there was nothing of the little boy about their conduct. Whatever else may be said of the Sing Sing education, it does not produce any little boys.

No Spot for Traditions.

In time, if football is not discontinued on the ground that it is too brutal for hoodlums and conducive to disorder among the old grads, Sing Sing may develop some football traditions and there may be some singing in the little jigger shop where the newspaper boys pass the time before and after executions. But it is hard to imagine anything of the kind. The undergraduates are not allowed to go to town at night and the old grads all realize that if they should ever indulge in a football celebration one-half as hearty as some of those which have taken place in hotels and in peaceful residential neighborhoods of college cities they would be picked up for violation of their paroles and sent back to school. A Sing Sing old grad must act grown up all the time and he knows that he might get life for acting like a college graduate on football nights.

Among the undergraduates the behavior was equally sedate and gentlemanly by comparison with that of some of the college students on Saturday afternoons in the autumn. There were no flasks in evidence among them, and a Sing Sing student who had gone howling through the crowd, trampling on the spectators and having a bottle of anything, as so many bright young men do in a spirit of great roguishness in the college stadium, would have found his term of study behind the ivy clad walls extended by several years. On the contrary, the Sing Sing boys behave as you might expect the favored sons of well-to-do and socially prominent parents to, if you did not know how the sons of well-to-do and socially prominent parents do act.

Shame on the Cops!

The Port Jervis policemen were guilty of a serious breach of football ethics in bringing down half a dozen players who had no standing in the police department and therefore should have been ineligible. They represented these garage keepers, blacksmiths and icemen as special policemen, but every one familiar with football ethics knows that special students are not regarded as eligible for varsity football.

Certainly the Sing Sing team contained no "specials" or ringers of any other kind. Every man on the

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

NOTRE DAME opened its season with a 73 to 0 victory over Haskell institute and ought to be ashamed of itself.

It has been years since Notre Dame ran up that kind of a score, but it has been years since Notre Dame played a team of that caliber.

JESSE HARPER.

Neither Jess Harper nor Heartley Anderson, the present football leaders, were responsible for the game or for the score. It was a holdover agreement from the Rockne administration. Rockne arranged it out of friendship for Lone Star Dietz, coach of Haskell.

Anderson obviously tried to hold down the count. Third and fourth string players were employed much of the time. When an opponent can't play on even terms with men that far down in the varsity rankings, what purpose does the game serve?

Can you picture the life of a regular end on the Haskell team this week? He might have thought he was quite a player until last Saturday. His dreams will be disturbed by visions of Notre Dame back field men marching over his body.

I feel sure Guy Bush, Burleigh Grimes, and the other Cub pitchers will get the idea.

Notre Dame is not the only offender in this regard. In fact, it is one of the least, for it has won its great football reputation by playing strong foes on successive Saturdays. Michigan State rolled up nearly 100 points on Alma in its opening game. Pittsburgh leads the nation in scoring, which might be something meritorious until you consider its opponents have been pushovers.

Some one may point out that little Bates held Yale to a scoreless tie in the Blue's first game, but results like this occur only once in a year or two. As a rule such contests are parades for the big colleges.

It seems that the more important elevens could get ready for their objective games without mauling the woefully weak.

Michigan and Northwestern probably came together too early. Both were too green to make the game memorable for gridiron excellence. But they were even on this basis and they gave the crowd a run for its money.

When one team beats another by 73 to 0 it no longer is sport. It is downright brutality.

There was something inspiring in the showing of the Maroons against Yale. The players, and not the coach, were responsible for that 7 to 7 tie, but still the score was a personal triumph for A. A. Stagg.

Stagg's refusal to admit his years and his persistence in actively carrying on should give courage to others.

No man has been so long active in football. Nor has any man been so long identified with a sport almost from its inception. It was in his playing days at Yale, in the '80s, that the game began to take definite form. Previous to that there were special rules for nearly every contest. Some permitted 15 men on a side, others 12, and so on.

Stagg has been a football leader since those days, more than 40 years. He not only has changed the character of the sport by introduction of basic plays but he also has been personally responsible for many of the ethical regulations.

He has seen football develop from a haphazard game played before hundreds straggled along the sidelines to a sport that weekly attracts hundreds of thousands to mammoth stadia.

Rain Again Postpones U. S. Outboard Series

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Rain again forced the postponement of the national outboard motorboat championship races today. Weather permitting, the events will be held tomorrow.

REGISTER TODAY!

If you did not register on Oct. 1 and fail to do so today you cannot vote on Nov. 8.

O, MR. CORRIGAN, THERE WILL BE RACING TODAY!

At Sportsman's Park, Come Snow or Ice.

BY FRENCH LANE.

"Faith, and there'll be racing tomorrow," stormy old Ed Corrigan used to tell the disheartened ones at his Cicero track in old Chicago racing days.

If Ed could have been at Sportsman's park yesterday, where a fall racing season of 19 days opened, or if some one who looked like him had said, "Faith, and there'll be racing tomorrow," the old timers from the west side would have thought somebody had moved the clock back and that they were at the original Hawthorne in 1892 and 1893, where the horses raced all winter long under the direction of Corrigan.

Sportsman's park is only a block away from the Hawthorne, where Corrigan made the horses run in the winter time, even in the blustering winters of '92 and '93 there were few more disagreeable days.

Lights! Lights!

A cold rain was sweeping the course, over which heavy black clouds hung so low that electric lights were turned on to help the patrons spell out the name of the horse on which they desired to speculate. Yet 3,000 customers were there, and not very many of them perhaps had visited old Hawthorne back in the winters of '92 and '93 to help improve the breed.

Henry Wilson, who weathered the winter blizzards at old Hawthorne in '92 and '93, and who was on Mr. Corrigan's pay roll, slamming doors and pulling down windows to keep the chill winds off the customers, was at Sportsman's park yesterday, slamming doors and pulling down windows to keep the chill off the new generation.

Henry recalled the time when there was racing at Hawthorne during the winter and he said it compared fairly well with the racing conditions which existed at Sportsman's park yesterday.

"At Hawthorne in the winter time in '92 and '93 folks didn't have to go out into the cold along the rails or in the stands to get some betting action," Wilson said. "A big foreign book was operating underneath the grand stand.

"If we didn't want to bet on the races run over the frozen Hawthorne track we could wager on the horses running at the winter tracks.

The Brave Numbered 7,000.

"On week days about 3,000 braved the wintry blasts to get to Hawthorne and do their betting. I've seen 7,000 there on Saturdays in midwinter. They had to take the harrows out to dig up the frozen tracks, so that it would be possible for horses to run over it without slipping and falling and breaking their necks. If the track wasn't frozen, snow covered it. But they scraped off the snow.

"Hawthorne made plenty of money, or, that is, Mr. Corrigan told me they did."

Maybe Hawthorne did make money while improving the breed in the winter time. But Henry Wilson and the other old timers were glad to see the old times brought back to them.

Martha D., a champion half mile track runner from the far northwestern Canadian tracks, won the Autumn purse at Sportman's Park yesterday. Paying $12.90 in the two dollar mutuels, she got up to beat Dollar Princess by three lengths. Martie Flynn, from Stuyvesant Peabody's stable, was third.

McLaren Is Back.

Martha D. was ridden by Jockey Johnny McLaren, who is one of the greatest half mile track riders in the country. He skims his mounts around the half mile ovals about an inch out from the rail and knows when and where to move them forward.

The favorite players were in their glory all through the early part of the muddy proceedings. The choices, Polly's Folly and King Cherokee won the first three races. Then the odds on choice, Old Bill, was beaten by Flo M. in the fourth race, and from then until the finish the outsiders were triumphing.

"But faith, and there will be racing tomorrow!"

At least Corrigan said so.

ILLINI PREPARE TO TAKE WILD OUT OF WILDCATS

"Let's go!" says Capt. Gil Berry (right) as he grabs the ball and Pete Yanuskus, another University of Illinois veteran, marches on ahead for interference. The Illini are preparing to meet Northwestern's Wildcats Saturday at Champaign in the homecoming game.

Oust Hargiss as Coach at Kansas; Lindsey Gets Job

Lawrence, Kas., Oct. 10—(AP)—Adrian C. Lindsey, assistant coach, today succeeded Homer William Hargiss as head football coach at the University of Kansas.

Hargiss resigned because of what the Kansas Athletic board termed an "Unsatisfactory condition in the football coaching situation." He will continue as coach of the track team at his present salary. He was starting his fifth year as head coach when Kansas lost to Oklahoma, 21 to 6, Saturday.

DENY CAVANAUGH IS OUT.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Despite rumors in football circles today that Maj. Frank W. Cavanaugh had been retired as head football coach at Fordham university, an official denial was made tonight by Jack Coffey, graduate manager.

The most persistent report was that the Fordham authorities had relieved Cavanaugh and replaced him with William [Hiker] Joy, his assistant for more than a decade. Cavanaugh had not been as active in coaching the team this year as in the past with the result that Joy and Dinny McNamara had been directing most of the workout. This gave rise to the rumor that the major was about to be replaced.

Both Coffey and Cavanaugh commented on this. Coffey said: "So far as I am concerned and so far as I know, Cavanaugh is going on as head coach. Sometimes head coaches like Stagg and Warner relegate a greater portion of their duties to their assistants. The major has been doing that this year."

Cavanaugh said: "It is news to me. I have heard some talk of it and there may be something to it, but they have not given me any notice nor said anything about it to me. For the last three of four weeks I have been bothered by a bad bruise on my hip. As a result, I have not been able to take complete charge of practice, but have left that to Joy and McNamara. That probably started every one guessing but I am in fine shape now and will be able to take care of the workouts for the rest of the season."

King Beats Corbett for British Bantam Crown

MANCHESTER, Eng., Oct. 10—(AP)—Johnny King of Manchester tonight won the British bantamweight championship, outpointing the defending titleholder, Dick Corbett of London, in a 15 round bout.

N. U. Looks for Pug Rentner to Dazzle Illini

Capt. Pug Rentner, who for two years has run wild against Illinois, will be out to repeat his previous performances when he leads Northwestern against the Illini at Champaign Saturday.

In Rentner's sophomore year he was inserted in the lineup when Hank Bruder became ill with smallpox. After the Wildcats had scored early in the first quarter, Rentner took the next kickoff and ran it back 98 yards for a touchdown. In the later stages of the game Pug tossed two long passes to Frank Baker for touchdowns. Northwestern eventually won, 32 to 0.

Goes 66 Yards to Score.

Last year Rentner's performances were equally brilliant. On the second play of the game he ran 66 yards for a touchdown. All told he gained over 100 yards, averaging 15.6 yards an attempt. Northwestern won the game, 32 to 6.

The Wildcats were unable to get under way with their practice yesterday due to the heavy rain. The steady downpour made it impossible to venture out on the practice field, which was covered with several inches of water.

Praises for Bill Riley.

Players who did not participate in the Michigan game were given some signal work under the east stands. The regulars were excused. Bill Riley, whose play in the Michigan game was characterized by Coach Dick Hanley as the best of any of the Wildcat players, is nursing a charley horse. He will be kept on the inactive list for several days.

As soon as the weather permits Coach Hanley plans to start intensive drill on blocking and tackling, fundamentals which were improperly executed in the Michigan game.

VETERAN END JOINS ILLINI.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—University of Illinois football squad went through a long dummy scrimmage today designed to polish the offense for the annual homecoming game with Northwestern Saturday. Dave Cook, 200 pound regular half back of last season, returned after having been held out of the Bradley game because of a slight injury.

The end position gained added strength when Hunter Russell, end two years ago, became eligible. He is one of the fastest men on the squad and will probably see service if he is

In the Wake of the News

OUT OF BOUNDS.

THERE was one play in the Michigan-Northwestern game at Ann Arbor Saturday, smart football by the Wolverines, which The Wake never had seen before. It occurred on an out of bounds attempt by the Purple.

In section 8 of rule 7, official rules, appears this article:

"On a backward pass or a fumble, if the ball goes out of bounds between the goal lines, it shall belong to the team whose player last touched it in the field of play or end zone, at the point where it crossed the side line."

This section originally was placed in the rules to prevent injuries to players in wild scrambles which once followed for possession of the vagrant oval outside the field of play where there were side line markers or other obstructions. Occasionally the ball rolled or was pushed in these rushes clear to the reserve players' benches, or even near to the stands.

Northwestern frequently uses this section of the rules for an out of bounds play when the ball is near the side lines and one down is to be wasted in getting the ball carried back 15 yards into the field. The center passes directly over the side lines, and Northwestern, because last in possession, keeps the ball 15 yards inside, although forfeiting a down. This play eliminates danger of a fumble on the part of a player carrying the ball for a deliberate out of bounds play.

The Purple already had employed this device once and Michigan had noted it. The play to which we refer occurred in the third period when Northwestern was making desperate efforts to even the count, at that time 12 to 6. Rentner had just circled left end for a first down on the Purple 26 yard line.

The ball, however, was about three or four yards from the sideline. As the teams lined up two Northwestern and Michigan players were outside the center toward the sideline. Northwestern's center passed the ball over the sideline. A Michigan forward, however, had sensed the move, reached out as the ball was passed and ticked it before it went over the line. Thus Michigan last touched the ball while in the field of play and was given possession on Northwestern's 26 yard line.

After this experience Northwestern is not likely to use the play again unless the center is the last man toward the sideline, or not more than one player is between him and the sideline.

Football Retrospect.

In Saturday's football forecast The Wake landed on 42 winners and seven losers. Seven contests resulted in ties. In this winning total is included Centenary's 41 to 7 victory over Louisiana Normal, incorrectly published in some records as a Normal victory.

Season to date: 115 winners, 17 losers, 11 ties.

In Wrigley Field.

In Wrigley field the cold winds blow
Athwart the bleachers row on row
That mark the place where balls did fly
And rocket long and far and high,
Propelled by Yankee guns below.

Now all is dead. Short days ago
These bleachers lived, saw sunset glow,
But now they sadly, damply lie in Wrigley field.

The tumult and the shouting dies,
The Gehrigs and the Ruths depart;
It was a ghastly sacrifice,
But leaves no humble contrite heart;
For north side fans are seldom drear
And even now they take Grimm cheer
In thinking of the coming year

INJURY ON GRID PROVES FATAL TO HONOLULU YOUTH

HONOLULU, Oct. 10.—(AP)—Frederick Winstedt, 18 year old Punahou academy student, is dead of cerebral hemmorhage apparently resulting from injury in football practice. Winstedt was removed from a practice game after a blow on the head in scrimmage. The youth collapsed Saturday and did not regain consciousness.

TORONTO PLAYER DIES.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Thomas L. Nichols, 23, suffered a fracture of the larnyx when tackled while running with the ball in a rugby game today and died as his companions were carrying him to a nearby doctor's office.

WALKER, ALLEN, O'FARRELL AND MOONEY TRADED

Mancuso and Rookie Pitcher to N. Y.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The first of what is believed will be a series of sweeping changes by which the Giants hope to rehabilitate themselves for next season was completed today. Secretary Jim Tierney announced that Manager Bill Terry had just closed a deal with the St. Louis Cardinals involving six players.

To the Giants will come Catcher Gus Mancuso and Ray Starr, young right handed pitcher, and in exchange for these two the Cardinals are receiving Bill Walker and Jim Mooney, left handed pitchers; Outfielder Ethan Allen and the veteran catcher, Bob O'Farrell. The latter is returning to the club he managed in 1927.

No Cash in Deal.

No cash was involved in the deal, Tierney said. He added, however, that several other trades may be made in the next few weeks by Manager Terry, who, while at his home in Memphis, Tenn., is conducting numerous negotiations in an effort to revamp the Giants for 1933.

On the face of the records the last season, New York baseball men seem agreed that the Giants, though outscored numerically in the St. Louis deal, got a shade the better of the bargain. In Mancuso they are getting a capable young catcher, who will not be 27 years old until December. But for the presence of Jimmy Wilson he would have been the Cardinals' first string catcher the last few years. He batted .282 in the season just closed.

Starr, on the strength of some exceptionally good work late in the season, is regarded as a promising right hander. He is a product of the St. Louis chain store system and spent most of the last season with Rochester.

Giant Players Flop.

In exchange the Giants are giving up three of their outstanding disappointments of the last season. Walker, rated one of the greatest left handers in the National league a year ago when he led the circuit in earned runs, won only 8 games during 1932 and lost 12. Mooney, who on coming to the Giants in August of 1931, made quite a splurge by reeling off seven victories, also never came up to the mark at any time in 1932, winning only six games all season. Allen, who in 1931 had compiled one of the best averages ever made by a pinch hitter, did not get going last season and finished with a mark of .175 for 54 games.

CARDS TO TRADE OTHERS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 10—[(AP)]—Branch Rickey, vice president of the St. Louis Cardinals, following announcement today of the trade with the New York Giants involving six players, said the Cardinals expected to "do more trading of importance." He declined, however, to amplify his statement.

"I don't see who is going to beat us," said Breadon. I think we had the best team in the league in 1932 and that we would have won easily, barring accidents, and now for the life of me I can't see a chance for any other club."

The Cards will have three southpaw pitchers next season, as a result of the trade bringing Bill Walker and Jimmy Mooney to St. Louis. Bill Hallahan was the only left hander the Cards had last season.

HORNSBY CASE UNSETTLED.

The decision which is to be made on Rogers Hornsby's appeal for a share in the Chicago Cubs' world series money distribution, was postponed yesterday. Commissioner of Baseball K. M. Landis remained ill with a cold at home. Landis, it is believed, will not return to his office for several days.

ADVERTISING AT GOPHER GAMES TO BE BARRED

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Officials at the University of Minnesota said today that employes at Memorial stadium would be asked to watch for and prevent distribution of any advertising matter at future Minnesota football games.

It was reported that at the Minnesota-Purdue contest Saturday political pamphlets were distributed by unnamed persons.

Joseph C. Poulcher, director of University Service Enterprises, said today a state law prohibits advertising in state structures and that employes would be cautioned to be alert for future violations.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—J. P. Smith's Morfair, winner of the Burnt Hills, Campfire, and Saranac handicaps in succession at Saratoga, gained his first victory since then when he scored today at Jamaica in the featured Montague handicap. Driving at the end of the six furlongs, he was a length before Cornelius V. Whitney's Halcyon, which led W. M. Moore's Vanderpool by a length and a half.

The race had a value to the winner of $1,425 and the field was completed by Marshall Field's Villon and The Beasel, stablemate to Morfair. The six furlongs were run over a fast track in 1:12 2-5, with the winner carrying top impost of 122 pounds.

Frank Coltletti piloted the winner and brought him on from a slow beginning. Mr. Smith declared to win with The Beasel, which was ridden by G. H. [Pete] Bostwick, but the mare did not get to the front away with her usual alacrity, and it devolved upon Morfair to save the day. The entry was favorite at even money after an opening at 4 to 5.

Londos Pins Coleman in 33 Minutes

Jim Londos threw Abe Coleman, New York heavyweight wrestler, in a one fall match at the Coliseum last night after 33 minutes and 40 seconds. The attendance was 5,000 and receipts, $5,581.40. Coleman, a short, muscular fellow, weighed 194 pounds, four less than Londos. Jim weakened Coleman with a series of headlocks and then pinned his shoulders to the mat with a body slam.

Coleman was the aggressor throughout the first 20 minutes. He punished Londos with double wristlocks and headlocks and several times chased him around the ring. Londos' superior strength and stamina showed to advantage during the latter part of the match and there was no doubt about the result after a half hour of wrestling.

Joe Stecher and Jim Clinkstock engaged in a body scissors duel in the semi-final, Stecher winning in 14 minutes, 9 seconds. Other results were: Jack Smith and Stanislaus Lurik drew; Hans Kampfer threw Jack Carter, and Joe DeVito and Paul Harper drew.

NORTHWEST GOLF LEAGUE WINDS UP SEASON TODAY

The Northwest Golf league is scheduled to complete its season with the annual windup tournament today at the Ridgemoor Country club. A series of mixed matches, involving players from each club in the organization, will feature the program.

Butterfield and Glen Flora head tomorrow's Columbus day program, the former anticipating a record turnout for the annual event, while the Northern Trust company will hold its 21st annual Columbus day tourn

MICHIGAN SQUAD FORCED INDOORS BY RAINSTORM

Weather Fools Coaches for Third Monday.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Rain today forced Michigan to practice in the fieldhouse. The reserves had been scheduled to scrimmage while the regulars viewed the demonstration of Ohio State's off tackle plays. It was the third successive Monday on which plans have been altered because of rain.

Jack Blott took over the freshmen today, aided by Ray Fisher, who has just returned from the trip with the baseball team to Japan, and taught them the Buckeye plays. Meanwhile the first squad worked on offense, not hard enough to aggravate the bumps suffered Saturday, but enough to provide more polish.

OHIO VARSITY RESTS.

Columbus, O., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Ohio State's first string men were given a day of rest today, but the other players went through a long drill in tackling and blocking for the Michigan game Saturday.

Coach Willaman announced no change in the first team but plans to give Monahan and Rosequist another chance to determine who will get the regular right tackle post. Carroll was to stay in at right half. Carroll was used only a few minutes of the Indiana game Saturday, but in four trys at carrying the ball he made 38 yards.

HOOSIERS DRILL IN RAIN.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Indiana university football squad departed from its usual custom of taking things easy on Monday and went through a heavy scrimmage today. Rain forced the Hoosiers from the football field to the parade ground and later to the fieldhouse.

Coach Hayes pointed out the mistakes made in the Ohio State game, which ended in a 7 to 7 tie last Saturday, while Assistant Coach Thom, who scouted the Iowa-Wisconsin game, made a detailed report of the plays of the Hawkeyes, who meet Indiana Saturday.

GRIFFIN IN HOSPITAL.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Only one member of the Minnesota team that lost to Purdue Saturday was missing for the usual chalk talk today. He was Gerald Griffin quarter back, who is in the university hospital suffering from a slight attack of ptomaine poisoning. He is expected to be dismissed in time to play against Nebraska next Saturday.

HAWKS GET SCRIMMAGE.

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Iowa football players were sent through a brisk scrimmage today in preparation for Saturday's game at Indiana. In an attempt to obtain greater driving power in the back field Francis Schammel, 220 pound tackle, was shifted to full back and Joe Laws was promoted to first string half back. Laws won a major letter at half back last season and Schammel played a year at full back at Iowa State Teachers' college. Laws replaced Dutch Schmitt and Schammel took William Ash's position.

PURDUE REGULARS REST.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Purdue's regulars were given a rest this afternoon while they recovered from bumps and bruises accumulated in the battle with Minnesota. Intensive drill will start tomorrow for the homecoming game with Wisconsin here Saturday.

Duane Purvis and Doxie Moore, right half backs; Ben Merz, end, and Dutch Fehring, tackle, were battered.

Memories of the 21 to 14 defeat suffered at Wisconsin last year, coupled with the Badgers' strong showing against Iowa, have provided cause for alarm in the Boilermaker camp.

Defensive practice is on the card for later in the week with freshmen playing the Northwestern part. Today's drill omitted this phase, but stressed plenty of speed and precision on the part of the Illini offense. Red Gragg, who started at right tackle Saturday, pleased the coaches with his work and was again in the regular line.

The greatest battle for positions is now centered at guard and full back. Kowalski, Bodman, Van Dyke, and Abraham are the possible guard choices. The leading plungers are Walser, Seamons, and Snavely, with Seamons' stellar performance against Bradley giving him the edge. Walser is one of the best punters on the squad, which may make him a starter.

MAROONS BACK AT WORK.

Yesterday's rain drowned out a budding student celebration on the Midway when the University of Chicago football team returned to the campus from New Haven, but it did not deter Coach Stagg from ordering a light workout.

The tie game with Yale, which was regarded on the Midway as something better than a tie because it was with Yale, left Coach Stagg and his boys greatly heartened, and not averse to prompt preparation for the appearance of Knox on the Midway this Saturday and for the five hard conference games which will follow.

Only one casualty resulted from the encounter with the Blue team, but that one may well be a real misfortune. Barton Smith, promising sophomore end, suffered a slight crack on one of his lower leg bones during the first few minutes of the play and he will be lost for the Knox and Indiana games and probably more. Though Stagg has four experienced men to use at ends, in Toigo, Bellstrom, Gabel, and Berg, the flank positions have been regarded as vulnerable. Smith was in the Billings hospital yesterday.

IRISH FIND VAIRO.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Calumet, Mich., from which George Gipp and Heartley Anderson came to Notre Dame, has come up with another potential star.

He is Dominic Vairo, sophomore left end, who was moved up to the second team in today's drill after starting the season with the fifth squad. Vairo, who stands six feet tall and weighs 192 pounds, replaces Sturla Canale of Memphis with the second team.

An all day rain, the fourth in the last eight days, drove the team into the gym for a signal drill preparatory to Saturday's game with Drake.

BADGER SUBS SCRIMMAGE.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin football squad had a light workout tonight for the Purdue game Saturday. Members of the first and second team assumed the rôle of spectators while the third and fourth teams scrimmaged.

COMING HOME FROM STAGG'S HOMECOMING

Boilermakers Teach Gophers Lesson in Defensive Football

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Purdue-Minnesota game last Saturday at Minneapolis offers excellent example of formation of defenses to meet the greatest attacking strength of the opponents. This game also demonstrated a sudden shift in offensive tactics by Purdue, which was immediately responsible for a touchdown by which Purdue won the game, 7 to 0.

Purdue feared the plunging ability of Jack Manders, the Minnesota full back, and the off tackle thrusts of Lund and Hass, the half backs. Consequently Purdue used seven players in the first line of defense. Oehler, the Purdue center, stayed in the line until the Minnesota play developed. And the Gophers during the first half of the game stuck to the same attack, that of plunging and running.

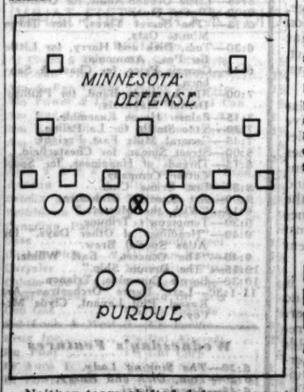
Gophers Wary of Passes.

Minnesota feared Purdue's forward passing and running attack. Consequently, all through the game the Gophers used only six men in the line. They had three players backing up the line, one in front of the Purdue center and the other supporting the tackles and ends. All were about five yards from the scrimmage line.

The other two backs were approximately 15 to 20 yards from the scrimmage line and their first duties were to watch for passes. By this defense Minnesota was expected to stop Purdue's runs and passes.

Here is a diagram of Minnesota's defense:



Neither team shifted defense except when it was apparent by the down [third or fourth] and the yardage required for first down or the position of the ball that the offense would punt. Then a player dropped back to receive the kick.

Purdue's seven man line completely checked Minnesota's attack in the first half. And in the first quarter Minnesota's defense successfully halted Purdue's forward passes. In that quarter Purdue tried nine forward passes and completed three.

This passing offense was purposeful. We have no doubt that Paul Pardonner, Purdue's quarter back, called for passes with the purpose of keeping Minnesota's five secondary defenders expecting passes. When they were kept back from the scrimmage line or forced to hesitate before coming up Purdue shifted its attack. Therein was the story of the winning touchdown.

Purdue secured possession on Minnesota's 43 yard line shortly after the start of the second period when Lund fumbled and Purdue recovered. In seven plays, none of them passes, Purdue rushed the ball to the goal.

In two attempts Carter, substituting for Hecker at left half back, gained seven yards. Horstmann, the full back, plunged four yards for a first down on Minnesota's 32 yard line. These gains were made through Minnesota's six man line of defenders.

Blocking Plays Big Part.

On the next play Carter went wide around Minnesota's left end to the 18 yard line. Purvis, the Purdue right half, gained six yards in two slashes at Minnesota's right tackle. Then Crater again ran around the Gopher left end for 12 yards and a touchdown.

The gains involved excellent blocking. The largest yardage was made at the weakest position in the Minnesota line, the left end, where Coach Bierman used three men in a vain effort to stop Carter and Hecker. But equally important, Purdue had frightened the Minnesota secondary defense with forward passes until it did not lend sufficient protection to the six man line.

Minnesota's record of ten completed forward passes in 18 attempts in the second half was due to Purdue's persistence in playing seven men in the line with the four backs in a square formation as secondary defense. But on none of these completions [all for short gains] did the receiver get into the open. Generally he was tackled as he caught the ball.

Purdue Concentrates on Line.

Purdue elected to stop line plays and yield short gains on passes, none of which threatened to go for a touchdown.

Purdue was better balanced in attack and undoubtedly if Minnesota had decreased its strength in stopping passes those same passes would have yielded a winning score. The Boilermakers also had superior speed and their backs hit harder than Minnesota's. In short, Purdue was the better team in passing, running, and plunging. In kicking Paul Moss had an advantage over Lund, but Hass returned Moss' kicks better than Purdue handled Lund's kicks.

Packers to Meet Chicago Bears for 25th Time Sunday

The Green Bay Packers, National league champions, will meet the Chicago Bears Sunday afternoon at Wrigley field. It will be the second clash of the season between the Packers and the Chicagoans.

The game will be the 25th meeting of the Packers and Bears since 1921. The Packers have won three games and tied one this season while the Bears have tied three. The Bears opened the season at Green Bay and a scoreless tie resulted.

It is doubtful that Red Grange will be able to play Sunday, due to a dislocated shoulder suffered last Sunday against the Cardinals. Either Johnny Sisk of George Corbett will start in Grange's place.

Both players have been used from time to time. Sisk was known as the Big Train when at Marquette university and Corbett is rated as one of the greatest players ever developed in the Little 19. He matriculated at Millikin.

Bronko Nagurski will be acting captain Sunday if Grange is unable to play.

The Packers will present several players new to Chicago fans, among them Clark Hinkle, a half back from Bucknell university; Al Rose, former Texas university end, and Arnold Herber, a Green Bay player, who stepped into the National league from West High school.

HALL DEFEATS HOPPE IN FIRST BLOCK OF MATCH

Allen Hall of Chicago defeated Willie Hoppe of New York in the first block of their 12 block, 720 point three-cushion billiard match at Mussey's Wabash avenue room yesterday, 60 to 51, in 58 innings. Hall had a high run of five, while Hoppe had seven.

At the end of the 20th inning Hall was leading 24 to 18, and at the end of the 40th inning had accumulated 18 more points while Hoppe added 19, with a high run of seven in the 34th inning. The score at the end of the 40th inning stood, Hall 42, Hoppe 37. In the next 18 innings Hall made runs of five, four, and three and six aces while the best Hoppe could do was 14.

C.Y.O. Boxing Prelims Draw Field of 142

Qualifying tests in the second annual Catholic Youth Organization boxing tournament took place last night. One hundred boys from all parts of the Chicago archdiocese, the maximum the board figured it could handle in one evening, were called to take the examinations and 142 appeared. The Irish headed the list of aspirants for ring honors, with thirty-seven present. There were twenty-two boys of American parentage, twenty-seven of Polish, seventeen of Italian, eleven of Slovakian, thirteen of German, two of French, three of Lithuanian, four of Bohemian, two of Alsatian origin, a Scotchman, a Hungarian, an Englishman, a Croatian.

Boys in the 147-pound class predominated, with a total of 31. Twelve boys reported in the 112-pound class, 17 in the 118-pound, 21 in the 126-pound, 28 in the 135-pound, 18 in the 160-pound, seven in the 175-pound class and three heavyweights.

Before the boys were even matched for the regulation two one-minute qualifying rounds, seven of them were turned down by the medical staff on the grounds of physical unfitness. Nine others were sent from the ring for lack of sufficient training and ring experience.

Among those who qualified last night were John Esposito of St. George's parish, 1931 runner-up in the 135-pound class of the A. A. U. city championship; William Daley, in the 147-pound class, and Phil Rogers in the 135-pound class, both from Our Lady of Angel's parish, who fought in the C. Y. O. quarter-finals last year; Buddy Ginter, 118 pounds, St. Jerome's parish, and James O'Connell, 135 pounds, from the same parish, likewise quarter-finalists last year.

Announcements that winners in the various classes of the tournament will be awarded a trip to Panama and return, has increased the number of applicants, officials said. Preliminaries of the tournament are expected to start on Oct. 27.

DE PAUL ELEVEN DRILLS INDOORS FOR RIPON GAME

Rain and ankle deep mud on the campus gridiron prevented outdoor drill yesterday at De Paul university. The players were given a lengthy chalk talk on why their offense failed to accomplish more than a scoreless tie with Western State Friday night.

The Blue Demons are preparing for their fourth battle of the season with Ripon, which will be played Saturday afternoon at Loyola stadium.

Capt. Matty Steffen, forced out of the Western State game with an injured hip, and Jim Doody, quarter back whose ailing shoulder sent him to the side lines, appeared badly crippled up yesterday and it was doubtful if either would be in condition for the afternoon's scrimmage. John Sexton, a guard, is confined to bed with the flu and may not return in time for the Ripon game.

Coaching of De Paul's freshman team has been turned over to Art McGivern and Everet McClane, stars of last year's team.

GARDINER SIGNS ON DOTTED LINE FOR BLACKHAWKS

Thus Dissipating Those Holdout Rumors.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Chicago office of the Blackhawks hockey team yesterday put an end to stories that Charley Gardiner, star goalie, is a holdout with the announcement that the young man had been signed and given an extension to Oct. 20 to report at Duluth for training.

The announcement was made here shortly after Gardiner was found among the missing at the first practice conducted by Coach Emil Iverson in the rink of Duluth Hornets. It was said that Gardiner, who runs a sporting goods store in Winnipeg, had been given the additional time to report because he has a reputation for keeping in fine shape physically the year around, a procedure not altogether common among professional players.

Eleven Report for Drill.

Despite the absence of Gardiner and eight others there was more than a quorum on the first workout. Eleven Hawks were on hand and took a three hour workout on the Duluth ice. Those who answered the opening bugle are Capt. Helge Bostrom, Teddy Graham, Mush March, Lolo Couture, Roger Jenkins, Pudge MacKenzie, Vic Ripley, Jerry Lowery, Donnie McFadyen, Louis Holmes and Doc Rommes.

Trudell Proves Citizenship.

Trudel, an amateur left winger until he signed with the Hawks, was ordered released by Winnipeg immigration officials after he had proven himself a United States citizen, born in Salem, Mass.

The absentees, except Gardiner, are expected to show up at Duluth either today or tomorrow.

The Hawks will open their National league season in Detroit on Nov. 11 and then will come to Chicago to launch the local season of 24 games at the Coliseum on Sunday evening, Nov. 13.

Varying the policy of several recent years, the Hawks will not come to Chicago to top off their training activities in a Chicago gymnasium. Their first appearance in the city will be for the purpose of playing a championship game.

MEXICAN PREXY TO SPONSOR TWO FOOTBALL GAMES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—President Abelardo L. Rodriguez, through his private secretary, showed a practical intention to assist in the development of sports in Mexico when he declared today he would sponsor two international football games.

The first will be between the University of Mexico and Louisiana college this month and the second between Mexico and Southwestern Louisiana institute. The Mexican university and Louisiana college initiated intercollegiate football in this republic in 1929. It is probable that a substantial pool will be formed to guarantee the success of the games.

Kieckhefer Will Try Cue in Pocket Billiard Tourney

Augie Kieckhefer, Chicago, world's three cushion billiard champion, will be seen in action next Monday at the Kieckhefer Recreation room when tournament play begins in the pocket billiard sections of the National Billiard association tournament. The champion's opponents in the central division No. 1 will be Pasquale Natalie, Peter Durocher and Henry Kilgore of Chicago, and Leo Imolati of Omaha, Neb. Natalie finished third in the northern sectional playoff last year at Detroit.

It has been 15 years since Kieckhefer has participated in competitive pocket billiards. In March, 1917, he challenged Frank Taberski, then the world's champion, and was defeated 500 to 235. The champion, however, is capable of doing better than 100 in high runs and has been at steady practice at the pocket table all summer.

The central division No. 2 tournament will be held at the Bensinger Randolph street room, where Charles [Cowboy] Weston, Al H. Miller, Racine, Wis.; Major White, William Fetifer of Chicago and Joseph McCann of Detroit are entered. Last year Miller won the northern divisional honors and finished as runner-up to Marcel Camp of Detroit in the sectional playoff at Detroit.

On the west coast, Charles E. Jordan of Hollywood, Cal., national amateur three-cushion champion in 1929, has also entered the pocket billiard field this season. He is entered in the southern division of the western section.

team was a Sing Sing man in good standing, with a record on the books to prove it, and their only deviation from the rules of eligibility generally recognized in the best football society was in regard to the three year rule. The three year rule is not feasible at Sing Sing, where a man is regarded as practically nothing but a freshman until he has passed the term at which the football statute of limitations runs against a college player.

Cops Are All the Same.

Still, Sing Sing did not protest the "special" policemen. Any policeman is a policeman to a Sing Sing boy. The Sing Sing boys hold all policemen in a peculiar regard. You may hear a Princeton boy speak kindly of a Harvard boy or even hear a Notre Dame boy compliment a Nebraska boy. But when a Sing Sing boy calls another boy a copper he knows that you do not understand him to mean "nice copper" or "admirable copper." He also realizes that it is unnecessary for him to say "dirty copper." He figures that the word "copper" covers the whole ground.

New League of Three Eye, Valley Clubs Is Planned

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—Formation of a new baseball league, made up of the four strongest clubs in each of the Three Eye and Mississippi Valley circuits, is a possibility at the annual meeting of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues at Columbus, O., in December.

Local baseball leaders have announced that Davenport, which holds all attendance records in the Valley; Cedar Rapids, Keokuk and Rock Island are being considered as members of the proposed new league. All drew well in 1932, despite unfavorable conditions.

The Davenport club played to 65,000 this year, only 800 short of the league record, established by the same team in 1931. Rock Island had 45,000 and the other two were close behind.

It has been suggested that Peoria and Quincy be taken into the new circuit, along with two of the other Three Eye cities, nearby, probably Bloomington and Springfield, to cut transportation costs to a minimum. The league could be operated as class B with a salary limit not exceeding $2,500, exclusive of the manager, and a player limit of 14, half of whom would be rookies.

Dubuque seems definitely out of the Valley for next season. Moline is in poor financial condition, Burlington was rescued last year by the Cleveland Indians, and Waterloo had planned to quit the league in midseason. A campaign among business men kept the club alive to the end.

In the Three Eye league Peoria was drawing slightly better than it had the previous year. Quincy was another city doing fairly well when the league disbanded.

A league composed of Davenport, Quincy, Peoria, Rock Island, Springfield, Cedar Rapids, Keokuk, and Bloomington or Decatur should be acceptable, for traveling expenses would be low. The longest trip would be the 200 miles between Decatur and Cedar Rapids.

SCHOOL PATROLS TO SEE MAROONS BATTLE KNOX

The patrol boys of the Chicago public schools will be admitted free to the football game Saturday at the Midway between the University of Chicago and Knox. This was announced yesterday by Superintendent of Schools William J. Bogan.

The patrol boys, of whom there are nearly 10,000, must wear their white "Sam Brown" belts and their badges and must be in charge of the captain and lieutenant of each school. They also must obtain the consent of their parents.

The patrol from each school must report to A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education, on Greenwood avenue between 55th and 56th streets not later than 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The university invited the boys as part compensation for their work in helping younger children across the streets while on their way to and from school.

"WILT those stubborn WHISKERS!"
Lend me your face for one easy demonstration
Bill Mennen
I DON'T care how stubborn a stubble you grow, I can wilt every whisker on your face. . . . I mean Mennen Shaving Cream can. Yes, I say "wilt", not "soften", because ordinary softening isn't enough. The one and only way to take all the fight out of your whiskers is to wilt it out.
Why does Mennen do what ordinary creams don't? Ask me another! The reason is that Mennen contains specially processed tri-stearin. That's the greatest whisker-wilter known—and our special process makes it do its work even with the horniest beard. Your blade zips through your wilted whiskers. Off they come. Clean and close. No pull. No yank. Blades last longer, too. Several more fine shaves from each edge. . . .
It's a neat trick—the way Mennen does it. Try it just once. You'll thank me for it.
Skin Health—For You!
You gain two ways by shaving with Mennen. You not only get better shaves, but you also get a Skin Health Treatment. How come? Here's the answer: the pores of your skin are dirt traps. They catch dust and grease deposits. Then skin troubles may start—pimples, blackheads, muddy skin. Mennen lather gets into the pores—deep in—and loosens the imbedded deposits. Then, when you rinse off the lather, you leave your face clean, fresh, healthy.

TRUSTY RELATES SUNBEAM CAMP TORTURE STORY

Says Slain Convict Was Called Suicide.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 10.—(AP)—The suicide theory of the death of Arthur Maillefert in Sunbeam prison camp sweat box last June was invented for the protection of Capt. George Courson, one of two former guards on trial for murder. That was testified today by Bob Blake, a trusty.

Judge George C. Gibbs allowed that testimony to stand, over vigorous defense objection, as applied to Courson, but instructed the jury not to consider it in connection with the case of Solomon Higginbotham the other defendant.

Courson Fears Trouble.

"Bob, there's liable to be trouble over this," Blake said Courson told him after Maillefert's death.

"Yes, cap'n, it is a pretty tight spot," Blake said he answered. "He told me to get him five or six witnesses who might be able to clear him at the trial. I did. I told Courson I thought he had a story that would hold water."

Blake started the stories of a framed suicide case, the defense objected and the jury was sent from the room. Blake resumed that "Snyder," not otherwise identified in testimony, was to say Maillefert had demonstrated in the sweat box how he was going to die by hanging himself with the chain that was fastened to the box and which also circled his neck.

Tells of Flogging.

Blake described the hose he said Courson used to beat Maillefert as "about a three-quarter-inch hose and about 18 inches long." He said it was hose such as is used to carry air to the brakes on box cars. Blake said he witnessed the incident by accident, having returned from a road job for more tools. He saw "Courson and others working out on Maillefert, who had returned from a road job saying he was sick."

Blake added the following day Maillefert was placed nude in a barrel which was attached to him by straps and boards. He identified the barrel which the state introduced in evidence.

"Courson," Blake testified, "nailed on a board at the back of Maillefert's neck, another in front of his neck.

"'Jersey,' [Maillefert's nickname], said: 'Captain Courson, you are putting that one on too tight.'"

"Courson replied: 'I don't give a damn if I am.'"

After a moment's hesitation, Blake testified he cut the straps and allowed Maillefert to free himself from the barrel, to try to escape. Previous testimony had been that Maillefert gnawed a board and thus became free of the barrel.

Caught, Maillefert was placed in the sweat box next day, dying there.

Get Threatening Letters.

Receipt of letters threatening the defense was announced today as the second week of the trial opened.

Fuller Warren, attorney for Higginbotham, said he had received two such letters. One from Pittsburgh was dated Oct. 7. Another letter attacking the defense was sent to the judge.

Two prisoner-witnesses in the case, who sawed their way out of the county jail last night, remained at liberty today, despite a widespread search. Cleo Drew, serving 15 years, had already testified, and James Wofford, serving 33 years, remained to be called.

READING LAUDS MACDONALD AND RULE OF BRITAIN

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—An audience of 800 men and women attending a dinner tonight at the Hotel Astor in honor of the marquess of Reading, former viceroy governor general of India, and ambassador to the United States, heard Lord Reading eulogize Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald as a great leader. He said MacDonald has the confidence of the British people and the backing of all British political leaders, including those who recently resigned from his cabinet.

Lord Reading dwelt at length on the situation in India.

"I honestly believe that the rule of the British in India constitutes one of glorious records of the history of the British and is a just source of pride," he said. "Heaven forfend that I should suggest that no errors have been committed, but in arriving at a judgment comparison must be made of India as she was and had been throughout the centuries before the British came and India as she is under the present system."

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

SALARIED WAGS BUSY BOOSTING THE FARM BOARD

"Educational Experts" on Rural Programs.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Although operating funds of the federal farm board have been nearly exhausted, there still appears to be funds available for a governmentally subsidized rural Chautauqua service.

For the last three weeks farmers of Nebraska have been called to local meetings of their farm bureau to discuss means of reducing costs of production and tax burdens. And they stay to be entertained by a farm board employé, whose jokes are interspersed with propaganda favorable to the farm board and to the administration which created it.

"Farmer" Brown on Programs.

Charles S. Brown, one of these chautauqua speakers, has been billed on farm programs throughout the middle west this summer. As "Farmer" Brown, he can be sympathetic and sincere when he tells the ruralists that the "farm board is a good thing." Last week he spoke in seven Nebraska farm meetings.

"Farmer" Brown, it was disclosed yesterday, hails from Arizona. He became well known there as a farm organizer by his ability to encompass propaganda with anecdotes in a lighter vein. His jokes usually carry hidden thrusts at the "middlemen" and "those gamblers in the big markets who are robbing the farmer blind."

Brown soon found his vocal earnings outclassed his returns from his asparagus crops. He has found the farm board "a good thing" to the amount of $4,000 salary per year and expenses of $6 to $8 a day. He is listed by the farm board as "educational expert" in the press relations division.

Other "Experts" Busy.

Other "educational experts" are finding a busy life in the country areas most unfavorable to the farm board, where they are booked by the speakers' bureau through county agricultural agents, paid in part by the federal government.

James R. Howard, one time president of the American Farm Bureau federation; Theodore W. Morse, and a list of a dozen "economists" will speak at farm meetings upon beck and call. Their salaries ranged between $5,000 and $3,600 annually in the last report of the farm board prior to the pay cut and 24 day furlough voted last spring by congress.

WIDOW OF CANFIELD, PUBLISHER, WINNER OF ESTATE CONTEST

Santa Barbara, Cal., Oct. 10.—[Special.]—A Probate court jury here today found that Mrs. Jessica Kingsland Canfield was legally entitled to recognition as widow of the late Byron Hilton Canfield, millionaire publisher of the Scripps-Canfield chain of Pacific coast daily newspapers.

Two sisters and a brother of the late publisher, named legatees under Canfield's will, which antedated his marriage with Mrs. Kingsland at Vancouver, B. C., on Aug. 29, 1930, contested the legality of Mrs. Canfield's claim. Property involved is estimated to exceed $2,000,000 in value.

The jury decided in Mrs. Canfield's favor that she was a legal resident of the state of Washington, and that her legal residence as Canfield's wife was in that state, laws of which would give her title to the entire estate.

The sisters of the late publisher, Harriet and Alice Canfield, and their brother, Robert Canfield, cited the publisher's 1928 will made out in Oakland, Cal., which left them all his estate.

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

GERMAN PRINCE, DEPARTING, SAYS U. S. IS SWELL

"Sort of Goofy" About Us, Friedrich Finds.

New York, Oct. 10.—[Special.]—America, if you ask the Princes Louis Ferdinand and Friedrich of Prussia, is a "perfectly swell" place to live, a "swell" place to work. By his own admission in United States English and slang that he has learned in two months and a half in this country, Prince Friedrich, youngest son of the former crown prince of Germany, is "sort of goofy" about this country.

The two brothers—Louis Ferdinand, 25, and the second of four sons of the former crown prince, and Friedrich, 21, youngest son of the family of six, reached this city this morning and joined in an interview just prior to Prince Friedrich's return to Germany tomorrow.

It was the blond, humorous Prince Friedrich who found the easiest way out of confusion as to surnames, rank, etc.

"I'm Friedrich," said he, bowing with a laugh. "Fritzi," interrupted his older brother. "Very well, Fritzi, then," continued the younger, "and my brother, he is Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, but I call him . . . O, just all of you call him, "Louey."

Prince Freidrich is returning on the Europa tomorrow to resume his study of international law. Prince Louis Ferdinand, who has been in this country nearly sixteen months, is returning to Detroit to work in the Ford Motor company's plant.

The younger brother has not worked during his visit here. He has done most everything, seen most everything that appeals to him. He has flown, witnessed football games, baseball games, and rodeo, and has fired on three of the largest locomotives."

He is 65 years old. He resigned the college presidency in 1931 after a five day student strike.

TREAT A COLD IN THE FIRST STAGE

—and You Nip It in the Bud!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, 1 to 3 days; the Mucous Secretion Stage. Relief in the first stage is far easier than in the later stages. In fact, it is taking chances to let a cold run beyond 24 hours.

As soon as you catch a cold the wise thing to do is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. This famous tablet stops a cold quickly because it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels. It kills the cold germs and fever in the system. It relieves the headache and grippy feeling. It tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. That is the treatment a cold requires!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is effective, but harmless. Contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. For years it has been the reliance of thousands in all cases of colds and grippe. Every drug store in America sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Handy, pocket-size box, cellophane-wrapped. Get it today.

RUSSIA OPENS LARGEST HYDRO PLANT IN WORLD

DNIEPROSTROY, U. S. S. R., Oct. 10.—(AP)—Bands blared the "Internationale," red flags waved and thousands of spectators cheered today as the soviet government dedicated the largest hydro-electric plant in the world to the cause of socialism.

The occasion was the formal opening of the gigantic Dnieprostroy dam, which eventually will supply an area of 70,000 square miles and a population of 16,000,000 with electric power.

One of the features of the ceremony was a formal announcement by M. I. Kalinin, president of the union central executive committee, that the Order of the Red Banner of Labor had been awarded to Col. Hugh L. Cooper and five other Americans who participated in the building and equipping of the great enterprise.

OVERSUBSCRIBE U. S. TREASURY NOTES 18 TIMES

Pressure on Dollar Is Relieved.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Coincident with the lessening of pressure against the American dollar abroad yesterday came the news that the current offering of United States treasury notes had been oversubscribed more than eighteen and one-half times.

Acting Secretary Ballantine last night announced that this offering, which was for $450,000,000, had been met with an avalanche of subscriptions totaling more than $8,368,000,000.

The offering consists of four and one-half year three per cent treasury notes, maturing April 15, 1937.

Mr. Ballantine's announcement, which was given out by the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, stated that of the $450,000,000 total allotment $317,987,000 represented exchange subscriptions in payment for which treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing Oct. 15 were tendered. Such exchange subscriptions were alloted in full.

Pays Notes and Interest.

The issue was offered by the treasury in order to balance the payment of 333 millions of treasury certificates of indebtedness and 155 millions in interest on the public debt which became due on Oct. 15. Subscription books were opened on the morning of Oct. 6, and were closed at the close of business on the same day.

During the latter part of last week the dollar had been slipping somewhat in foreign capitals. Pressure was reported being exerted against the dollar abroad. This pressure, it was said had arisen out of foreign concern following the speech of President Hoover at Des Moines in which he revealed how close the United States had come to being forced off the gold standard several month ago.

Dollar Pressure Relieved.

The improvement was considered by observers to be particularly encouraging because it came entirely from London, thereby indicating that the movement against the dollar was subsiding at its source rather than being checked from this side of the Atlantic.

French francs, which led the spectacular upswing starting Thursday and continuing through Saturday, were off ¾ point at the opening to 3.93. Later heavy offerings of francs at 3.92¾ were taken for a net decline of 1 point.

Belgas declined 4 points to 13.90, Swiss francs, 6 points to 19.34, and Dutch guilders, 10 points to 40.25.

Sterling Sells Lower.

Sterling and the Scandinavian exchanges were off slightly. The French franc, which had risen to near the gold export point last week, yesterday was well below that level. American fears of another outflow of gold to Paris subsided.

Acting Secretary Ballantine's report on the heavy oversubscription to the current treasury note offering was not made public until after the close of the market yesterday.

The results of this offering, it was believed, will serve to quiet any apprehension about the dollar that may have been stirred up abroad.

Not only the banks but private investors eagerly grasp at the opportunity to buy new United States treasury notes paying three per cent. For months the treasury has been financing with short term paper, paying no interest but sold on a discount basis.

Demand Is Great.

The demand for this paper has been so great that each offering has been heavily oversubscribed, despite the fact that the yield, on an annual basis, has been only a fraction of 1 per cent. The current note issue, however, having a longer maturity and paying a higher rate of interest, was more heavily oversubscribed than any of the short term certificate issues.

The ordinary investor can't invest profitably in certificates yielding less than one-half of 1 per cent in annual interest, but 3 per cent brings out his money.

With industry taxed so heavily that profits are difficult and incomes taxed heavily to cover higher government expenses the individual investor views government bonds with greater favor because of their tax exemption features.

U. S. Gold Gains $1,065,100.

New York, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A further gain of $1,065,100 in the nation's monetary gold stocks was reported in today's statement of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. Imports consisted of $750,900 from Holland and $173,200 from Mexico. There was also a gain of $141,400 through the release of gold from earmark.

FRANCE, SURFEITED WITH GOLD, CAN'T DRAW ON N. Y. HOARD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 10.—According to experts of the London gold market France at last is glutted with gold and is liable to become sick from the surfeit.

Every week $4,000,000 gold is offered in London, which is the gold market of the world. Up to now France has been taking it, but now, having an unfavorable trade balance, is unable to pay for it and recently has been refusing to deal.

For the same reason France is unwilling or unable to withdraw her gold balance in New York of $125,000,000, as she has no use for the metal and cannot sell it to any one but America, which doesn't want it.

Sears-Roebuck Again Listed on Exchange Here

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading in Sears Roebuck & Co. shares will be resumed on the Chicago Stock Exchange after a lapse of more than two years as the result of the action by the exchange governors yesterday.

The exchange governing committee at a meeting late yesterday approved the relisting of the 4,946,000 shares of the company's capital stock. The stock was withdrawn from the Chicago market in January, 1930, at the request of the company.

The action is regarded as a significant step in the program of the Chicago exchange to restore active trading here in the stocks of the big Chicago companies. In the last decade one after another of the stocks of important concerns have been listed in New York. As a consequence the New York exchange has become the real market for these issues. While it is considered unlikely that the Chicago exchange will be able to make Chicago the principal market, it is felt that a good deal of the business which now goes through New York can be handled here.

New York Main Market.

The New York exchange has always been the real market for Sears stock even when the issue was listed here. Chicago traders feel, however, that the higher transfer tax now existing in New York will tend to stimulate trading here.

Recently trading has been resumed in a number of stocks in which the activity here has all but disappeared in the last few years. Brokers and traders here have revived activity with some degree of success in Union Carbide, Chicago and Northwestern, and Illinois Central.

Exchange governors yesterday also listed the common stock of the Asbestos Manufacturing company on a when issued basis. Of the total listing of 384,000 shares, 320,000 shares are admitted to immediate trading. This is the first new listing the exchange has made in several months. A public offering of the stock is to be made. The class A and B stocks of the United States Dairy Products company were removed from the list because of the discontinuance of the Chicago transfer agency.

Stocks Lose Ground.

Share prices gave ground on the exchange yesterday in sympathy with the trend in other security markets. The motor accessory shares, the recent market leaders, were off moderately in line with the general market action. Losses throughout the list ranged from 1 to 3 points.

Total transactions amounted to 43,000 shares, about the rate of turnover maintained last week. Among the conspicuous losers were Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward, and Great Lakes Dredge.

FUTURE BRIGHT, ASSERTS SCHWAB, RECALLING PAST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—A future prosperity greater than any the nation has enjoyed in the past was predicted today by Charles M. Schwab, chairman of the board of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

"I feel confident," said Mr. Schwab, "in affirming that the United States will yet see better times than it has enjoyed in the past. I can recall that in the long drag from 1878 to 1896 many felt that the nation had reached a state of permanent decline.

"Those days were the belated aftermath of the civil war just as much as our present situation can be traced to the belated aftermath of the world war. Unemployment was general throughout the land, stores stood empty, banks failed, farms were sold for their mortgages and few people could see any favorable outcome.

"Yet the ten years which followed those days were times of plenty. The same basic causes which have built up our country from those days are going to continue to operate."

CHAIN BANKRUPT; LIABILITIES ONLY HALF OF ASSETS

Carson City, Neb., Oct. 10.—(AP)—A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was granted in federal court here today to the Owl Drug Company of California, which listed liabilities at $4,466,661.23 and assets of $8,704,651.

The Bank of Nevada Savings and Trust was appointed receiver for the company, which operated 124 retail stores in California, Washington, Oregon, and Utah.

Receivership was asked, according to William Woodburn, attorney for the Bank of Nevada, "because the company could not meet its obligations in the ordinary course of business."

"The biggest problem," Woodburn said, "is high rentals."

Shoe Production Expected to Show Continued Increase

Indications are that improvement in shoe production held throughout September and that output will show some increase over the August figure which was 50.3 per cent above July, according to the Fitch survey.

STEEL BACKLOG UP 15,495 TONS IN SEPTEMBER

Unfilled Orders Gain Again.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 10.—The United States Steel corporation today reported an increase of 15,495 tons in its unfilled tonnage figures as of Sept. 30 over the previous month, bringing the total to 1,985,090 tons. This was the second consecutive increase reported by the leading unit in the steel industry since July when the backing figures dropped to an all time low record of 1,966,595 tons.

Today's report was about as expected in well informed quarters in the financial district and considerable satisfaction was expressed with the result as an indication that the steel industry had now turned the corner and for a time at least will have an increasing measure of business which has been held back for so many months.

All Time High in 1917.

After sixteen consecutive monthly declines the Steel corporation's backlog figures showed initial improvement with a gain of 3,293 tons. The improvement today shows 15,495 tons as the September gain. The September total of 1,985,090 tons compared with 3,144,833 tons in the corresponding month a year ago and 3,423,388 tons in September, 1931. The all-time high record was 12,183,083 tons, in April, 1917, when world war tonnages were flooding into the American steel market.

The rise in orders last month was also accompanied by an increase in operations throughout the industry. Observers are now expecting that the corporation will report a further gain in orders at the close of October. With more than one-third of the month passed, the trade reports that there is every indication of further improvement.

Small Buyers Cause Rise.

The trade pins its hope for further improvement on the prospect that the large industries will soon become more of a buying factor. The improvement which has already taken place is credited to the demands of the numerous small consumers.

Such major consumers as the motor, railroad, and building industries are beginning to show more activity and it is believed will soon become more of a factor in the market.

Dow, Jones & Co., said today that the federal government is a larger buyer of structural steel than for some time. In addition to numerous small orders for postoffice and other buildings placed recently, inquiries have come out for a total of approximately 30,000 tons for the government or in connection with state and municipal work, it is said.

Tonnage by Months.

Washington, Oct. 10.—(AP)—A slight improvement in general crop prospects during September was reported today by the Department of Agriculture.

Corn production, on a basis of the Oct. 1 advices, was estimated at 2,884,682,000 bushels, a rise of 1.1 per cent during the month and an increase of 10 per cent compared with the five year average from 1924-28. The condition of the crop was placed at 77.2 per cent or normal.

Wheat Crop Declines.

Estimated wheat production showed a decline, the October report for all wheat indicating a crop of 711,707,000 bushels as compared with 715,000,000 bushels on Sept. 1; durum wheat 43,397,000 against 45,000,000, and other fixed spring wheat 226,552,000 against 228,000,000.

Oats production was placed at 1,265,341,000 bushels, an increase of 1.7 per cent over the Sept. 1 estimate and barley production was estimated at 313,000,000, a gain of 3.5 per cent.

Of the fruit crops, apples declined 5.8 per cent to 134,000,000 bushels, while grapes improved 2.1 per cent and the peach and pear crops remained at virtually the same level.

Field Crops Under Average.

Yields per acre of 20 field crops, combined, were reported as 3.1 per cent less than the ten year average from 1919-28, while 13 fruit crops combined were 14.1 per cent less, and the composite yield of 33 crops was estimated 3.9 per cent smaller.

The composite figure showed an increase of six-tenth of one per cent during September and 5.9 per cent below the final figure for 1931.

Decreases in corn production were shown in scattering states outside of the corn belt, while the only changes within the belt were reported in Ohio, Iowa and Nebraska. A gain of 33,753,000 bushels in these three states over their Sept. 1 estimates was reported.

Kelvinator Head Reports Gain in 12 Months Sales

George W. Mason, president of Kelvinator and Leonard electric refrigerator units, reports that sales for the fiscal year ended Sept. 30 were decidedly ahead of the preceding year. L. C. Wiswell, Chicago distributor, says that sales here ran 70 per cent higher during the same period.

VOTE TO MAKE NATIONAL BANK OF CONTINENTAL

Directors Approve Plan for Change.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company will shortly become a national bank as the result of the action taken yesterday. Directors of the institution, which is the largest banking organization in the country outside of New York, approved the previously announced plan to adopt a national charter. Announcement will be made soon regarding the date of conversion.

When the change becomes effective, which will be some time this month, the bank will be known as the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Company of Chicago. The adoption of a national charter will result in no change in the present functions of the bank, officials pointed out yesterday. All facilities and services, including commercial, foreign, savings, and trust departments, will be continued in the present quarters at 231 South La Salle street.

The principal security and commodity markets including the New York and Chicago stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade will be closed tomorrow — Columbus day. Trading will be resumed in all markets Thursday.

New York, Oct. 10.—Wall street's hope for a stock market upturn was set back again today when the list varied one to six points lower. The market started off well enough, but before it had gone very far it ran into a fresh selling, some of it perhaps of the forced variety and some for short account. Turnover exceeded 2,000,000 shares.

Moderate recoveries were the rule at the start, but weakness in the wheat market and some disappointment over the United States Steel corporation's order book report turned the rally into a retreat on a broad front during the afternoon.

A. T. & T. Near Par.

The worst prices on the current recession were reached by some leaders, among them being American Telephone, which changed hands within a fraction of par, and Steel. Losses up to 4 points were fairly numerous among the active issues, but the main body of shares fell back more moderately.

The widespread retreat came as a surprise, going further than had been anticipated, even by those observers not given to a roseate outlook. The belief persists in many quarters that a sharp rally is overdue, if for no other than technical reasons. Hopes that appeared vindicated by the early upturn, however, later were given a rude setdown.

Rails Hard Hit.

No doubt the market's poor performance could be traced to publication of the exchange's figures on the short position at the end of September showing a decline. These figures indicated that liquidation had been almost entirely responsible for the uneasiness of last month-end.

Union Pacific was extremely weak with a setback of more than 6 points. Santa Fe, closing off 5⅛, was almost as soft, while lesser recessions were posted by such other active carriers as Canadian Pacific, Lackawanna, New York Central and Southern Pacific.

Cost of Farm Board to U. S. Half Billion

BY SCRUTATOR.

It has cost American taxpayers a half billion dollars to have the federal farm board engage in a futile attempt to maintain artificial prices for agricultural products. For three years this government agency sought to repeal the law of supply and demand and put more money in the farmer's pocket.

The end of this experiment, which has been a government venture in business surpassed in scope only by that of soviet Russia, is in sight. The farm board has virtually reached the end of its resources. It has discontinued its vast operations in the grain and cotton markets within the last month and cannot resume unless congress appropriates new funds.

Moreover, President Hoover in his speech at Des Moines announced that he would recommend repeal of the section of the agricultural marketing act giving the farm board the power to buy and sell grain and cotton in attempts to regulate prices. Therefore, it appears that the next step will be to wind up the experiment and assess the damages.

Appropriates $500,000,000.

Under the agricultural marketing act, which went into effect in July, 1929, congress appropriated $500,000,000 for use of the federal farm board as a fund to be used for stabilizing wheat and cotton prices by manipulations in the markets and for making loans to coöperative marketing organizations. The major portion of this vast sum has been irretrievably lost through the farm board's speculations in wheat and cotton. Still more will be lost when the board eventually disposes of its present holdings and future contracts.

Then, too, the farm board has loaned many millions of dollars to various coöperative marketing organizations. Part of this money has been lost and written off, while it is expected much more eventually will be lost. In fact, whether the farm board can ever engage actively in fostering coöperative marketing in the future seems to depend on what it can salvage from its holdings of wheat and cotton and from its loans.

Operations Kept Secret.

The farm board has always clothed its activities and those of its subsidiary agencies, the Grain Stabilization and Cotton Stabilization corporations, with secrecy. However, bearings before the senate agricultural committee last December developed that the farm board at that time had incurred a loss of $110,000,000 in its attempt to stabilize wheat prices and also had lost $115,000,000 on cotton. In addition it had a loss of $15,000,000 on loans to coöperative associations. These losses totaled $240,000,000.

At the peak of its operations in 1930 the farm board was reported to Ground will be broken before the end of the week for the following buildings: Chrysler Sales corporation, to cost $150,000; Sears, Roebuck & Co., $250,000, and the Blue Ribbon café, $30,000. Other projects to be started this week are: Skyride, $940,000, foundation work; Enchanted island, $150,000, superstructure; States building, $400,000, first piles; Dairy building, $80,000, first steel, and the Agricultural building, $25,000, Illinois state addition.

Let Sears, Roebuck Contract.

E. H. Powell, secretary-treasurer of Sears, Roebuck & Co., announced yesterday that the general contract for the construction of the mail order company's building at A Century of Progress exposition has been let to the B-W Construction company of Chicago, of which Jopseh Beuttas is president. The contract is for $250,000, but with furnishings, the total price will be $300,000, according to Mr. Powell. Nimmons, Carr & Wright, of Chicago, are the architects.

The Sears World Fair building will be erected on the west side of Leif Ericson drive, next to the Illinois Host building, pictured in this department on Sunday. It will be diagonally across from the Administration building. The site is 270x230 feet.

The building will be of modern design with a 150 foot central tower and with a main exhibit hall, 90x86. A curving ramp on both sides will lead to the main entrance on the second floor. A hospital, exhibition rooms, kitchens, rest rooms and storage space will be on the first floor.

The second floor will have a large

New York, Oct. 10.—Bonds of the "speculative" type, including rails, dipped today, although firmness ruled in the so called high grade section, embracing corporation issues.

Railroad bonds, as a group, were off 1 to 3 points, while other leaders were mixed, with some of the best quality issues gaining moderately. The same division of trend was evident in the public utility section, with prime bonds displaying firmness in response to a fair amount of institutional buying.

With sentiment momentarily disturbed by market unsettlement, favor is being given to fixed income securities in the order of their security. Thus, United States government issues were again firm today, with the new 4½ year 3 per cent notes duplicating their high mark reached last Friday.

Buying of Municipals.

Municipal bankers reported good institutional buying of last week's bond offerings, all of which were priced at unusually high figures. Since virtually no municipal sales of consequence are scheduled for this week bankers still feel that best quality municipals are pointed upward.

Confidence of bankers in the market for high grade corporation bonds was emphasized by the discussion in trading circles of new utility financing to come on top of the substantial offerings of last week.

Rails to Decline.

Losses elsewhere in the rail list included such bonds as Central of Georgia 5s, Rock Island general 4s, Erie refunding and improvement 5s, Great Northern 7s, Lehigh Valley consolidated 5s, Missouri, Kansas and Texas 4s, New York Central refunding 5s, Northern Pacific 6s, and others.

Industrial and utility bonds were lower in such instances as American Metal 5½s, American Smelting and Refining 5s, American and Foreign Power 5s, issues of International Telephone, and others.

Standard Oil Co. of California.

Please send me the latest report on Standard Oil of California. Your department is doing a splendid service for its readers.—W. J. D.

Standard Oil Company of California is the leading oil producer, refiner, and distributor on the western coast.

Its holdings extend through eight western states, Colombia, Mexico, Venezuela, Persia, Peru, and Dutch West Indies. Its most valuable acreage is in the Kettleman hills region, where it controls about 45 per cent of potential producing area in the north dome. It has large natural gas interests.

The company has been one of the leaders in conserving resources to combat the industry's greatest obstacle to prosperity—overproduction. At the close of 1931 it had 1,992 of its 3,510 producing wells shut in. It has secured the cooperation of other large western producers in voluntarily restricting production.

Restricted production has resulted in an improved price scale. Net income for the first half of 1932 was $6,917,000, or 53 cents per share, against net of $5,644,000, or 43 cents per share, for the first half of 1931.

Earnings in 1931 were at the low point of the ten year period. They were $14,540,000, or $1.11 per share, against net of $37,675,000, or $2.88 per share, for 1930. The decline was the result of huge surplus inventory, general demoralization of the petroleum price structure, and reduction of non-operating income.

On Dec. 31, 1931, current assets were $90,040,000 and current liabilities were $9,173,000. Cash assets alone were more than $14,000,000. Working capital was $80,866,000, against $93,707,000 the year before.

Capitalization is represented solely by 13,102,900 shares of no par capital stock. The stock was placed on an annual $2 dividend basis with the payment of the March 15, 1932, dividend. It had previously paid $2.50 since the first quarter of 1927.

The company has a conservative financial setup, is in a strong financial position, and is under capable management. Its long term outlook is favorable. Earnings in any one year, however, will be subject to conditions of the industry.

Several merger proposals have been reported. One aims to hook up this company with Standard Oil of New Jersey. Another looks to the formation of a holding company to control the Standard Oil units of New Jersey, California, Ohio, and Kentucky.

The stock is rather high grade.

Mortgage Extension Granted.

TO THE EDITOR: I read your article in THE TRIBUNE, Sept. 9, regarding a mortgage extension. I am 73 years old, have a $3,800 mortgage due Oct. 4, 1932, and six months interest at 6½ per cent due the same date; all taxes and assessments paid to date. I will need a new loan unless my mortgage can be renewed or extended at once. My mortgage is held by the president of the —— bank and was sold to the bank before the bank closed and a receiver was appointed. Please answer soon.—A. L.

ANSWER: We suggest you call on A. D. Rehm, receiver for the Forest Park Trust and Savings bank, explaining that you have hopes of refinancing your property through the Federal Home Loan bank and would appreciate an extension for six months or one year. Also write the Federal Home Loan bank of Evanston, Ill., describing your property fully and requesting an application for loan. If you have any difficulty, do not hesitate to call on this department.

RESULT: Oct. 7, 1932—To the Editor: Acknowledging your letter of Sept. 16: I have secured an extension on my loan for one year and paid the interest note.—A. L.

Can't Pay Interest.

TO THE EDITOR: I own a six room residence purchased in 1928 for $8,500; at present there is no incumbrance other than the first mortgage for $3,900, at 6 per cent, interest due in August, 1933. I am employed as a salesman and at present working on a commission basis. My earnings have been greatly reduced and I am having difficulty making both ends meet. Taxes and assessments are all paid to date. I realize my curtailed earnings are temporary but must provide some means for facing present day problems. I will not have enough money to pay $234 interest. What can you suggest in my case?

ANSWER: We know of a few cases similar to yours where the mortgage holder has temporarily reduced the rate of interest and we strongly recommend you try and work out such a plan. You are an equity owner and deserving of consideration.

Threatened with Foreclosure.

TO THE EDITOR: I am threatened with foreclosure. I own a two flat building valued at $11,000; first mortgage is $4,000. I live in one flat and rent the other for $30 a month. Will the court appoint a receiver?—J. D.

ANSWER: The court can appoint you to collect the rents providing you furnish bond. In a building of this size, such action might prove advantageous to all concerned. It is advisable to have a lawyer represent you in a foreclosure case.

GRAIN MARKETS AGAIN RETREAT; BUYERS UNEASY

December Wheat Price Dips to 48⅜ Cents.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There was a noticeable lack of confidence on the part of buyers of grain yesterday. The continued easiness in the stock market, with a limited foreign demand for the tremendous North American surplus of cash wheat, has disheartened holders and persistent liquidation carried wheat futures down to a new low for the season.

There was a noticeable lack of rallying power displayed in wheat, with support coming largely from holders of bids and from shorts. The December dipped to 48⅜c, or 1⅜c under Saturday's finish, and the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of ⅞@1c. December was 48⅜@48¾c at the last, with May, 53¾@53⅞c, and July, 54⅝@55c.

Wheat Trading Restricted.

For several days outside interest in wheat has been relatively light and the fact that Winnipeg was closed yesterday served to hold trading to small proportions. According to pit brokers the wheat market advanced fractionally when stocks rallied and eased when the latter did. There was little in the news otherwise to affect the wheat.

Bearish sentiment has become more pronounced in wheat as the result of the continued decline in prices. The December at the inside figure yesterday was off 6⅛c from the high of the previous week and, despite the decline, little or no export business has developed in hard winter and even the call for Manitobas has failed to come up to expectations. Liverpool closed ¾@⅞c per bu lower, with December at 55⅝c, and reported cheaper offerings from both Canada and Argentina.

Corn Resists Pressure.

While there was some pressure on corn as the result of the weakness in wheat ,declines did not get very far. The trade was rather inclined to keep close to shore, as the government report was due after the close and there was a marked letup in offerings of cash grain to arrive from the country. Purchases by local handlers were estimated at only 45,000 bu, the smallest in some time.

Evening up for the government report toward the last caused a rally in corn and the finish was unchanged to ¾c lower, with December, 26½@26⅝c; May, 31⅜c, and July, 32⅜c. Export bids were received from the seaboard, but they were somewhat below sellers' views and it was clailed the Danube was offering abroad around 1⅛c below American. An increase of 2,410,000 bu in the visible supply raised the total to 20,868,000 bu, against 6,342,000 bu last year.

Oats eased early with wheat, but recovered most of the loss, closing unchanged to ⅛c lower, with December, 15⅞@16c, and May, 18⅝@18¾c. December rye sold at a new low on the crop with wheat, and the finish was 1@1¼c lower at 31⅝c, while the May was 35⅝c. Nothing has been heard of export demand for the latter grain for a number of weeks.

GRAIN STATISTICS

United States visible supply of wheat decreased 1,196,000 bu last week; corn increased 2,410,000 bu; oats, 866,000 bu, and barley, 112,000 bu, while rye was unchanged. Details follow:

BUTTER AND EGGS FIRMER

Butter futures closed firm on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, gaining ⅝c in light trading. Egg futures were ¼@½c higher. There was little activity with November eggs receiving most of the attention. This delivery declined ½c at the opening on active sport, taking and new selling but later gained better support. Last week's storage news was mixed, the ten markets report showing 50,000 cases less out than last year but the Pacific coast reported a better movement. For the most part, trading was dull. Butter lacked interest, gaining on very light buying. The storage news indicated only moderately heavy movement of stocks. Butter, 21 cars; eggs, 135 cars. Deliveries, eggs, 2 cars. Prices follow:

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 6,000; hogs, 18,000; sheep, 15,000.

The hog market made another feeble rally early yesterday that quickly flattened out. Praotically all kinds finished in a slump. Prices were thrown back into the rut they have been in most of the time since the general average first went below the $4.00 line about two weeks ago. Opening sales were steady to 10c higher than Saturday, but after the setback quotations stood unevenly 10@25c under last Friday. Extremely heavy "packers" that showed most of the early strength, sold at the sharpest discounts on the unsatisfactory closing rounds.

The general average price, due mostly to the better Monday quality, advanced 10c over Saturday to $3.70, but showed 5c loss compared with last Friday. Fancy light weights raised the top to $4.00 at the start. The only factor contributing to the strong side of the trade was the exceptionally small receipts. The total at Chicago at 25,000 was smallest for Monday since August 1. Only four Monday totals have been smaller since March.

Rain Slows Cattle Trade.

A steady downpour of rain slowed down trading considerably in the cattle alleys yesterday. All offerings were well soaked and took on an unattractive appearance that kept buyers pecking away at prices here and there until a slight saving was made in most classes. Best grades held steady, but nothing succeeded in reaching the $10.00 line which was last week's top. Prime 1,200@1,213 lb steers sold at $9.85, with the bulk at $6.00@8.50.

Plain quality steers with a good "kill" sold at $5.50 and poorer grades of beef merit ranged down to $4.50. Inferior grassy kinds brought $3.50 and occasionally less. Butcher stock started scaleward later than usual at weak prices. Heifers of show type averaging 902 lbs sold at $8.20. Quality in calves was poor and the market steady.

Lambs in Sharp Rise.

The 25@50c rise in lamb prices, the sharpest in several weeks, was one of the features of the live stock market yesterday. Selected native lambs sold to city butchers at $6.00, highest since September 26. Packing houses raised their bids to $5.85 in this class and bought with more freedom at $5.25@5.75. Western range lambs sold at $5.85 and below. Only the extremely light supplies favored a higher market.

Webb Expects No Radical Change in Coffee Prices

Despite the improvement in the Brazilian political situation no radical changes in coffee prices are expected, according to a statement made yesterday by Thomas J. Webb, Chicago coffee dealer. "Any changes in the Brazilian situation as reflected in this country will be very slow," Mr. Webb said. "While the political disturbances in Brazil are reported as becoming somewhat clarified, there are other important factors to be considered. Low coffee stocks here, which will have to be replenished, mean that it may be months before there is any balanced condition as far as stock in this country adequately represents the requirements."

SELECTIONS FOR OPENINGS IN THIS HIGHLY PROFITABLE BUSINESS WILL BE MADE AT ONCE—NO INVESTMENT OR DEPOSIT NEEDED.

This business which leads the world in volume in its field has unlimited capital resources and six large factories, employing thousands of men, who are making from $5,000 to $15,000 a year each IN CASE when they learn the business, started as the idea of one man! He developed and sold his product, selected and trained his coworkers and little by little built up this vast personal organization that has known no hard times and no lack of progress. September was our 33d consecutive record sales month.

From this splendid progress of its founders, Electrolux, Inc. (not refrigeration) has grown to the present great proportions, but always on the basis of the careful personal training of men adapted to this work by ones who are among its leading earners. While our present force internationally has come from all walks of life, in each man in this business will be found the bedrock requirements of sound character and dependability.

Without investment, risk or deposit, if you are adapted to this business, you may start in at once and after proving that you can follow instructions, your initial earnings will gain steadily with a pay day weekly, with no layoffs, no favoritism and no seasons. Any of seven men between 26 and 45, married, with responsibilities, and ambition to bring happiness and comfort to their families and themselves, our records are filled with examples of earnings and progress that should inspire any determined man.

This is not an ordinary offer, but a genuine and exceptional opportunity—the greatest in its field in existence. Therefore, a personal interview is necessary and you may call Tuesday morning, 9 to 1, Suite 329, Madison-Kedzie Bldg., 3 S. Kedzie-av. Men living out of town should write for local opportunities.
